Study Shows Steel Supply Will Remain Short in '49

Type of Allocations, Industry Expansion Are Major Problems For New Congress

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Commerce Department economists have completed a special survey of domestic steel needs that concludes that the present shortage will continue at least through 1949.

The unpublished report estimates that 1949 demand will exceed supply by from five to six million tons. No firm estimate was made of the gap between export supply and demand because of uncertainty about the extent of our foreign commitments and European production rates, but the shortage here will run several million tons, it was said.

If borne out, it means a continuation of waiting lists for automobiles and other consumer goods in short supply, greater pinch on small businessmen who now have great difficulty in getting steel, and delay or postponement of bridges, roads and other essential building projects.

Two Major Questions

And definitely it means that two major questions to be decided by the Eighty-first Congress are:

(1) What type of steel allocations must be imposed.

(2) Whether America's steel production capacity should not be expanded further—probably with Government aid.

Commerce officials said the steel survey was not made public or submitted to several congressional committees that have repeatedly asked for such a report because it was not as comprehensive as they would have liked it to be.

Publication of such a steel survey would open it to attack by some steel men who feel the shortage will begin to taper off next year. The department would like to make an exhaustive survey of the situation that it could stand back of, but lacks the funds.

However, the study was based on estimates obtained from all major industries using steel and is considered an accurate, conservative forecast. It is used within the department for planning purposes.

Moreover, its findings are not contradicted by any responsible published source. Analysts for Iron Age, often regarded as a spokesman for the steel industry, declare the shortage will continue another six months and will make no prediction beyond then.

The American Iron and Steel Institute, official spokesman for the industry, is making no forecasts today. A year or two ago it was predicting there would be plenty of steel within six months.

Top Administration circles are believed to be nearing a decision on what type of steel allocations will be asked of Congress. The

Elizabeth's Baby Described as Angelic Looking

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth's baby was described tonight as "golden haired, with a most beautiful complexion."

Countess Granville, sister of Queen Elizabeth, giving the first public description of the four-week-old prince, said he "couldn't be more angelic looking." She added that the infant who may some day rule England has "amazingly delicate features for so young a baby."

The countess, a recent visitor to Buckingham Palace, gave the description in a talk to a Girl Guide (Scout) conference.

Today, London's Sunday Express reproved the Palace for being so close-mouthed about the royal heir. Another member of the Lord Beaverbrook newspaper family—The Evening Standard—expressed similar criticism last week.

The baby is to be christened Wednesday.

Resources Board Warns

Critically Short Power Output Expected in Some U. S. Areas

By the United Press

The National Security Resources Board warned yesterday that the Nation's power supply will be critically short in the next few weeks and will require voluntary savings in several areas.

It also said that any sharp increase in power demand or generating equipment for defense purposes in the next few years would require "voluntary or mandatory" power rationing in many regions as well as materials allocation.

The board urged more Government money to build power projects in shortage areas such as the Pacific Northwest and the Tennessee Valley Authority area. Nationally, it said, the margin between demand and generating capacity is a perilous 1.6 per cent, the lowest in history.

"Practically without exception" the Nation's power plants are operating with inadequate reserve capacity to deal with mechanical breakdowns," it said.

In several areas, the board added, "it is necessary for the utilities and the governmental agencies concerned to call upon the consumers for voluntary conservation" or to ask industries to shift their power take from peak demand hours.

Because of the "spectacular and continuing increases" in demand, it continued, the Nation will not have an adequate generating capacity—a 10.3 per cent margin—until 1951. Even then the Northwest will be still "critical," the Southwest will be operating on inadequate reserves, and the Tennessee Valley Authority will still have a deficit.

The board's report is based on estimated power demand through 1951, including present defense and European Recovery Program plans, and a planned 40 per cent expansion of public and private power plants.

Despite this planned increase, it said, "even more vigorous efforts may be needed during the next few years to avert power shortages in specific areas and to provide for our security requirements."

Most manufacturers of large generators will not be able to take new orders until 1951, the board reported. But "every encourage-

Rise in Taxes Held Assured Next Year

Where Blow Will Hit Only Question After 'Hill' Studies

By The Associated Press

A good bet today is that Congress will dig deeper into many taxpayers' pockets in 1949.

This was underlined in the first week of hearings by a Senate-House Economic Committee into the record-breaking profits of business.

On the basis of committee members' stated positions, the only question is whether the increased taxes will be placed on business or spread to the individual taxpayers.

Senator Flanders (D., Vt.), committee chairman, told reporters, "We have got to have a source of taxation—the big problem is where to draw the taxes from without hurting our economy."

Senator O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) and others favor an excess profits tax on business as the best method of getting money to pay for Government costs, military defense and aid to Europe.

Budget Should Set Pace

But Flanders said it may be the individual taxpayer will have to share some of the burden. He added the Administration's budget for the next fiscal year should determine what the tax structure will be.

"I think it would be a mistake," Flanders said, "to go to an undistributed profits tax rather than a higher regular corporation tax."

Flanders said in his opinion an excess profits tax leads to wasteful spending by business.

The Republicans made a mistake this year, Flanders said, in raising tax exemptions for about seven million low-income wage earners.

2 Caught Trying To Crack Safe At Uptown Theater

Two men were caught in the middle of a safecracking job at the Ambassador Theater early today shortly after the performance of a movie about the Colorado State Penitentiary.

Robert Etris, manager of the theater at 2454 18th st. nw., said the men were discovered about 12:15 a. m. by the watchman, George Myrick.

Myrick, who usually goes on duty a little before midnight, was a few minutes late and at first thought that noises in the theater's office were being made by the manager. But upon hearing a sudden hammering, he discovered the yeggmen hard at work and quickly summoned police.

Etris declined to estimate how much money was in the safe, saying only that there was a "good sized" amount representing three days' receipts. The yeggmen were taken to Thirteenth Precinct for questioning.

Truman Asks Mayors to Help Fight Inflation

Letter Welcomes 500 Officials Here For 3-Day Parley

President Truman yesterday blamed inflation as a "primary" cause of the difficulty which many municipalities now encounter in the midst of national prosperity.

In a letter of welcome to about 500 municipal officials meeting here at the Hotel Statler for a conference of the American Municipal Association, President Truman declared that municipal revenues unfortunately have not increased with municipal costs.

"Municipalities therefore," he said, "will be profoundly interested in every sincere and intelligent effort to control or restrict inflation."

From More Than 40 States

The conference, which is being attended by municipal officials from more than 40 States, has been described by the association president, Mayor Fletcher Bowron of Los Angeles, as "the first full-scale effort ever made by United States municipalities as a unified group to crystallize a truly national policy on many critical matters."

At a preliminary session yesterday, Austin J. Tobin, executive director of the Port of New York Authority, told AMA members, "There is a general feeling against continued local subsidies for major airport development."

"Development of self-supporting airports in America's largest cities," he declared, "is an absolute essential if the aviation industry is to survive and prosper."

The organization hopes to formulate a national municipal program during its sessions here, which will continue through Wednesday at the Statler. Hope is to promote such a program both in Congress and State legislatures.

Mayor Bowron will formally

Meat Consumption In Britain Held To Half U. S. Level

London, (Monday), Dec. 13 (AP).—The average beef-loving Englishman eats only half as much meat as the average American.

A report issued by the Commonwealth Economic Committee showed today that consumption of meat per person in the United Kingdom has dropped from 119 pounds before the war to 77 pounds in 1947. In the United States, meantime, it increased from 128 pounds before the war to 155 pounds in 1947.

A British family enjoys one or two meat meals a week at home under today's ration. Meat in restaurants is not rationed, but the slices are thin.

The report said world exports of beef in 1947 were about 15 per cent and pork about 50 per cent below prewar figures.

An Instant of Sight

Blind Patient Jerks His Head And Restored Vision Is Lost

New York, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Clarence Peddicord, 31, blinded in an accident 12 years ago, disclosed today that an operation restored his vision for an instant—but what he saw startled him so much he jumped and spoiled the doctor's work.

Now Peddicord, who hitchhiked from his home in Portland, Oreg., to New York for the operation, is blind again. But the surgeon who operated on him has promised to operate again next summer, confident he can restore his sight permanently.

"It was wonderful for a minute," Peddicord said. "The doctor took the bandages off. I opened my eyes. The miracle I had spent 12 long years waiting for happened. I could see! Sunlight was streaming across the ceiling.

"But before I could adjust myself, I suddenly saw the points of a pair of scissors coming at my eye. The doctor was only going to cut the stitches, but I didn't know that. I jerked my head back. That jarred my eye. It began bleeding inside and I was blind again."

Peddicord was blinded by sulphur dioxide fumes from a refrigerator in 1936.

Britain Sells Soviet 2850 Generating Sets

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Soviet Union is purchasing 22 million dollars worth of electrical equipment from Britain, it was announced today.

A U. S. S. R. trade delegation has signed a contract with two firms for delivery of 2850 standard, self-contained 50 kw generating sets.

Sawyer Asks Full Renewal Of Controls

Export Bars Ending February 28 Called Vital to Help Check Effect of Shortages

By The Associated Press

Secretary of Commerce Sawyer yesterday asked for the renewal, intact, of his entire kit of export and other controls governing materials that are scarce.

Without waiting for President Truman to make the requests in his State of the Union message to Congress next month, Sawyer declared in a report on export and allocation powers:

"The national interest is being importantly served by these controls, and they should be continued."

Department officials have reported privately that Sawyer also is recommending to the White House a program of "stand-by" powers to ration scarce materials to essential industries.

Insurance Against Failure

Although such controls may never be invoked, it was stated, the Commerce Department and the National Security Resources Board are convinced they should be placed on the books as insurance against any failure of the present voluntary system of allocating steel and several other scarce materials.

Several hundred farm and industrial commodities are subject to export control, which expires February 28. Other remains of the wartime control system managed by Sawyer will run out on June 30 unless extended.

These include:

1. Export priorities, to insure overseas delivery of materials whose shipment is certified to be in this country's interest.

2. Domestic control over the sale and use of tin and antimony.

3. Import controls, now used only on fats and oils, rice and tin.

4. Transportation control, to relieve possible railroad bottlenecks.

"These controls are still needed for the same basic reasons as in mid-1947, when the second decontrol act was passed—to help check the inflationary effects of supply shortages in the domestic economy and to help fulfill our international responsibilities," Sawyer said.

Supply Still Inadequate

"Despite steady gains in national production since the end of the war, the supply of many commodities is still inadequate to meet the combined demands of foreign and domestic buyers."

Secretary Sawyer reported a marked decline of exports in 1948. In the July-October quarter, they ran at the rate of $11,700,000,000 a year, about 24 per cent below the 1947 value and 30 per cent under the rate reached in the spring of last year.

Special safeguards erected to prevent "contraband" goods from reaching Russia—materials which could contribute to the Soviet war potential—have sharply reduced shipments into eastern Europe, Sawyer said.

Federal Boost Hopeful

By the United Press

President Truman and the two million Government workers who carry out his programs both may get a pay raise from the new Congress.

But the Congressmen who want Mr. Truman's salary raised are going to have to work fast if they expect to succeed. They will have to get legislation through Congress by January 20.

The President's first full term begins on that date. And the Constitution says that the Chief Executive's salary "shall neither be increased nor diminished during the period for which he shall have been elected."

Hopes of ordinary Federal employes receiving a new pay increase were strengthened, meanwhile, by announcement by Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.) that he probably will take over the reins of the Senate Civil Service Committee.

Johnston said he wants to sponsor legislation to give some two million Federal employes pay increases ranging from $600 to $850 a year.

Although the increases would cost the Treasury about one billion dollars a year, the Senator said he thought they could be granted without raising taxes because Government income is running ahead of estimates.

Any legislation to increase Mr. Truman's salary probably would have to be divorced from a proposed bill to raise the salaries of all top-flight Government officials because of the time element.

Just how much of a raise Mr. Truman may get hasn't been decided. He now receives $75,000 a year in salary and a $30,000 tax-free expense account.

The size of the raise might be determined by recommendations of the Commission on Organization of the Executive Branch of the Government, headed by former President Herbert Hoover.

At one time the Hoover Commission wanted to double the President's salary—to $150,000 a year. But because of the high taxes on income in that bracket, the commission reportedly has reconsidered.

It has been reported that, up until last year's income tax cut, which Mr. Truman vetoed, he had barely $4000 left at the end of a year.

Civilians Mobilized

San Jose, Costa Rica, Dec. 12 (AP).—Costa Rican authorities said today they have weathered the first shock of an invasion they claim was launched from Nicaragua with Communist support.

Martial law was decreed in this Central American country, which reaches within 180 miles of the Panama Canal Zone. Civilians were mobilized as the governing junta quickly improvised a defense force to take the place of the army which was ordered disbanded 10 days ago. Censorship was established.

Costa Rica protested to Nicaragua that the invasion constituted a "flagrant violation" of two inter-American accords—the 1928 Pact of Havana and the Rio de Janeiro Pact ratified this month.

(A similar protest was placed before the United Nations Security Council in Paris.

(Gen. Anastasio Somoza, Nicaraguan War Minister and head of the National Guard, denied last night that there had been any invasion of Costa Rica from his country.)

The presidential press office and the secretary of the junta said Communists, Nicaraguan national guardsmen and Costa Rican exiles made up the invading force, led by Rafael A. Calderon Guardia, a former President of Costa Rica. It was estimated there were not more than 200 to 300 men in the invading group.

Authorities claimed the invaders have been contained in a small area in the northwestern extremity of the country near the Nicaraguan border. The invaders disembarked Friday night at the Bay of Silinas

Fearing Attack, Guard Shoots Man

A 74-year-old Federal building guard shot and wounded one of two men who, he told police, were about to attack him at 14th and S sts. at about 12:30 a. m. today.

The man, whose name was not immediately disclosed, said at the Thirteenth Precinct Station that he had just left a streetcar at the corner when the two men approached him menacingly. He told homicide detectives he shot at one of them, then went home and telephoned police.

The wounded man was admitted to Emergency Hospital, in serious condition, with a bullet wound in the abdomen.

Nixon Urges Stronger Laws on Spies

2 Other Members Of House Propose To Curb or Abolish Probe Committee

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Steps to strengthen the Nation's espionage laws were urged yesterday by a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, while two other House members proposed abolition or limitation of the committee itself.

Representative Nixon (R., Calif.), sparkplug of the committee's efforts to unearth Red spies in Federal employ, said recent revelations showed the 1917 espionage laws to be out of date. Revising them, he declared, "should have the highest piority in the new Congress."

Full of Holes, He Says

"The espionage law is full of holes," Nixon said. "It was passed in 1917 to cover a situation in which Germany had German spies and Japan had Japanese spies, and not one in which Russia had American Communists for spies."

However, two Democrats, whose party will control both Houses of Congress after January 3, loosed verbal blasts at the committee and its operations. One of these, Representative Huber (D., Ohio), promsed to introduce legislation aimed at doing away with the committee altogether.

On the other hand, Representative Holifield (D., Calif.), long an arch enemy of the committee, said he would introduce amendments to the House rules designed to force it to "adopt basic principles of justice." He did not propose its abolition.

Would Broaden Rights

His bill, Holifield said, would give witnesses before the committee "the same protective rights now extended to a chicken thief haled before a police court." Included would be the right of witnesses to cross-examine their accusers.

Despite his proposal to abolish the committee, Huber conceded it "may have hit pay dirt" in bringing to light charges by former Red Courier Whittaker Chambers that Government employes had furnished him with documents from State Department files. Among these employes he named Alger Hiss, president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace and a former State official, and produced more than 200 documents to support his charge. Hiss has frequently denied these accusations and is suing Chambers for slander on the basis of a radio broadcast in which the charges were repeated.

However, said Huber, if the committee has unearthed anything of value, it would be the first time in its 10-year history.

Holifield indicated that while Congress might place some limitations on the committee, he was not hopeful it would abolish it. In this he was echoed by the committee's acting chairman, Representative Mundt (R., S. D.), who

Jaywalker Missed By Trolley Scores Hit on Motorman

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (AP).—A man boarded a streetcar here today, police reported, and asked motorman Laurence Smart if he recognized him.

"No," said Smart.

"I'm a guy you nearly ran over a block back, said the pedestrian.

Then the unidentified man slapped the streetcar brake handle down on Smart's head, pushed the motorman through the front window of the vehicle, and calmly walked away, the streetcar man told officers.

Smart, treated for a scalp laceration, said he had barely missed a jaywalker just before the incident.

5 Men Killed as Fire Sweeps 5th Floor of Chicago Hotel

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP).—Five were killed and 11 injured in a fire which swept the fifth floor of the Victoria Hotel, in the south section of the Loop early today.

An additional 187 guests fled uninjured from the old seven-story building. Fire Chief Corrigan estimated damage at $10,000.

The dead were William J. Keane, 25, who died in St. Luke's Hospital; Eugene Oyler, 48, and Allan McCullough, 40, all of Chicago, and Richard W. Kline, 45, and Richard I. Ulven, 23, Navy enlisted men, stationed at Great Lakes. Ulven's home town was Austin, Minn.

Fire Chief Corrigan said the fire started in Keane's room.

Henry Freuler, 67, night clerk, said he rang as many room telephones as he could after the fire was discovered. Most of the occupants got down the hotel stairways. A number used fire escapes.

A 67-year-old Chicago insurance broker, Frank Coffey, leaped from his room on the fifth floor to the bottom of a light shaft at the second floor level. He suffered only fractured toes and a skinned nose.

South Korea Is Recognized As U. N. Quits

American-Sponsored Government Called Only Lawful One In Slap at Reds

Paris, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The United Nations ended its third annual General Assembly today after recognizing the American-sponsored South Korean government as the sole lawful regime in that country.

By a vote of 48 to 6, with one abstention, the Assembly slapped Russia in the face by declaring in a formal resolution:

"The General Assembly . . . declares that there has been established a lawful government (the government of the Republic of Korea) . . . that this government is based on elections which were the valid expression of the free will of the electorate of that part of Korea . . . and that this is the only such government in Korea."

Red Regime Denounced

Thus the Assembly denounced as unlawful the Communist puppet regime set up by the Russians in their occupation zone in northern Korea.

Setting up a seven-nation commission to attempt to unify Korea, the Assembly called upon "member states to refrain from any acts derogatory to the results achieved and to be achieved by the U. N. in bringing about the complete independence and unity of Korea."

The General Assembly adjourned at 6:10 p. m. and will meet in special session at Lake Success, N. Y., April 1.

The session was supposed to end last night. But a Russian-bloc filibuster against the Korean resolution forced the weary delegates to meet again today.

Today's session ended, as the first one started September 21, with Russia's Andrei Y. Vishinsky bitterly denouncing the Western powers and calling them warmongers.

Disagreeing with other delegates who in formal speeches before the close pointed to the accomplishments of the Assembly, Vishinsky said:

"This Assembly will go down in the annals of history as one which worked toward destroying peace."

The United States and Britain, Vishinsky said, kept the U. N. from approving such Russian proposals as those to outlaw the atomic bomb and to call on the big powers to reduce their armaments by a third within one year.

"They were rejected because they were not in accordance with the interests of those who want world mastery, who are destroying international cooperation, who are inciting a new world war against the Soviet Union and the peoples' democracies," Vishinsky said.

The Korean resolution was sponsored by the United States, China and Australia.

'Bait' Suspected

Soviets Offer Berliners Free Sugar

Berlin, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Russians offered free Christmas sugar today as bait to win embattled western Berliners to the Soviet side in the East-West struggle for Berlin.

The Soviet military command authorized special distribution of a half pound of sugar to all inhabitants of eastern Berlin and to any who care to change their food registration from western Berlin.

The Socialist Unity (Communist) Party claimed 85,000 of the two million Germans in the American, British and French sectors of the city already have changed their registration. Anti-Communists conceded 60,000 had done so.

Western Berliners fear the Russians are preparing a new kind of frontier control in the divided city to take effect in January.

After that, it is rumored, only eastern-registered holders of food cards will be permitted to cross from the western sectors. Such an action would bar 150,000 to 200,000 people who daily work in eastern Berlin but who live in the west.

Seven hundred non-Communist employes of the Saxony state government were reported dismissed by the Communist Minister President. Eighty are being dropped from the Dresden lower court. Three hundred received notices at the publicly owned Vanderer automobile works at Chemnitz.

China Lifeline To Front Cut By Red Forces

Nanking, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Chinese Communists cut the government's railway lifeline to the front today at a new point only 50 miles northwest of Nanking.

This successful infiltration attack south of the Hwai River line was viewed by neutral observers as the first step toward isolation of the last free government force north of the Yangtze.

Loss or encirclement of the two army groups now in the Hwai River sector based on Pengpu would leave only the thin force of the Nanking-Shanghai defense command to guard the few remaining miles to the Yangtze and this capital city.

Reported Near Chiashan

Informed sources said the Communists struck across the railway near Chiashan and forced suspension of all traffic with the Sixth and Eighth Army Groups. These groups are operating out of Pengpu, 58 miles farther north.

The Communists appeared to be units of the two columns—up to 30,000 men—which infiltrated southward across the Hwai River some 40 miles east of Pengpu.

One current Nanking version said these columns were fighting along the railway in large numbers.

Two large government forces remain in tight Communist encirclement about 145 and 185 miles northwest of Nanking. Neutral military observers said there appeared to be little chance either would escape in worthwhile numbers.

Pan American, Overseas Airlines Announce Merger

New York, Dec. 12 (AP).—The merger of American Overseas Airlines with Pan American Airways was announced tonight.

A joint announcement said the agreement calls for consolidation of American Overseas routes with transatlantic services of Pan American. The agreement is subject to approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board and stockholders of the two companies.

AOA assets will go to Pan American in exchange for Pan American stock and the former will be dissolved, the announcement said.

Auditing will begin December 31 to determine assets and liabilities of both companies.

"We will take over the workers of American Overseas Airlines and try to find suitable employment for them within the Pan American organization," a spokesman for Pan American said.

East German Treaty With Soviet Discussed

Berlin, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Russia and German Communists are negotiating on the setting up of an east German government which would sign a peace treaty with the Soviet Union, well-informed sources reported tonight.

Col. Serge Tulpanov, Soviet propaganda chief for Germany, was reported to have flown to Moscow recently to discuss the plan with high Russian officials.

Armistice Talks Begin in Palestine

Tel Aviv, Israel, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Foreign Office sources revealed today that armistice negotiations between Israel and Trans-Jordan are under way and said they are hopeful of success by Christmas.

United Nations truce headquarters in Haifa meanwhile announced that Lieut. Col. Moshe Dayan, Israeli commander in Jerusalem, has notified the Arab Legion commander, Lieut. Col. Abdullah El-Tel, that the Jews are willing to negotiate an armistice in the Holy City.

Dayan and El-Tel agreed in principle to arrangements allowing Christians to travel unmolested to Bethlehem on Christmas, the U. N. said.

Foreign Office sources said "some progress" has been made in direct talks between Israel and Trans-Jordan in the last few days.

"Contact between Israel and Trans-Jordan already has reached a state which might reasonably be described as one of negotiations affecting territorial matters," the sources said.

The General Assembly's approval in Paris of the plan to set up a three-nation conciliation commission was received by government quarters here with "cautious satisfaction."

The commission and its staff will be billeted at Government House in Jerusalem, where British high commissioners formerly lived.

Cabled Report

U. N. Is Told Of Java Talk Breakdown

Batavia, Java, Dec. 12 (AP).—The United Nations Good Offices Commission cabled the Security Council today a special report on the breakdown of Dutch-Indonesian peace negotiations.

The report deals with the recent talks which led to yesterday's decision of the Netherlands government to break off negotiations and go ahead with its plans for an interim government in Indonesia, without the Indonesian Republic.

The commission also sent the Council statements from the Republic and the Netherlands government on the deadlocked discussions.

Professor Supomo, a member of the Republican delegation, said the Dutch decision to form an interim government without the Republic "will create great tension and misunderstanding."

He said the only solution to the Indonesian problem now would be new negotiations with a powerful third party assisting. The third party, he said, could make clear stipulations so there could be no misunderstanding of the Dutch and Indonesian positions.

McCloy Is Made 'Patron' of Town He Saved in War

Rothenburg, Germany, Dec. 12 (AP).—An American was made "patron" of this beautiful old town today because he saved it from wartime destruction.

McCloy

John J. McCloy, president of the International Bank for Reconstruction was not present at the city council's ceremonies in his honor. But the certificate naming him as patron of the town was handed to an American representative for delivery to McCloy.

In the last few days of the late war, Rothenburg was targeted for an intensive artillery bombardment by American troops when some German troops tried to hold out behind the medieval walls.

McCloy, then a deputy secretary of war, arrived there on a visit to United States troops. He intervened to halt the bombardment and arrange the city's peaceful surrender.

As patron, he succeeds the former German Emperor Franz II, who died in 1806.

The commission is to try to unify Korea including its security forces, seek the removal of economic, social and other barriers between southern and northern Korea, and consult on the further development of legal Korean government.

The resolution formally called on the United States and Russia, the occupying powers, to withdraw their troops "as early as practicable."

Russia has asserted that she intends to withdraw her troops by December 31. Nobody but Russia and her satellites wants American troops to withdraw until the country is assured of peace without Communist domination.

The commission is to proceed to Korea within 30 days, and is to report at the April meeting of the Assembly.

that the north China situation around Peiping was "serious but not pessimistic."

(This was contrary to direct private dispatches from Peiping. They said the government evidently had abandoned the great Tangshan coal center 65 miles northeast of Tientsin, leaving to the Communists more than one million tons of coal above ground.

(AP Correspondent Spencer Moosa reported there was a growing conviction in Peiping that "some sort of compromise with the Reds in north China is cooking.")

White Persian Stalks Off With Cat Show Honors

In calm disdain, Champion Dixi-Land White Historian II last night stalked off with top honors in the second annual cat show of the Cat Fanciers of Washington.

The all-white, 4-year-old Persian, owned by Mrs. John Remington, Bristol, Tenn., was judged the best male and best champion of the show. He won a pair of orange and black rosettes.

To Arlington Misty Morn, 3-year-old Persian "chinchilla" owned by Mrs. Orville Stewart of 18 T st. nw., went first prize as the best female. Mrs. Stewart's Rosedere Fleur, a female Persian, was judged the show's best novice.

One hundred and forty-five cats from 15 States and the District were entered in the two-day show.

Brookings Report Sees Flaws In U. S. Information Service

By the United Press

The Government's Foreign Information Service should be used frankly to support the Nation's foreign policy, and also held ready for quick conversion to a war agency if necessary, the Brookings Institution said yesterday.

The recommendation was made in a report prepared for Brookings by Charles A. H. Thomson, propaganda policy officer for the Government at home and abroad during and after World War II.

He said there are many holes in the service, which is now handled by the State Department. Among these he cited "ignorance or misunderstanding of certain legislators concerning the problem as a whole."

But he said that congressional review and criticism of the information program was a good thing in general. He proposed establishment of a "board of visitors" for the service composed of a joint subcommittee of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees.

Thomson said the postwar program got off to a bad start due to misconception of its proper purpose by the Administration, plus congressional failure to let it get going on "sound lines."

His recommendations included the following:

1. The program should drop its "unrealistic formula" of "peace through understanding" and restate its objectives "to support United States foreign policy by giving foreign peoples information about the aims, policies and institutions of the United States, and on other subjects."

2. Better machinery within the State Department to relate information work to foreign policy, including "more systematic and comprehensive interdepartmental relationships for policy questions" among all Federal departments with tasks relating to foreign policy.

3. Put present plans for establishing radio relay facilities overseas into operation as rapidly as possible. Increase frequency of transmissions in the major languages. Improve the output in terms of audience appeal and "strategic orientation." Put more emphasis on the press and publications program.

4. In the film field, provide better liaison with private producers to enhance the handling of important topics in world film output. Increase the library program so there is good coverage of foreign capitals and some coverage of all major provincial centers.

5. Amend the Mundt-Smith Act legalizing the Foreign Information Service to restate the program's objectives, and permit the release of material used to the general public. Abolish the two advisory commissions and replace them with a larger single commission "able to give the Secretary of State comprehensive advice covering the whole problem of how to run information and cultural activities in the interest of the country."

6. Keep close watch on chances for improving freedom of information, and see that "maximum use" is made of private channels in presentation of America's case abroad.

200 Search Jungle For American Girl Missing on Guam

Guam (Monday), Dec. 13 (AP).—A beautiful American girl disappeared mysteriously two nights ago. More than 200 marines, soldiers and island police are searching for her.

She is Miss Ruth Farnsworth, 27, San Francisco. (Pacific Fleet headquarters said she has been described as one of the most beautiful girls on Guam. It said searchers were combing the jungles of northern Guam.)

The girl, a Navy civil service employe for two years, disappeared from the Oriental goods shop where she worked part time.

John W. Arnold, assistant manager of the shop, found the front doors open. Wires to the generator supplying electricity were torn loose. The shop had not been robbed. Nearly $700 in a safe was untouched.

21 Republics Get Costa Rican Plea

By The Associated Press

Costa Rica's plea for aid under the Rio Mutual Defense Treaty was referred direct to the foreign ministers of the 21 American republics last night by vote of the Council of the Organization of American States.

The council agreed to meet again at 3 p. m. Tuesday. This apparently leaves the foreign ministers only 48 hours to make their decision.

The immediate question is whether a meeting of the Foreign Ministers themselves shall be held to consider the Central American nation's complaint of an invasion from Nicaragua.

Action was taken at the end of a 4½-hour extraordinary session of the council during which Costa Rica charged that "armed forces of various nationalities invaded Costa Rica from Nicaragua."

"Watchdog" Group Asked

Delegates reported that in invoking the Rio treaty, Costa Rica specifically requested that her border with Nicaragua be closed and suggested a five-nation watchdog committee be named to supervise it.

Costa Rica suggested that Chile, Brazil, Uruguay, Colombia and Haiti might serve on this body.

The council empowered Chairman Enrique Corominas to request full information from Costa Rica and Nicaragua on the situation.

Uruguay objected to the council's decision to refer the question back home, declaring that the treaty provides that a meeting must be held immediately when one is asked for.

All 21 American republics are members of the council. Cuba and Ecuador were absent today.

"We need military and all kinds of help to throw back the invasion from Nicaragua," Costa Rican Ambassador Mario Esquivel told reporters prior to the session.

Nicaragua Denies Charge

Nicaraguan delegate Altredo Sacasa said the charges are "not true."

The secret session was the first of its kind under terms of the 9-day-old Rio pact.

The Rio pact in general provides that in the case of an armed attack the council can call a meeting of Foreign Ministers by majority vote to decide on measures to be taken. The council can act on its own in serious situations.

The measures include issuance of a cease-fire order, identification of the aggressor, and adoption by two-thirds vote of enforcement measures such as breaking of relations, economic sanctions and military assistance.

Nations, however, can send military aid on request of the attacked nation before the Foreign Ministers meet.

Costa Ricans Stops Invaders

on the Pacific and seized La Cruz, a town of about 2000.

Jose Figueres, head of the Junta, and President-elect Otilio Ulate have appealed for national unity.

The junta secretary, Daniel Oduber, said the Nicaraguan national guardsmen in the invading force were "disguised in flashy blue uniforms." He gave this account of the operation:

The invaders took La Cruz after a clash with the 20-man garrison there. The garrison withdrew in good order bringing their wounded and their communications equipment with them.

"Our trouble is not to contain the so-called rebels," Oduber continued. "They have not made a move in 48 hours, except to fire upon one of our pursuit planes sent out on reconnaissance this morning.

"Our real problem is to keep thousands of men from rushing to the border to repel the invaders.

"We have the entire country under complete control, except for that spot at La Cruz, and there are 30,000 volunteers ready, led by officers who participated in the recent civil war.

"This attempt at invasion is really an act of folly on the part of Calderon Guardia and some of the candidates defeated in last week's election."

Unrest Followed Election

There has been political unrest in Costa Rica since the disputed presidential election of last February. Ulate, National Union Party candidate, received the most votes.

Calderon Guardia, the candidate of the government then in power, charged fraud and a lame duck congress annulled Ulate's election.

Figueres, a supporter of Ulate, led a military uprising which overthrew President Teodoro Picado Michalski last May 8 after several weeks of fighting. As head of the junta, Figueres has governed the country since then.

Ulate's party won 35 of the 45 seats in a constituent assembly in an election last Sunday. The assembly is supposed to decide what to do about the presidential tangle.

Costa Rica, with an area of 23,000 square miles, is smaller than West Virginia. A 1945 census showed a population of 746,535.

Dissolution Of Jap Diet Seems Sure

Tokyo, Dec. 12 (NYHT).—Dissolution of the Japanese Diet (parliament), within the coming week and a general election in late January as desired by Liberal Premier Shigeru Yoshida seemed virtually certain today with the help of the Democratic Party.

Directors of the Democratic Party decided yesterday to ask for a vote of no confidence in the Yoshida government from the House of Representatives Monday after consultation with leaders of other opposition parties.

Democratic politicians are nominally in opposition to the Yoshida Liberals but actually are cooperating with them.

The Democrats voted to brand the government's new wage scale of a basic 5330 yen ($19.75 at the military conversion rate) per month as too low. They will demand that the government accept a scale of 6307 yen ($23.33) for government employes.

The government's whole supplementary budget of more than 70 billion yen ($259,260,000), is based on the lower wage scale.

Yesterday's session of the House of Councillors (the upper chamber) was notable in that Premier Yoshida admitted he had signed a receipt for one million yen ($3700), from Kiyoshi Umemura, a textile manufacturer. He said it was a political donation to his party and personally he did not know Umemura.

Navy Raises 306 to Captain

The Navy Department announced last night that President Truman has approved promotion of 306 commanders to the temporary rank of captain.

The new officers, recommended by a Navy selection board, will attain permanent rank as vacancies occur in the permanent rank structure, the Navy said.

Washington commanders promoted to temporary rank of captain are:

Howle Park Brady, 1801 Foxhall rd. nw.; Robert Rutherford Craighill, 3064 Q st. nw.; Benjamin Butterworth Dowell, 3008 32d st. nw.; Mervin Halstead, 3311 Macomb st. nw.; James Thomas Lay, full address undetermined; Charles Bowling Martell, 3220 19th st. nw.; William Adger Moffett, jr., 1901 Wyoming ave. nw.

U. S. Trade Policy Seen as Causing Argentine Crisis

The United States should adopt a "more liberal" attitude toward imports of Argentine goods, a Foreign Policy Association report said yesterday.

It asserted that the decline in American-Argentine trade has helped bring on a "turning point" crisis in Argentina, which may drive the government headed by President Juan Peron to "desperate measures" in its dealings with neighbor countries.

The report was prepared by Olive Holmes, research associate specializing in affairs of the American republics.

It said the Peron government must be persuaded that it is more profitable to sell a lot of goods at fair prices than to market "a smaller production at exorbitant rates." It added that "it must also be brought to realize that the Argentine economy has something to gain from freer trade."

Board Appointed to Advise Military on Medical Policy

By The Associated Press

The National Military Establishment last night announced formation of a board of prominent doctors to advise the armed forces about medical policies and programs.

One of the first and most difficult questions expected to confront the committee will be:

Must the military draft doctors to get enough for the expanding size of the Army, Navy and Air Force?

Defense Secretary Forrestal named Charles Proctor Cooper, president of the board of trustees of New York's Presbyterian Hospital, to be chairman of the committee and also to serve as his deputy for all armed forces' medical matters.

Among the assignments given the new organization by Forrestal was "the elimination of unnecessary duplications or overlappings in the medical departments of the armed forces" and development of cooperation between military doctors and their civilian colleagues.

Members of the committee include:

Dr. Maurice C. Pincoffs, University of Maryland Medical School, Baltimore; Dr. Edward D. Churchill, professor of surgery, Harvard Medical School, Boston; Dr. Richard D. Meiling, Ohio State University School of Medicine; Dr. Howard A. Rusk, New York University College of Medicine and medical editor of the New York Times; Dr. Paul Titus, Pittsburgh, Pa., director of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology; Dr. Hawley, Dr. Michael De Bakey, Baylor Medical College, Houton, Tex.; Dr. Walter H. Schere, Houston, past president of the American Dental Association; Maj. Gen. Raymond A. Bliss, Army surgeon general; Rear Admiral Clifford A. Swanson, Navy surgeon general; Maj. Gen. Malcom C. Grow, Air surgeon; Dr. Raymond B. Allen, Seattle, president of the University of Washington.

Navy Heralds Self-Starter For Jet, Turboprop Engines

Philadelphia, Dec. 12 (AP).—The Navy announced today "the first successful self-starter for jet and turboprop aircraft engines."

At present these engines are started with cumbersome storage batteries or other heavy auxiliary power units outside the plane.

The radically new self-starter, which can be used on both fighters and bombers, weighs only 88 pounds and can be carried in the planes.

This, the Navy said, will enable jet or turboprop aircraft to use out-of-the-way bases which are not equipped to start their engines.

The turbine engine which powers the starter also can be used for air conditioning, cabin pressurization, heating and de-icing, and to operate other power-consuming devices.

The new starter power source is a gas turbine engine identical in principle with the engine it serves. It uses fuel from the plane's regular tanks.

In announcing the self-starter, the Navy hinted at much larger jet engines. It said the new starter is more powerful than is needed for engines now in service, and will not be installed on aircraft types already announced or in use.

There are two versions of the small multiple-use gas turbine. They took 3½ years and two million dollars to perfect. The Navy said use of the engines is not confined to aircraft.

Guard Can Use 16,000 Officers

By The Associated Press

The National Guard has room for more than 16,000 officers under its large scale expansion program.

And, it was pointed out in a statement yesterday, there are at least seven ways a civilian can get a National Guard officer commission.

The "mobilization day" National Guard strength calls for 38,463 officers in Army units of the Guard. Of these, 21,847 were in Guard Army units by last November 15.

Civilians falling in the following categories may get commissions:

1. Former officers who served at least six months in World War II.
2. Anyone up to 32 years old with at least a year of service on active Federal duty or in the Guard and who completes the 10-series Army correspondent course.
3. Anyone up to 32 who served in the first three enlisted grades or as warrant officer for at least six months of the war.
4. Any man who after at least six months war service was graduated from an accredited college not offering a reserve officers training course or who had insufficient academic time to permit graduation from an advanced ROTC course.
5. Graduates of a recent advanced ROTC course.
6. Any man who was recommended for or offered a commission in the Army during the war but who was taken prisoner of war before the commission could be completed. (Up to the age of 35 at the time the National Guard commission is made.)
7. Civilian specialists such as doctors, dentists and ministers.

Austrian Reds Held Spying for Soviet

Vienna, Austria, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Western intelligence officers today disclosed evidence which they said proved Austrian Communist Party members are fifth column agents spying on western troops for the Soviet Union.

The officers displayed photostatic copies of what they said were confidential, coded orders issued to trusted party officials early this month by the Communist Central Committee. The order said Russia would pay generous bonuses to the rank and file for espionage.

"Special bonuses will be paid by our Soviet friends to comrades who inform on military details such as arms transportation and the strength of western troops in Austria," the orders said.

The documents told comrades "who notice suspicious strangers in the vicinity of Soviet military installations to act at once as such observations should at once be reported to the nearest Soviet Kommandatura."

"It is of particular importance to track down all Fascists employed by the espionage service of the western powers," the orders said.

Stronger Spy Laws Urged

said he felt sure the American people wanted it continued.

In place of the present committee, Huber said a joint Senate-House body should be set up with five members from each end of the Capitol. This committee, he said, would have power to investigate not only communism and other subversive activities but any violation of civil rights.

The present House Un-American Activities Committee, he added, has become discredited to the point that "even Republican friends of mine laugh at its so-called disclosures." He referred particularly to Representative Rankin (D., Miss.), one of its most vocal members.

Would Get No Attention

"Why," he said, "if John Rankin got up on the floor of the House tomorrow and said Earl Browder was heading our way with a time bomb in his hand—and it was true—nobody would pay any attention to him anyway."

Nixon, in suggesting revision of the espionage laws, made only one specific recommendation. He pointed to the Canadian espionage law as an effective safeguard, but he thought it might "go too far" in requiring witnesses to answer questions regardless of self-incrimination.

"I do not believe we could enact such a law in the United States," he said. "But I believe we could prohibit Federal employes from pleading 'self-incrimination' on anything that affects their Federal job."

Lists Specific Points

Holifield included these specific points in his proposed amendment, which he admitted was aimed directly at the Un-American Activities Committee:

1. Require a majority vote to subpena witnesses or documents.
2. Permit witnesses to be advised by counsel.
3. Give persons who feel they have been injured by testimony the right to answer charges orally or in writing, to cross-examine witnesses, and to offer as many as four witnesses in their own behalf.
4. Require the committee, before publishing a report detrimental to any person to notify that person and give him "reasonable opportunity" to be heard.
5. Require at least two members to be present at any closed hearing.
6. Require a majority vote of the full committee to cite any witness for contempt.

He said his amendment would be aimed at the Un-American Activities Committee alone because "in my opinion, it is the only one that has flagrantly abused the subpena power."

Prince Georges Unit to Preach Americanism

A Prince Georges County Association Against Un-American Activities will be formally organized at a meeting Tuesday night, T. Raymond Burch of College Park, a member of the Maryland House of Delegates, said yesterday.

Burch, a member of Governor Lane's State-wide Commission on Subversive Activities, announced that some 25 county organizations have already indicated a desire to join in the proposed association. The meeting, set for 8 p. m. will be held in the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

"Our response has been excellent," he declared. There probably will be at least 50 organizations represented."

Each member group will have three delegates to the association.

Burch said the Hyattsville Lions Club originally named him to head a special committee charged with "initiating" a county-wide organization. Subsequently, last October, a meeting of various county groups was held and a temporary committee on organization was named.

The proposed association will not engage in "witch-hunting," he asserted, but will attempt to "preach and teach Americanism." This is necessary, he said, because "there is so much propaganda on the part of certain of the minority groups to confuse people's minds with things not in keeping with our American traditions."

League Asks Probe Of Communism In N. Y. Schools

By the United Press

The American Jewish League Against Communism yesterday asked the House Labor and Education Committee to reopen its investigation of Communist activities in the New York City public school system.

Rabbi Benjamin Schultz, executive director, asserted that Communists are using the International Workers Order to infiltrate New York schools. He alleged further that an investigation by the New York City Board of Education "was stopped mysteriously in its tracks."

Rabbi Schultz wrote Representative John Lesinsky (D., Mich.), who is scheduled to head the House committee in the new Congress, that the board "is appeasing" Local 555 of the United Public Workers of America (CIO), Representative Vito Marcantonio (A-L., N. Y.), and the I. W. O. itself "by refusing to pursue the investigation they promised us."

Marcantonio is vice president of the International Workers Order.

Grand Jury to View 'Spy' Films Today

New York, Dec. 12 (U.P.).—The Federal grand jury probing Communist espionage, with only three days left before it expires, will scrutinize Monday the original microfilms of stolen State Department documents hidden in a pumpkin by Whittaker Chambers.

The jurors took their first day off since they reconvened to hear new evidence.

Zionist Food Drive To Start Tuesday

Local members of the Zionist Organization of America will meet at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the Jewish Community Center to start a $40,000 "Food for Israel" drive to be headed by A. S. Kay, local businessman.

The local Zionists have promised to send 80,000 pounds of food to Israel. Presentation Tuesday of the first contribution by Joseph Cherner, president of the Cherner Motor Co., will launch the campaign.

Farm Bureaus Due To Hold Hot Session

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The American Farm Bureau Federation will meet in Atlantic City this week in what many expect to be one of the hottest sessions in its history.

Foremost on the program will be a scheduled battle on farm price supports. The present leadership of AFBF is pledged to a sliding scale of price supports—varying from 60 to 90 per cent of parity—as well as for a modernized parity formula which may further decrease the support level.

This program is in for a fight. Already several State bureaus have officially opposed it, notably Southern States centering around Georgia. Other opposition is expected from within some States whose State organizations have supported the lower price support program.

Leaders Back Aiken Plan

The program the bureau leadership supports is the Aiken portion of the Hope-Aiken farm bill, rushed through Congress at 4 a. m. of its closing session last June 20. The Hope portion, maintaining price supports at 90 per cent of parity, is effective until December 31, 1949; the Aiken portion takes effect the next day.

Another subject of controversy is expected to deal with the late political campaign. President Truman's election is generally credited to (1) unexpected support by the farm voters, and (2) the labor vote.

The big labor organizations are claiming credit for their efforts. All supported Mr. Truman. But the Farm Bureau—by far the largest of the farm organizations—can't make such a claim. Although the federation is supposed to be above politics, it nevertheless has thrown its weight around in a lot of elections, and until this year has been able to claim credit for many victories at the polls.

Kline Linked With Dewey

In 1931, angered because of its failure to get the McNary-Haugen bill and other farm measures it had urged from Republican Administrations, the Farm Bureau threw its support to the Democratic Party. It chose for the first time a Southern Democrat as its president, Edward A. O'Neal of Alabama.

O'Neal carried on, leading the organization to its greatest triumphs, both in legislation and membership, until last year. Apparently incorrectly sensing, like many others did, that 1948 was a Republican year, the federation chose an Iowa Republican, Allan B. Kline, as president a year ago. Kline pleaded he and his organization were nonpartisan, but his activities belied his claim. He spent a lot of time around Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's office at Albany. He was quoted by columnists at Dewey conferences. He was frequently mentioned as a possible Secretary of Agriculture in Dewey's Cabinet.

Asked Vote for "Friends"

That wasn't all. In a final pre-election message to his membership, he virtually asked for a Republican Congress—apparently, like everyone else, he thought the presidency was in the bag. His message, entitled "The Responsibility of Citizenship" called upon farm bureau members to vote—for their friends.

"At the close of the last sesion of Congress," he said, in part, "the American Farm Bureau Federation secured passage of the most significant farm legislation in many years. Agriculture discovered some of its staunchest friends.

"This November farmers have a chance to show at the polls their recognition of men sincerely concerned with their welfare. Your ballot is your most concrete means of expressing yourself."

His appeal failed. Even in Iowa, a rock-ribbed Republican State, Kline's home, and the biggest State in the Farm Bureau Federation, the farmers voted aaginst the party that controlled that "last session of Congress" Kline appealed for. At the same time it elected a Republican Governor the Iowa bureau had indorsed. It also defeated Republican George A. Wilson for the Senate. Wilson was a member of the Agriculture Committee that proposed the Aiken bill for lower price supports—the bill Kline termed "most significant farm legislation in many years."

The bureau-sponsored lower price support measure is already promised hard going in Congress. Both incoming chairmen of the congressional Agriculture Committees are opposed to it. Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla.) and Representative Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) have announced they will seek its repeal. The bureau's leadership, in view of the campaign activities, isn't in a strong position to plead their case.

Taft-Hartley Bill on Agenda

Other major topics on the federation's agenda at Atlantic City include:

1. Foreign affairs. Development of a sound international trade program, the proposed international trade organization, the reciprocal trade policy, and international wheat agreement, etc.

2. Labor legislation. The Taft-Hartley bill was supported by AFBF last December, as an "effort," it explains, "to strike a balance between power of labor and industry."

3. Inflation control. "AFBF seeks long-term stabilization of the general price level to avert boom-and-bust," Kline's office states. "One step toward this objective, AFBF believes, would be creation of national monetary commission, to recommend needed changes in fiscal and monetary policy." AFBF supported price control during the war, but opposed its renewal after the war.

4. Security for farmers. Old age and survivors' insurance for farmers will be sought by the Federal Security Administration in the next Congress, using a stamp-book system for farm laborers.

Other issues to be considered are coordination of farm agencies; rural housing; Federal aid to education and farm credit.

Christmas Gifts Sought

Hundreds of St. Elizabeths Hospital patients, without friends or family, will spend a bleak Christmas unless the Red Cross gets help in filling up their Christmas stockings.

Many of them "look forward to Christmas with all the excitement—and the faith—of a small child," according to Mrs. Margaret E. Gardner, Red Cross field director.

Anyone willing to contribute gifts or food for patients here or at Walter Reed and Bethesda Naval Hospitals should call the Red Cross Christmas Project, Republic 8300, Extension 2057.

Another appeal for Christmas donations to help needy Southeast families comes from the Naval Gun Factory Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars together with the Fifth Police Precinct.

Cash gifts, to be used for food and clothing, or toys in all conditions, should be left at the precinct, 3d and E sts. se., during the day, at the VFW post, 730 11th st. se. after 6 p. m.

Regional Plan For Veterinary Schools Urged

Savannah, Ga., Dec. 12 (AP).—A $500,000 veterinary training program was proposed today as the first step in the Nation's pioneer plan for regional education.

Two hundred top Southern educators, after daylong talks, were ready to submit their recommendations Monday to the Southern Regional Council for Education and Southern Governors' Conference.

A commission of experts, headed by Dr. Tom Jones of the University of Georgia, proposed an operating plan for four regional veterinary schools—at Oklahoma A. & M., Auburn, Ala., University of Georgia and Tuskegee Institute for Negroes.

The regional veterinary training plan, the first ready for operation, would assign specific States to each of the four regional schools. The University of Georgia, for instance, would serve Georgia, Maryland, North Carolina, West Virginia and Virginia. Tuskegee Institute would provide services for Negroes from all Southern States.

Each State would be assigned a quota it could send to the regional schools and would pay the regional schools $1000 per student. Pupils attending regional schools would pay the same tuition regardless of their home State.

Virginia would be permitted to send 11 students to regional schools.

Four Dead in Oregon Storm; Cold Front Heads Eastward

By The Associated Press

High winds and swollen streams harried western Oregon yesterday. At least four persons were killed in the area.

Two men were crushed when a tree toppled on their house and two were swept into the Coquille River when a logging dam washed out.

The high winds which came in from the Pacific Ocean driving heavy rains, blew down power and communication lines in a large rural area south and east of Salem.

Rains have fallen steadily for a week, and warm temperatures have been melting deep snows on the western slopes of the Cascade Range. Streams throughout Oregon's western Willamette Valley edged higher. Some were out of their banks in low-lying areas.

Mild temperatures spread over the Great Lakes and Ohio Valley regions yesterday. But a cold front is pushing slowly southeastward, the Weather Bureau said at Chicago, and will chill much of the North Plains and Mississippi Valley areas by Tuesday morning.

Church to Give Offering of $83 To Evicted Family

A collection of $83 for the evicted Underwood family of nine children was taken up at the National City Christian Church Sunday School's Christmas party yesterday afternoon at 1308 Vermont ave. nw.

The collection followed another special offering for a different purpose, after the pastor, the Rev. J. Warren Hastings told of the bleak Christmas faced by the nine small children of George and Katherine Underwood, evicted Friday from their home at 3819 Minnesota ave. ne., to make way for an automobile showroom and service station.

The mother and children are being housed at the Salvation Army's emergency home at 1608 New Hampshire ave. nw., while a home is being sought for the family.

STEEL-

the lowest priced metal

At four cents a pound—the average price today at the mills—steel remains the lowest priced of all metals.

To help combat inflation steel companies have consistently followed a policy of price moderation.

Steel prices did not rise during the war. The moderate increases since the war have by no means kept pace with rising costs.

Steelmaking costs have risen sharply. The costs of scrap, coal, wages and freight, all of which directly influence the cost of making steel, have gone up rapidly.

Maintenance and repair costs of steel companies are at an all-time high. The costs of replacing and improving equipment have in many cases doubled and tripled.

Steel remains low priced at four cents a pound.

1 Elector May Trim Truman Vote to 303

By the United Press

The Nation's next President will be elected formally today, but this time there is little chance of an aftermath of red faces.

Five hundred thirty-one presidential electors, meeting in 48 State capitals, are sure to pick President Truman to succeed himself, confirming the voters' choice at the polls November 2. The only question is the size of his majority.

Mr. Truman captured a majority in States having 304 out of the 531 electoral voes. Normally that would assure him of 304 votes in the "Electoral College," 38 more than the 266 majority needed.

Pledge Is Recalled

But one lone holdout, Preston Parks of Somerville, Tenn., pledged himself before the election not to vote for Mr. Truman "under any circumstances." On the eve of the electoral vote, Parks, a Tennessee elector, told the United Press, "I have nothing to add to my former statement."

If he casts his vote for the States' Rights candidate, Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, it would cut the President's total to 303—still a handy majority.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, the defeated Republican candidate, is assured of 189 electoral votes. Thurmond, who won a majority in five states having a total of 36 electoral ballots, will get 39 if Parks keeps his promise.

A second Tennessee elector who made a pledge similar to Parks', switched after President Truman carried his State and said he would vote for the man from Missouri.

Henry A. Wallace, the Progressive Party candidate. drew a blank in electoral votes along with other minor party candidates.

There have been reports that some of the States' Rights electors might cross over to Mr. Truman at the last minute. But that appeared unlikely. The President himself has bluntly rejected the idea by saying he didn't want and Dixiecrat votes.

Plea for MacArthur

One lone last bid for an electoral switch-over was made by a supporter of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Temas R. Bright, head of the Maryland MacArthur-for-President League, urged the electors to vote for the general on the grounds that "the Nation needs a stronger man than Harry Truman."

The result of the electoral vote may be known by nightfall today, although the official count does not take place until January 6 in the House of Representatives here, at a joint session of Senate and House.

Steel Shortage to Continue

present voluntary plan expires at the end of February.

Commerce Department officials are understood to favor a continuation of the present voluntary program, backed up by mandatory powers in case industry fails to cooperate. They would confine the program to the broad field of national security—defense, transportation, the oil industry, mining, grain-storage bins, etc.

However, the Administration is committed to a low-cost housing program, which would require iron and steel allocations.

Other sections of the Government want to go further. There is talk of asking authority to place limiting orders on steel now going to nonessential or less essential use. Some are urging mandatory controls of the wartime variety, but this is believed unlikely.

Assistant Secretary of Interior C. Girard Davidson, speaking for his department, is urging allocation of steel to build more steel plants.

"I don't believe in making the doling out of scarce articles a permanent public policy," he said in a recent speech. "If we are forced to allocate some items in short supply, we should do it only to make possible the eventual expansion of supply and insure abundance for everybody."

Congress will hear this argument over and over again this winter—and the steel industry's answer to it.

For there are two schools of thought on the subject. One holds that the present shortage is due solely to a large backlog of orders growing out of the near stoppage of production of civilian goods during the war. With plenty of money circulating, demand greatly exceeds supply.

Once industry works off the backlog and gets back to normalcy, the present capacity of American steel plants will be ample to take care of all needs, it is urged.

The steel industry now is operating at an all-time high, and expects to produce about 88 million ingot tons during 1948. It is completing a postwar expansion program this year, which may make possible a 90-million-ton output next year.

On the other hand, the Nation still is growing. Every baby born creates a new demand for steel.—a larger home, more schools, etc—unless the population remains stable. And every month last year, the United States added 220,000 to its population—equivalent to a city the size of Richmond.

Advocates of steel expansion argue that if they are to maintain full employment with an expanding population we should increase our national product by one third or one half in the next decade. This is about the actual rate of increase during the past 30 years.

Because steel production is basic to our economy, they argue, we must expand our steel-making facilities by one third—from 90 to 120 million tons a year by the end of the decade.

Steel men almost universally oppose an increase in facilities at this time. They well remember their experience during the 1930s, when plants operated at 50 per cent of capacity. Most companies were in the red during those years Seven years of fat will be followed by seven lean years, the steel operators argue. Construction of new blast furnaces and rolling mills costs many millions of dollars. And additional coal mines must be purchased, iron ore deposits opened and manganese supplies found. The high-grade, readily-mined ores of the Mesabe Range are running out. We are dependent today on Russia for half of our manganese.

It is estimated that it would cost close to two billion dollars to construct another five-million tons of steel making capacity. Large amounts of steel would have to be diverted to build the new plants and it would be two years before they would go into production.

Davidson and other advocates of greater production call this "depression psychology." They say the quickest way to get into a depression is to fail to expand the output of the product upon which all other industries depend. If the steel companies don't want to finance additional plants, the Government should do so, they urge. Congress must decide what to do about the vital controversy.

Power Supply To Be Short

ment" should be given privately owned utilities to order more equipment where they can in 1950 and 1951.

The Pacific Northwest, under adverse water conditions, and the Tennessee Valley Authority, under any conditions, will have a deficit power supply throughout the next three years, it said. Under good conditions, the Northwest would still have unsafe reserves in 1951.

Some industries in those areas are unable to operate in peak demand periods and new industries will not be able to operate in the Northwest until after 1951, it asserted.

open the conference today with a keynote speech at 10 a. m. in the Congressional Room of the hotel. Later members will hear forum discussions on housing, at 2 p. m., and need for recognition of municipal officials, at 4 p. m.

Home rule for American cities will be discussed at the Tuesday morning session, while municpal plans for civilian defense and major disasters will take up the afternoon session of that day.

Ways to finance municipal government will be the topic of one of the closing session on Wednesday.

The American Municipal Association is the national federation of State leagues of municipalities. It also provides membership for individual cities and national organizations which are primarily municipal in nature. At the present time it represents about 9500 municipalities in the Nation.

Bulwinkle's Condition Continues to Improve

A statement from the Naval Hospital at Bethesda, Md., said yesterday that Rep. Bulwinkle (D. N.C.) "continues to maintain his improved general condition." Hospital aides said he has been suffering from a spinal ailment.

Printers Spurn $5 Pay Hike, Drop Some of Their Demands

AFL printers on the four Washington newspapers yesterday reiterated their stand against acceptance of the publishers' last contract offer.

At the same time, however, they agreed for the first time to authorize their negotiators to drop severance pay, sick leave and pension requests.

The joint action was announced by James J. O'Connor, president of Columbia Typographical Union No. 101 (AFL), following a meeting in Pythian Temple, 9th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

Vote 249 to 188 to Reject

O'Connor said members voted 249 to 188 to reject the management's final proposal, providing a $5 weekly wage rise in all categories and a third week's vacation for workers with five years' service. On November 28, they voted 359 to 14 against accepting the same proposal.

International officers of the union will be notified of yesterday's action today, O'Connor said, and they will be again asked to sanction a strike vote by the local.

Local officers petitioned the International Typographical Union for approval of a strike vote early in November but according to O'Connor, have never received authorization.

In eliminating certain of their demands, workers yesterday simultaneously voted to stand firm on others, O'Connor reported. These included higher wages—from $85 to $100 for the day shift, $90 to $110 for the night shift and $95 to $110 for the lobster (third shift). Other demands which they will not drop, he said, include a reduction in hours for third shift workers and an additional week's vacation for everyone. The publishers will immediately be notified of their position. O'Connor added.

President Attends Dennison Christening

Taking time off from official duties, President Truman attended the christening yesterday of 2½-month-old Robert Lee Dennison, jr., son of Rear Admiral and Mrs. Robert L. Dennison.

The President arrived at 5 p. m. for ceremonies at the Dennison home in the Westchester Apartments, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw. Comdr. William J. Kuhn of the Naval Chaplain Corps officiated. Admiral Dennison is the President's naval aide and formerly commanded the battleship Missouri.

Housing Leaven

In a pointed communication in our letters columns today, J. B. Wyckoff, former president of the Washington Housing Association, suggests that the National Association of Home Builders and the National Association of Real Estate Boards contributed to the Democratic victory in November by stalling housing legislation in the Eightieth Congress. Doubtless neither had any such intention. But by stubbornly resisting a moderate housing bill, they brought a widespread public reaction against the Congress which failed to pass that legislation.

When the new Congress assembles, it will again have to face the task of passing a good, comprehensive housing bill, with, in order to make it effective, allocations of materials or control of capital issues, or both. It will need the help of the home builders and real estate boards as well as other groups. We are hopeful that a more enlightened attitude will prevail and that general housing legislation will not be sidetracked because it necessarily includes provisions for public as well as private housing. It is true, of course, that a large volume of private residential building is going forward. That is a great advantage to every community which is suffering from acute housing shortages. But virtually all of this housing goes to families in the higher-income brackets, although the most acute cases of overcrowding and exposure to unhealthful conditions are in the lower-income brackets. As John Ihlder said the other day, "the situation shades down from the annoyance of living in cramped quarters . . . to stark and bitter tragedy."

Here in Washington families are living in cellars, tin garages, boarded-up porches and overcrowded single rooms. More than 18,000 applicants are besieging the National Capital Housing Authority for decent living quarters, and this is less than half the number of families living in substandard dwellings. In our opinion, this aspect of the housing problem must be given attention. No housing within reach of these low-income families is now being built. While encouragement is being given to housing research, to the development of new building materials, modernization of codes and insurance of mortgages to aid private building, a leaven of public housing to relieve the tragic pressure on the slums is desperately needed. Is it too much to ask that the building industry itself take note of the handwriting on the wall and help to correct this lack of balance?

British Bribery Probe

The British inquiry into charges of bribery involving government officials has already resulted in the resignation of the Parliamentary Secretary of the Board of Trade, John W. Belcher, who admits the receipt of gifts from Sidney Stanley, a promoter of big football gambling pools. The names of other high-ranking officials, also friends of Mr. Stanley, have cropped up in the course of the investigation, with resultant damage to the prestige of the Labor government. Denials by the football pool promoter of any intention to buy favors with gifts, and supporting denials by Mr. Belcher that he has ever consciously done anything irregular to repay Mr. Stanley, were, of course, to be expected. The fact remains that any public official who accepts gifts from private citizens whom he is in a position to favor is guilty of unethical conduct and unfit to hold an office of trust.

The foes of the Labor government will, no doubt, exploit the present scandal for partisan purposes. But it is much more probable that the real cause of the trouble is to be found in the present system of government controls that subjects officials to tremendous temptation to grant special favors to those who can bestow favors in return. The current investigation grew out of charges of graft in connection with export-import licenses. It was rumored that money judiciously distributed among certain officials would enable Mr. Stanley to get a license to import amusement machinery. Bribery charges in connection with applications for building licenses are also among the subjects listed for investigation.

The Achilles heel of any controlled economy lies in official vulnerability to illegitimate pressure, although it is something of a shock to discover that British officialdom, whose reputation for integrity is unexcelled, is tainted by this universal weakness. Moreover, it has to be remembered that living conditions in impoverished present-day Britain make it difficult for weak men in public life to maintain the rigid standards of fair and honest dealing set by their predecessors who had more ample incomes and could live in a style that fit their positions and their responsibilities. The testimony of Mrs. Belcher, who says that her monthly household allowance is only $160 and that she does her own washing, is reported to have aroused sympathy for her accused husband. At the same time it gives rise to a surmise that Mr. Belcher might have rejected both the friendship and the gifts of a gambling czar if he had been able to support a more comfortable domestic establishment.

Capital Dilemma

It is well for exposers of conditions in Washington to bear in mind the kind of community they are dealing with. Washington is a Southern city in its traditions and mores, a derelict city in its political organization, and the most important city in the country in the responsibility devolving upon it. Without a doubt the skeleton in our closet is the racial discrimination practiced in our public domain. A research committee of the National Committee on Segregation in the Nation's Capital has taken out the skeleton for the entire Nation to look at. It is not an edifying spectacle, even without the committee's effort to deck out the report, non-researchlike, with stage effects, and its consequent tendency to error and extravagance.

What is most discouraging is that in the last half-century or so the color line has spread and has become more distinct. Between 1872 and at least 1889 Washington had a law requiring equal rights for Negroes in hotels, restaurants, barber shops, bath houses, and "icecream saloons." In some respects the statute must have been observed much later, for Miss Helen Hayes has often contended that when she grew up in Washington, she learned her theater in a nonsegregated National Theater. At present, however, that theater is exhibiting movies instead of stage productions because the management will not admit Negroes. As for other community facilities, we dare say that Bishop Dun in all likelihood would be shown the door if he had to take one of his Negro ministers inside one of the hotels or restaurants that Washington patronizes. The facts, except for this history, are not new to Washingtonians, though the entire pattern as put down in this report will have an impact of newness on our local citizenry.

Usually the story of the way we treat our colored population is contrasted with the democracy we profess. No such contrast can be made in the Capital City. There is no democracy here—in the sense of a representative system. Under this head the report says that officially "we are run as a benevolent dictatorship by three commissioners appointed by the President" and unofficially by the "friends of court," meaning the dominant real estate, commercial and financial interests who have "planned" segregation. This side of the picture is not overdrawn as a criticism of the system under which our million-odd community is governed. An oligarchy is in charge which operates virtually without checks, and it breeds apathy and complacency. Abuses are thus allowed to go uncorrected—abuses of all kinds, let alone the abuse of an aggravated segregation.

This is not to say that even if there were home rule in Washington, Jim Crow would disappear. Far from it. A political philosopher has said that no reform is possible unless there is a predisposition in society to receive it. And no such predisposition is discernible in present-day Washington. Aside from prejudice and fear, equities of all kinds are involved in the existing pattern of the color line, as, for instance, in the maze of race covenants in housing. A property-holder may be quite free of racism, yet be irked by the abolition of this "protection" when he realizes the depreciation in value of his property. That is human nature. However, home rule would certainly put the responsibility for the state of things spelled out in this report directly upon the community itself. Washingtonians would be under a twin pressure—to create a finer community and to make of Washington a model city and Capital. We at any rate feel sure that with responsibility would come improvement.

We ourselves don't take refuge in the argument for gradualness and education as the only weapons against Jim Crow. Reliance on that argument, as we see in the fact that retreat has been faster than reform, means do-nothingness. In other words, a real and decisive start has to be made against segregation. Here the course is made clear in the researchers' findings. Despite Federal orders to the contrary, discrimination prevails in all Federal departments in varying forms, usually as a matter of accepted practice. Now this is the country's business, and if it were corrected a spur would be applied to the local community. Another duty that the country should undertake is to assist its Capital in regaining authority over its own local affairs and thus in living up to its responsibilities. If this had been stressed in the report, it would have testified to a local "feel," which in this and other particulars is lacking.

We mention the evident defects in the report in no parochial spirit. There is no resentment on our part against "outside" criticism. On the contrary, it is salutary to see ourselves as others see us, even though this report paints us at our unsightliest, even though tone and writing err on the side of hyperbole.

Electing A President

Most Americans, if asked whether Harry S. Truman has been elected as the next President of the United States, would probably answer "yes." Yet the correct answer is "no," because last November the people voted for electors who alone are empowered under the Constitution to cast ballots directly for presidential candidates. The electors who won out in the recent contest will assemble today in the capitols of the 48 States to go through the motions of registering their choice, and their votes will be counted next January when the ballot boxes will be opened and the results announced to members of Congress.

It is well to be reminded that the present indirect system of voting has resulted in the elevation to the Presidency of men receiving fewer popular votes than their defeated opponents, owing to the fact that all the electoral votes of individual States go to the winning party. Furthermore, in some States electors are free agents. They can, if they choose, vote for a candidate who is not the choice of the party whom they supposedly represent. Only custom and party discipline restrain their freedom of choice. The talk of shifting Thurmond-pledged electors to Mr. Truman reveals the dangers of relying on electors to cast their ballots for candidates of the voters' choice. Finally, there is the ever-present possibility that a tie electoral vote may throw the selection of a President into the House of Representatives. So while the public can afford to ignore the balloting that is going on today, it cannot afford to regard the electoral voting procedure as a futile and rather silly ceremony.

First Call On The Films

After a week of resistance, the Committee on Un-American Activities has yielded to the logic of the special grand jury's demand for Whittaker Chambers' notorious microfilms. To that extent it has recognized the prior claim of the grand jury to all evidence concerning the theft of State Department documents for Communist agents. Unfortunately, there is no indication that the committee has yet abandoned its scramble to skim off the cream of the evidence for public consumption before the grand jury can act.

"It is utterly silly," said Representative Mundt the other day, "for two coordinating branches of the Government to get involved in a running debate over who is going to talk to a witness." We wholly agree. Mr. Mundt went on to assert, however, that his group of congressional investigators would "continue to try to discover, to disclose and to punish disloyal employes who stole secret documents with the purpose of delivering them to foreign Communist agents." His statement seemed to imply that the Committee on Un-American Activities ought to have precedence over the grand jury and that its purpose is to invade the province of the judiciary. It is reassuring to note that saner counsel prevailed, at least so far as submitting the films to the grand jury is concerned, but that does not minimize the seriousness of the clash so long as the committee looks upon itself as a kind of super grand jury.

Apparently the committee will never learn that its proper function ends with the disclosure of information for the enlightenment of Congress and the public. In releasing some of the stolen documents filmed for Mr. Chambers, for example, it has rendered a useful service. This newspaper thinks that all the other documents should be made public, excepting only those which would reveal the names of confidential informers. Obviously if such names were to be released the United States would find it difficult to obtain secret information abroad in the future. If the committee would confine itself to this work and to tightening up the law against espionage there would be no ground for complaint.

The case of the stolen documents has clearly passed beyond the stage of merely bringing unknown conspiracies to light. With the discovery of actual documents bearing upon our national security in the hands of a former Communist, documents first brought to light in connection with Alger Hiss' slander suit against Mr. Chambers, the chief concern is to punish those who are guilty of this crime, so far as that is possible. Only the grand jury can initiate these proceedings.

To date the Committee on Un-American Activities has hindered and embarrassed the grand jury by taking testimony from witnesses who have appeared before the grand jury and making that testimony public. It thus serves as a tip-off to other witnesses who have not yet appeared before the grand jury. Regardless of how negligent the Department of Justice has been with respect to the case in the past, it ought now to have every cooperation in getting facts before the grand jury. It is neither the committee nor the department that should have first consideration but the national interest in clearing up this scandal in the proper way.

CITY VIGNETTE—HORN AT 4 A. M.

Like a stone tossed
Into a wind-free silken pool,
A horn blares out suddenly
In the vast dark lake of city silence,
Touched off by an auto-nerve, short-circuited.

And sound-eddies lap
Against the shores of dreams
And edge into ear-coves
Of unreverberating sleep . . .

Tugged from the subconscious
Supererogation of heroics
To craven consciousness,
We run terror-stricken
Through the streets of memory,
Rehearing all the siren cries
Of an air-raid world . . .

And as the hammers of our fear
Pound heavily upon the anvils of the heart,
The mind in recognition
Strips all horror from the sound . . .

Then the smooth nylon silence returns,
And the level languor of sleep
And the unheard decibels of dreams.

Housing In The Election

The National Association of Home Builders, and to a considerable extent the National Association of Real Estate Boards, should not be overlooked in the part they played in reelecting President Truman and electing a Democratic Congress.

In claiming and deserving credit for completely stalling, in the Eightieth Congress, any legislation to provide public housing in order to insure their own monopoly on home building they aroused the opposition of all the clients they cannot serve and all the friends of those clients.

Their expensive lobbying campaign during the past four years was temporarily successful and in a totalitarian state would probably have gone unchallenged. But the democratic process, which works slowly, provided the lesson for them that too infrequently comes to monopolists.

I fear it is true that our Government policy is considerably directed by pressure groups. But when the people determine that a group is operating primarily in the selfish interest of a few and against the interest of the many (and consequently of the whole country) the people assert themselves at the polls, as they did last month.

United States home builders have been doing a good job in building houses for all those whose pocketbooks they can reach. They have done no job for those who have little money for shelter. They are frequently generous in their local and foreign charities. But their determination to kill charitable public housing was ill-conceived, illogical and unnecessary. As individual members of the association they followed blindly the wrong leaders, as many union men have done until someone called a halt

If the recent election doesn't lead these two great organizations to new elections of their own, and to new and broader thinking, I will be surprised at the lack of enterprise in their membership.

Spanish Church

In his letter of December 6, Dr. Roderick Wheeler denies that the present Spanish administration or Falange "can accurately be called Fascist." He defines it as "a popular (sic) authoritarian state . . . inspired in Spanish and Catholic traditions." He says "it is injurious to state that the church aids the growth of fascism."

All one can say is that if Franco isn't Fascist, he certainly behaves like one. None can deny that he is the dictator of an authoritarian regime which received the support of Hitler and Mussolini, and which, in its concentration camp methods, has matched their ruthlessness. As to the Catholic Church, Dr. Wheeler himself relates the Vatican encouragement of, and amity with Spain since 1937. If, as he states, the church did condemn nazism and communism in 1937, it did not condemn fascism, but on the contrary concluded a highly satisfactory working arrangement with it.

Moreover, one tries in vain to recall any Vatican support for the cause of freedom in the early war years. Perhaps the hope then was that a similar concordat could be reached with Hitler. Until the tide of war definitely turned in freedom's favor, it was not impossible that western Europe could become a "popular authoritarian state inspired in (Nazi-Fascist) and Catholic traditions."

The church is treading on dangerous ground in trying to foster recognition of Franco, and should not raise its familiar cry of persecution if it receives a democratic answer.

"Blood And Loyalty"

Such insulting attempts to strait-jacket the thoughts of Government employes as your editorial of December 2 reveals do little less than chill the blood of all who believe in our basic American freedoms.

Were such revelations not spelled out occasionally in a still free American press, it would be impossible to believe that repressions and intimidations of this sort exist under our so-called American democracy.

The fact that, to hold his job, a Government employe must yield to the prejudices of his inquisitors and must express opinions acceptable to them, despite scientific facts to the contrary, is repugnant to our national ideals.

Of what bearing an employe's opinion on white versus Negro plasma in the Red Cross blood bank be to his loyalty to the United States? And why are our bureaucratic witch-hunters permitted to ask such questions?

Decision On China

Few will agree that the situation now existing in China is a happy one. Confusion here will not solve the problem there and apathy now may prove costly later. The importance of the struggle in Asia is recognized and we must not be paralyzed by our own indecision.

Every possible course of action must be examined and a policy must be established on the basis of rational thinking. If the only alternatives are a Kremlin-dominated China or the possibility of a Chiang-ruled, corrupt government, wastefully maintained by a steady flow of American dollars, let us realize that these are the alternatives.

If we find that there are other possibilities, these must be considered. If there is evidence that the Nationalist government is now so desperate in its need of American aid that it will agree to stringent American supervision over all future credits and shipments, then we must study this possibility in arriving at our decision on policy. What is needed, and needed quickly, is decision on our part—a realistic decision based on a thorough examination of all possible courses of action.

If we allow a large segment of our foreign policy to be framed purely by our lack of decisiveness, we will be abandoning control over our own future and handing it over to certain rulers abroad not plagued by such hesitancy and indecisiveness.

Sugar Pressure

As the Washington representative of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, including among its members the sugar workers of Hawaii, I had an intimate acquaintance with the sordid legislative history of the Sugar Act of 1948.

The Washington Post's editorials, both during the period of debate on the bill and on November 21 on the occasion of the hearings before the Secretary of Agriculture on domestic consumption estimates for 1949, did much to reveal the full impact of this deplorable instance of pressure-group law-making.

Section 202-E of the Sugar Act of 1948 provides that upon determination by the Secretary of State that a foreign country "denies fair and equitable treatment to the nationals of the United States," there be "withheld or withdrawn from that country any increases in its share of United States domestic sugar requirements above the quota allotted it under the Act. This is simply an attempt by certain interests in this country—not even remotely connected with the sugar industry—to use the administration of the Sugar Act as a club in their financial negotiations with the Republic of Cuba.

In the course of the debate on the Sugar Act of 1948 (H. R. 4075) in the House on July 9, 10 and 11, 1947 not a single reference was made to Section 202-E. The committee version of the bill was amended on the floor only to include the labor protections that had been part of the sugar law since the Jones-Costigan Act of 1934. Congressman John Flannagan (D., Va.), minority leader of the House Agriculture Committee, conducted a vigorous floor fight against both the sugar-industry authors of the bill and its purposes.

In the Senate, however, practically the entire debate on July 25, 1948, was concerned with Section 202-E and nothing else. The bill, S. 1584, was sponsored by 34 Senators including such diverse figures as Senator Vandenberg, Taylor, Ball and Pepper.

Section 202-E could apply only to Cuba. Cuba is the only sugar area with production large enough to fill any deficits in the quotas of United States cane and beet areas. But this deficit allocation to Cuba is qualified by a debt-collection clause. Incidentally, it was reported during the debate in Congress that these American claims amounted to some nine million dollars, and were chiefly for engineering services performed during the regime of the director Machado in the early 1930's.

In the Senate debate both the chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Senator Vandenberg, and the minority leader of that committee, Senator Connally, spoke out vigorously against Section 202-E. Senators Langer, Pepper and McMahon were equally outspoken in opposition to using the Sugar Act as a club for collecting bills. All agreed that the normal diplomatic channels existing between the two sovereign countries should be utilized to settle any claims of American nationals.

When asked for the source of Clause 202-E, Senator Millikin, floor leader for the passage of the bill, vaguely replied that the State Department had "approved" the paragraph. Senator Chavez' amendment to strike out Section 202-E was defeated, 42 to 40.

A significant colloquy between Senators Millikin, Chavez and Langer (Congressional Record July 25, 1948, p. 10410) makes clear that the Sugar Act of 1948 does not and cannot prescribe wage standards for sugar workers in Cuba. On the other hand, the law does provide that the United States has the right to tell Cuba whether certain claims are just and whether they should be paid without allowing the government of Cuba anything to say about it. Such arbitrary and unwarranted imposition upon the sovereignty of another nation is not a happy example of United States respect for the rights of other countries. Such clauses have not been included in legislation affecting other foreign countries.

The Anachronist

JOURNAL OF FORGOTTEN DAYS: 1934-1935, by Albert Jay Nock. (The Henry Regnery Co., $3.50.)

The late Albert Jay Nock was one of those men who find themselves inhabiting the wrong epoch. It would be difficult to say whether the tragedy is greater in the case of those who are born too soon or those who are born too late. Anyway, Mr. Nock was by temperament, education and philosophic bias a man of the eighteenth century, a champion of its most generous ideals and a representative of its most characteristic virtues, and for this reason one of the most sympathetic and instructive interpreters of the mind of Jefferson. But Mr. Nock, who was born in 1873, the year of the great Stock Exchange panic, and died a few days after the bombardment of Hiroshima, saw the final extinction of the Jeffersonian tradition. His life was concurrent with the decay and death of almost everything else that he valued in American civilization. He had abandoned himself to a sardonic pessimism, and his countrymen to the slavery he felt they had invited and therefore deserved.

This, of course, involved a repudiation of the premise by which most of his own political and social principles were sustained, that is to say faith in the rational order of the universe and in the beneficence of nature in general and of human nature in particular. He allowed himself to wonder whether the greater part of mankind is human after all, and whether Calvin's view of the matter was not sounder than Jefferson's or Rousseau's. It is possible, of course, that Mr. Nock's view of his world was clouded in his later years by some personal bitterness, for he was certainly an undervalued man. He was one of the most admirable writers of his generation, the master of an essay style comparable to the best in the language, a man of learning in the horizontal rather than the vertical meaning of the term, and with all his prejudices an engaging critic of manners. Yet his books attracted relatively few readers; and the Freeman, which under his editorship set a standard of journalism never equalled, perished when its subsidy was exhausted.

The present journal, which for some reason escaped Mr. Nock's general destruction of his papers before his death, is a continuation of the one that he published 14 years ago under the title, A Journal of These Days. It covers a period of about 17 months at the depth of the Great Depression in the United States and in the early phase of Hitler's power in Europe. Beneath all the fierce ideological conflicts of the time, Nock, the passionate individualist, the philosophic anarchist, the physiocratic disciple of Henry George, saw a single universal phenomenon. This was the strangulation of society by the state, which was steadily extending its tentacles into every area of life, here by grandiose bribery and corruption, there by naked force. Fascism, Nazism, Stalinism, New Dealism were merely so many phases or manifestations. The movement was really irresistible because of the habits and attitudes inculcated into two successive generations. Americans, for example, had so long endured "the tyranny of employers, labor-leaders, advertisers, bureaucrats, newspapers, bankers, lawmongers, gangsters, religious fanatics, police, political boses," that they had already acquired the psychology of serfdom and were "incapable of realizing that any other state of mind is either possible or desirable." They had thus lost the moral resources necessary to combat the evil. At one point he was inclined to put the blame on industrialization and urbanization, observing that only peasant societies are capable of producing large numbers of men of integrity and culture; at another to blame the universal literacy which has degraded the multitudes by depriving them of their defense against the pernicious rubbish that pours from the presses; but at yet another point he wondered if the principal damage cannot be traced to the fateful error of putting the elementary education of youth into charge of women. The schoolmarms, he feared, had feminized the national mind to the extent of making it no longer capable of distinguishing expediency and right.

Not only in politics but everywhere Mr. Nock observed this sullen presage of decay; in the decline of pulpit eloquence in the Protestant Episcopal Church; in the popular indifference to the Morro Castle disaster in contrast to the general sorrow over the Titanic; in the appalling ignorance of book and dramatic reviewers; in the "larvated pornography" that passed for literature; in the fashion in women's hats; in the transformation of hotel-keeping in Europe from an hereditary art into a business. When Mr. Nock was invited to lecture upon some classical subject at Bryn Mawr College, the subject he chose was the career of the Athenian demagogue Eubulus, whom he seems to have considered the Franklin Roosevelt of antiquity. But his greatest lament was for the decline of language. English, he thought, was already a dead tongue; it had been replaced by a pidgin dialect, useful enough for the cruder forms of communication, but incapable of the finer shades of meaning. For this, too, he blamed popular literacy, and the influence of journalists and advertising writers and of a class that he designated as the "immigrant geniuses," by which he seems to have meant professors and other intellectuals of foreign birth or parentage. It was evidently his notion that no one is really capable of writing English whose ear has not been habituated to it from earliest childhood.

Pumpkin Melody

A Communication

THE RECENT disclosures about Mr. Chambers and his pumpkin have raised several questions in my mind.

1. The outstanding fact is that the Un-American Activities Committee was on its last legs before this affair broke. Its chairman was under indictment for cheating the Government in a particularly shabby way, for there is nothing more dispicable than when a man in a position to hand out jobs takes rakeoffs from employes. Other members of the committee had been defeated by the voters on November 2. The unimpressive nature of the disclosures during the life of the committee was becoming evident to the public. The President was hostile to the committee.

Therefore, it was very likely that the House at its next session would abolish the committee or at least drastically curtail its appropriations. Furthermore, even if the committee continued, rules of procedure were likely to be imposed which would greatly diminish the despotic power which its members have enjoyed exercising for so long.

Is it possible that the real purpose of the present activities of the committee is, not to save the country, but to save the committee?

2. Does the Un-American Committee deserve much credit for the discovery of the abstracted Government documents? The committee has now been on the front page for some days and the public has received the impression that its members deserve great praise for unearthing a big plot. In fact, the committee was not the initiator.

It was Marbury, as counsel for Hiss, who brought to light the fact that Chambers possessed abstracted documents. So far as the public knows, the committee simply followed the lead of a private lawyer when it obtained two weeks later the second set of documents in the form of microfilms. If it had not been for Marbury, the committee would apparently have discovered nothing.

3. WHY did the committee not learn about these documents long ago? Their possessor was a key witness for the committee last summer and its members must have been in frequent conference with him.

This presents a dilemma. Either the committee did not learn about the documents until recently, in which case they are a stupid bunch of investigators and entitled to very little credit for belatedly unearthing them. Or else the committee did know about the documents all during the summer, in which case its members are grossly delinquent in leaving secret papers in the possession of a private citizen for five or six months without apparently reporting the matter to the State Department or to the Department of Justice.

4. Why were the microfilms obtained from Chambers by the Un-American Committee and not by the Department of Justice? As soon as Marbury learned about the first set of documents, he at once reported the matter to the Department of Justice. That party is naturally charged with the pursuit of information when it has become evident that a serious violation of law has been committed. Nevertheless the search for further documents in the possession of Chambers was not made by the Department of Justice. Instead, the task was undertaken by a congressional committee which has no direct connection with Federal crimes.

5. IF these documents really contained top secrets, why has the matter been handled in a manner which facilitates the spreading of knowledge about them? If everything had been kept inside the Department of Justice and referred to a grand jury, which is the natural method when a serious crime is involved, then the documents would have been seen only by sworn officers of the Government who have been habituated to secrecy. In view of the readiness with which members of the Un-American Committee have issued statements to the public in the past, they are certainly not distinguished for their ability to keep a secret.

Why then were these vital matters left in the hands of a bunch of blabbing Congressmen? Since the microfilms left the pumpkin they must heve been seen by dozens of people. The newspapers speak about handwriting experts. Reporters hint at reading enough of the documents to know that they are hot stuff. What has been the purpose of this loose handling of papers, which could easily have been kept in much greater safety if the ordinary methods of criminal proceedings had been followed?

6. Is it possible that most of the documents are not of much importance or that many of them are not genuine? I imagine that this is not true of some of the papers, especially those discovered by Marbury, but it is a conceivable inference from the delay in getting the microfilms and the subsequent way in which they have been accessible to a considerable number of people.

7. IS IT possible that the microfilms were made very recently? Now that the documents are much outdated, it might have been possible for Chambers to get hold of them last summer or this autumn when he saw that the public was losing belief in his stories. Are there perhaps scientific methods for dating the raw film which was used or even for dating the actual photography?

8. Is not Chambers completely discredited now? His own testimony shows that he double-crossed his former Communist associates. If he did not tell the committee about these documents during his close contact with it last summer, then he double-crossed the committee. It is hard to see that anything he says against Hiss should be believed. Before this, I was unable to understand why the statements of a former Communist are given 100 per cent credit by many people who think that all Communists are the scum of the earth.

9. Is there not something fishy about the whole affair? Recall Titus Oates and the Popish plot, and also the Piggott letters in the London Times implicating Parnell in Irish killings which were later proved to be forged. (Incidentally it is an amusing coincidence that both Thomas Parnell and Parnell Thomas were politicians who came a cropper.) Remember the Red menace of 1919-20 and the way in which the agents of Mitchell Palmer kept unearthing stores of weapons and formulas for bombs in out-of-the-way places?

These discoveries of romantic plots often proceed on the installment plan. First comes an initial bunch of disclosures. Then the public begins to lose interest, and so a second bunch, still more dramatic, is ladled out. And so on, like the chapters of a serial in a detective magazine. Like the Fat Boy in Pickwick, the informer is determined "to make your flesh creep" and his successive efforts to that end become increasingly frantic.

THERE IS something similar in the emergence of one piece of startling news after another, just when the committee was getting discredited. Insofar as the documents and microfilms are genuine, Chambers must have known all about them last summer. They surely had a very important bearing on the issue then stressed by the committee—whether Chambers or Hiss was a perjurer. Yet that issue was left hanging on trivial controversies about the sale of a battered Ford, etc.

The story has got off to a tame start with Chapter I. So Chambers produces Chapter II, the documents at the pretrial hearing. Unfortunately these go to the Department of Justice and not through the committee to the public. So a fortnight later comes Chapter III, the microfilms. Then the committee contributes Chapter IV, Nixon's flight from Panama. Was not the probability of a hearing known to the committee before Representative Nixon left for Panama, so that his return on a Government plane which took him off his ship is simply deliberate melodrama?

May not most of this be adapted from one of the German romances which Chambers has been translating? Despite the strong policies in favor of undisclosed pretrial proceedings and of secret grand jury hearings, the committee is shoveling out evidence on one side and issuing conclusions of its members about the nature of documents. This unseemly haste to catch the market for romance has no relation to the normal processes of justice.

Mrs. Roosevelt Returns, Citing Progress of U. N.

New York, Dec. 12 (U.P.)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, United States delegate to the United Nations, arrived here tonight by plane from Paris where she had been attending the U. N. General Assembly meeting.

Mrs. Roosevelt said she believed the U. N. delegates "managed to cover a great many important points." She specifically mentioned the Assembly's passage of the resolution outlawing genocide and the declaration of human rights.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Truman Will Fight

PRESIDENT TRUMAN seems to have made up his mind to cut the Southern Democrats in Congress down to size. The tactics of this extremely tricky fight are high on the agenda of a series of meetings the President means to hold, before the session, with Vice President Alben Barkley and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn.

The President's decision was not reached without much pulling and hauling between his advisers, among whom there are many, like Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder, who do not love bold courses. The intent is clearly to indicate to the labor and liberal groups that their ampaign support of Truman was not wasted.

The truth is that these groups are already beginning to resent the President's failure to clean his own administrative house, and give it a gleaming coat of New Deal stucco. (When one of their leaders urged Truman to do this, he is said to have answered crisply, "I think we're doing fine as we are.") But if the President will not reorganize his own Administration, he will at least seek to diminish the hated influence of the Southerners in Congress. And if he will not abandon such conservative friends as Snyder, he will at least formulate tax policy without much regard for the Treasury's embittered opposition to an excess profits tax.

SUCH ARE FRAGMENTS of the new pattern that is now emerging. The President's singular simplicity of method, and his remarkable personal nerve, are typified in this determination to put through a gigantic program of foreign and domestic legislation and stand his own party on its aged head, both in the same session of Congress.

There are several methods of doing the specific job the President has in mind. The simplest is to purge the Dixiecrats. The 100 per cent congressional Dixiecrats, who overtly supported the presidential candidacy of Gov. J. Strom Thurmond, are Eastland of Mississippi in the Senate, and in the House, Cox, Davis, Rivers, Battle, Hobbs, Boyking, Rankin and Williams. It will be entirely logical to deprive them of their standing and seniority as Democrats, removing the raging obstructionist Cox, for example, from his place on the House's all-powerful Rules Committee

Or the House Rules Committee and the House Ways and Means Committee, the other stronghold of Southern congressional power, can simply be packed, by altering or enlarging their memberships. Or the House rules and the rules of the Democratic caucus can be changed.

AMONG THESE alternative methods, the President is understood to prefer purging, or committee-packing, or a combination of the two. His reason obviously is that after the Southern conservatives have been broken, he wants his party in Congress to be manageable and responsive.

If Speaker Rayburn goes along with the President's wishes (which he may well stoutly resist), he too will undoubtedly prefer packing or purging, for the same natural reason.

The objective is to give tangible expression to the fact that labor and liberal votes now make up the Democratic majorities at the polls.

The prime movers in this new effort are the two energetic California members, Representatives Helen Gahagan Douglas and Chester Holifield. Mrs. Douglas has been circularizing the House freshmen, while Holifield has returned early to recruit shock troops among the older members. The movement now comprises, besides Mrs. Douglas and Holifield, such members as Biemiller, Huber, Price, Kline, Kerwin, Granger, Carroll, Buchanan, Sadowsky, Eberharter and the aged Adolph Sabath.

With or without the President's leadership, the fight will be very hard. So for that matter will be other fights now in prospect, such as the fights over Truman's planned controls and tax programs. All sorts of accusations will be hurled at the President in the heat of these future combats. But whether or no they agree with the President, and whether or no they approve his not overly sophisticated tactics, fair-minded men will at least have to admit that he is earnestly trying to carry out his mandate from the electorate.

MEMO TO: Myself
The Union Trust pays 1½% on savings

A lot of Washingtonians have noted that the Union Trust pays 1½% on savings deposits up to $2,500 and 1% on sums over $2,500—and have brought their money to us. They think it's only prudent to take advantage of the extra $10 to $25, or more, added each year in interest to the accounts of regular Union Trust savers.

They find this bank a convenient and friendly place to keep their checking accounts, too. There's a minimum of waiting at our new, efficient teller counters at the 15th and H Streets office—and our two locations in the heart of downtown Washington are easy to reach.

Why not drop in today and let us tell you of the many ways in which the Union Trust Company can serve you?

2 WAYS TO HAVE MORE MONEY IN THE BANK...

1. Develop the habit of saving something out of each pay check you receive.
2. Keep your savings at the Union Trust, where your money earns 1½% up to $2,500 —1% over this amount.

Chuckles Pepper 'Quiet Weekend'

By Richard L. Coe

"QUIET WEEKEND," at the Hippodrome, is one of those easygoing British films that takes its amusement from everyday living. Its title tells the story.

This cheerful little film is adapted from one of two "Quiet" plays written by Actress Esther McCracken. Her first was "Quiet Wedding," which appeared on the London stage 10 years ago and was subsequently made into a merry little film. "Quiet Weekend" first appeared on the London stage in 1941 and was a wartime hit that ran for over a thousand performances. Just when this film version which employs many of the play's performers, was made isn't clear, but it must have been several years ago.

Miss McCracken's film illustrates once again what the discerning eye can do with unassuming material. Her characters are homey Londoners who have a small cottage for weekend relaxation. Mother, as usual, does all the work and planning; everyone has his pet projects for country living and everyone invites both house guests and dinner guests with informal elan.

Father likes to fish. His pal, the local justice of the peace, becomes a poacher for the first time in his restrained life. Son is involved in an emotional triangle; one of his ladies is a highlife Mayfair kitten, the other is an old friend who's grown up without his realizing it. Daughter brnigs along her husband and baby. The handy man lands in jail and the maid of all work has her hands full.

Detailing the things that happen to these pleasant folk doesn't do justice to how Miss McCracken spins her yarn. The picture begins slowly, indeed, it is leisurely all the way through and there are some vacant spots, but you'll find a good many moments that will give you the chuckles.

What makes it so pleasant—and no doubt accounts for its enormous wartime popularity as a play—is its unassuming zest for the unimportant. Nothing stirring, nothing epochal, no thugs, no blood-letting, no preaching, no genuflexions to persons whose names cause a "gosh-gee-whiz." Just bland good humor.

SEVERAL COMPLAINTS, both written and verbal, have come this way about the ending of "The Eternal Return" at the Dupont . . . This is Jean Cocteau's more or less modern version of the Tristan-Isolde legend and a charming film it is, too . . . What has riled these folks who've seen it either in Paris or London (and several years ago, at that) is the way the ending has been botched . . . In the Dupont version, Jean Marais, playing the Tristan role, dies on the boat-bed before Madeleine Sologne, the Isolde, reaches his side . . As in the Wagnerian opera, this scene originally showd the two lovers reunited in death, with the girl expiring at her lover's side . . . Checking into it with the importing firm, I find that the ending was cut short at the behest of the Legion of Decency, which now gives the picture a B rating instead of the C rating the proper (sic!) ending would have gotten . . . Hard as it is to believe concerning so well-known a myth, that's what the New Yorkers assure me . . . This destroys the impact of the ending and makes meaningless the two heads, poised in death, which are used to advertise the picture . . . It's just one more instance of the stupidity of trying to make pictures for everybody . . . This is an adult film and should be edited for adults . . . But so long as the Legion of Decency maintains its hold on all pictures seen in American theaters, you'll have to expect treatment usually accorded infants, idiots and Indians.

THE TRANS-LUX is losing no time in making good its feature film policy to be inaugurated Christmas Day with Sam Goldwyn's "Enchantment." . . . This Wednesday night at 9 there'll be the first in a series of "Hollywood sneak previews." . . . After this "sneak" is off the screen, you'll see the theater's regular program of news and short subjects . . . All I know about the "sneak" is that it's a new one, not to be generally released until "early in 1949."

STUYVESANT SCHOOL, down in Warrenton, saw an unusual event Saturday night, with students from 13 countries acting in the annual Christmas play . . . This year's was by William F. Goodykoontz, "A Christmas Dream," accenting the universality of Christmas . . . Local lads appearing in the Goodykoontz modern miracle play and their native lands included: Rudolf Kroc, Czechoslovakia; Pim Beyen, Holland; Johnny Bult, Switzerland; Sammy Huang, China; Apilas and Vira Osatananda, Siam; Tony Rovira, Bolivia; Angel Lopez, Puerto Rico; Marcel Del Castillo, Venezuela; Alan Lambert, France; Emilio Olivares, Peru; Cesar Malnati, Ecuador; Odoardo Leon-Ponte, Venezuela, and Fernando Henriquez, of the Dominican Republic.

Accordionist, 18, Wins $5000 In Radio Talent Finals Here

Dick Contino, 18-year-old Fresno. Calif., accordionist, last night won the Horace Heidt National Search-For-Talent Program finals and a $5,000 cash prize from the Philip Morris Company, sponsor of the radio program.

Nearly 10,000 persons jammed Uline Arena for the "Youth Opportunity" program, held under the auspices of the Washington Junior Board of Commerce. The final 30 minutes of the two and a half hour program was broadcast over a National Broadcasting Company network.

Present on the platform was Vice President-elect Alben Barkley, as guest speaker, with Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan and Postmaster General Jesse Donaldson as judges.

The judges' decision was reached by measuring the volume of applause for each contestant at its peak on an applause meter.

In a brief talk, Vice President-Elect Barkley praised Heidt's search for talent.

"To tour this country," Barkley said, "is no easy task." There was a roar of laughter when he added, "I know whereof I speak."

"Our country has been developed and built up through good clean competition," Barkley said in presenting to Heidt a trophy of appreciation from the Youth Welfare Foundation of the Junior Board of Commerce.

Competing with Contino who was a Fresno butcher-boy before he won the first Hedit 1948 quarter-finals, were: Stanley Morse, Jamesville, Ohio, trombonist; Johnny Mungal, a Flint, Mich., vocalist who had been a machinist, and Pierce Knox, blind young xylophonist fro mOakland, Cal.

Alfred E. Lyon, president of Philip Morris, presented a championship belt to Contino.

Contino, fourth of the contestants in order of appearance, was repeatedly applauded as he played his selection, "Lover."

Heidt brought a company of 45 to Washington and put on a program that varied from straight vocalization to ensemble dance numbers. His program will move into the 7 o'clock Sunday night hour on NBC when Jack Benny moves his show from NBC to Columbia Broadcasting System, January 2.

Lynn, Mass. Bans Life for Picture Of Naked Girls

Lynn, Mass., Dec. 12 (AP)—The current issue of Life magazine today was banned from sale in this city of 100,000 because of a picture showing two nude girls wading in a pool.

Patrolman Arthur P. Witham, the city's censor, said the picture was an "affront to Lynn morals and decency."

The offending picture, reproduced with other entries in an exhibition by the American Society of Magazine Photographers, was shown in September in the annual exhibition of the London Salon of Photograph.

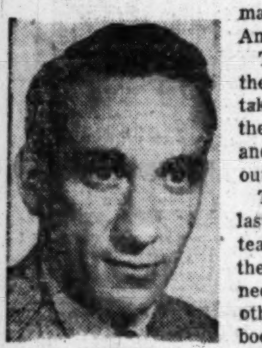
This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, DEC. 12.—For the second-division clubs that were trampled by the Indians, Red Sox and Yankees last season, there's a certain satisfaction in the goings-on in Chicago this week. All the pressure is on the three top teams, who are in a frenzy to maintain their high standard of life in the American League.



POVICH

The Yankees are eyeing every move of the Indians and Rex Sox, the Indians are taking stock furtively of all operations on the player market by the Yanks and Boston, and the Red Sox are panicky lest they lose out in the bidding for players.

They finished only a hand's-breadth apart last season and in contrast to the other teams, they're shooting for high stakes—the pennant. The Yankees and Red Sox need pitchers, and Cleveland would like another first baseman. But their fat check books hold no fascination for the poorer clubs except the sale-minded St. Louis Browns. And even the Browns are now demanding outrageous prices for the men they are willing to sell.

CASH IS A DRUG on the market, what with all clubs prospering from the record attendance of last year, and even the last-place White Sox discovered that a $125,000 offer wouldn't fetch Third Baseman Bob Dillinger from St. Louis. The price on Dillinger has gone as high as $250,000, the sum the Yankees offered for him and Pitcher Cliff Fannin.

Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats, who made a tentative bid for Fannin and discovered that the price was out of sight, blamed the inflation on his brother-in-law, General Manager Joe Cronin of the Red Sox. "You spoiled the Browns by giving them that $400,00 for Vern Stephens and Jack Kramer last year and now they talk only in hundreds of thousands," Griffith complained.

Detroit offered the Browns $35,000 and a outfielder for Pitcher Sanford, and Bill Dewitt, general manager of the St. Louis club laughed it off. "He said he'd let us have Sanford for an outfielder and $135,000," said Billy Evans of the Tigers. "The Browns tack $100,000 on any offer you make."

THE YANKEES and Red Sox are somewhat panicked already by the moves made by the Cleveland Indians. The Indians have already bolstered their pitching staff in a couple of swaps with the White Sox that brought Frank Papish and Joe Haynes to Cleveland, and the rich Boston and New York clubs are being goaded to a new desperation to acquire a pitcher like Fannin from the Browns.

The Browns make no secret of their desire to sell players. De Witt is still taking bows for his operations of last winter when he sold Stephens, Kramer, Ellis Kinder, Bob Muncrief and Walt Judnich for more than a half million dollars, off a last-place club. Without that quintet, the Browns improved their position in 1948 and finished two places higher.

Right now, the Browns have the Tigers at their mercy. They sold their Toledo franchise to Detroit for $200,000 without ball players. Now the Tigers face the need of buying players from the Browns to stock their Toledo club, and De Witt is prepared to unload $100,000 worth of his minor league talent to the desperate Tigers.

MERE MONEY, even a lot of it, is lacking in certain charms, the Tigers have discovered to their pain. For three years now they have had a desperate second base situation, chief factor in their drop into the second division, and all of their offers haven't produced a good replacement.

The richest club in the National League, the Chicago Cubs, finished last in 1948. All of Phil Wrigley's cash couldn't hit a curve ball or start a double play. Smarter clubs than the Browns are reluctant to sell, knowing they can make more money out of the gate receipts, if they are in the first division, than they can get out of player sales.

What is disturbing the Yankees, who made two million dollars last season, is the fact that if they don't stay up there, they can drop one million dollars next season. The Nats, White Sox, Browns and Athletics don't have that kind of worry because they never did make that kind of money, and couldn't possibly lose any such amount.

New Haven Routs Lions, 5-0

New Haven, Conn. Dec. 12 — Pumping home three goals in the first period, the New Haven Ramblers scored an easy victory over the Washington Lions, 5 to 0, before 3200 fans at the Arena tonight.

Jackie Gordon started the parade of goals for the Ramblers in the opening session, drilling a 20-footer past Lou Crowdis at 9:15.

After Jean Paul Denis had been denied twice by Crowdis, linemate Sherm White came up fast and lifted the rebound over Crowdis prone body. Before the period closed Gino Rozzini made the count 3-0 by tucking his own rebound into an open cage after pulling Crowdis out of his net.

Denis, who had recived a gash from a hard-driven puck late in the initial period and had it sewed up with five stitches, tallied the lone counter of the middle canto. Denis rang the bell at the 8-minute mark while Harry Dick was cooling his heels in the penalty box for interference.

Denis racked up his second counter of the affair at 4:30 of the final session after picking up Rozzini's well placed relay. Denis made things lively again just after the midmark when he squared off with Dave McGuire. Both collected major penalties for the tussle. Denis was taxed a 10-minute misconduct and during the battle the wound suffered in the first period was reopened.

Maryland Host To Richmond

Maryland returns to its own league tonight hoping to make the University of Richmond its second Southern Conference victim of the season in Ritchie Coliseum.

The Terps, like George Washington, took VPI handily in their first conference encounter, but they haven't done too well otherwise. The Terps dropped one to Temple and were edged out in the last minute by Loyola, 77-75, in Baltimore last Saturday night.

Richmond came up with good little man in Art Haines in losing to George Washington, 68-49, at the National Guard Armory last Saturday.

Rochester Loses Lead

Minneapolis, Dec. 12 (AP).—In a rough game that saw all three Rochester centers evicted on fouls, Minneapolis pushed Rochester out of the Western Division lead in the Basketball Association of America game tonight by a score of 67 to 58.

A total of 67 fouls was called, including six on George Mikan who scored 22 points before he left the game in the fourth period.

The Minneapolis triumph sent Chicago into the Western Division lead and with Rochester second on a record of 11 victories and five defeats. It was the thirteenth win in 20 games for Minneapolis.

4th Period Rally Earns Champions Western Title

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Chicago, Dec. 12—Bearing no resemblance to the team that was soundly whipped in the first half, the Chicago Cardinals surged to two touchdowns in the final quarter and beat the Bears, 24-21, in a Wrigley Field thriller today.

Before a record crowd of 51,283, the Cardinals shook off their lethargy of the first two quarters and clinched the Western Division championship of the National Football League. They will defend their league title in a play-off with Philadelphia's Eastern champions on Sunday.

It was a 35-yard field goal by Fullback Pat Harder in the first quarter that ultimately provided the Cardinals' margin of victory, but as late as the fourth period they were trailing the confident Bears, 21 to 10.

Lujack's Pass Goes Awry

And then the Cardinals lashed out. Ray Mallouf's passes featured an 85-yard touchdown drive with Charley Trippi pounding 4 yards for the score that narrowed the Bears' lead to 21-17.

Johnny Lujack, a heroic figure for the Bears all day, saw one of his passes come to grief midway in the final quarter, and with an interception by Vince Banonis, the Cardinals launched the winning touchdowns. Banonis took the ball 22 yards to the Bears' 19, and Elmer Angsman smashed up the middle for the last 13 yards, bowling over George McAfee at the 5-yard line.

Lujack, who played the first 52 minutes of the game on offense and fefense, apparently came of age in the pro league today when he completed his first seven passes of the day.

The Bears went 78 yards to their first touchdown from the opening kickoff with Kavanaugh making a leaping catch deep into the end zone for the score on a 16-yard completion.

The Cardinals, after gaining possession of the ball on Boone's fumble late in the quarter, settled for a field goal by Harder from the 35-yard line. A pass-interference play called against DeCorrevont put the ball in kicking position.

Bears' Strategy Boomerangs

Lujack sparked a 75-yard drive of the Bears for their second-quarter touchdown, the climax pitch being a 31-yard lob to Gulyanics on the Cardinal's 5, from where romped over.

The big crowd, a Wrigley Field record, was scenting a rout by the Bears after Mullins returned a punt 20 yards to the Cardinals' 31, and the Bears gained a first down on the Cards' 20. But McAfee fumbled in a play at the line and Dove recovered for the Cards.

Bear strategy boomeranged at the start of the second half when they attempted to catch the Cardinals napping with an on-side kick-off. Harder recovered the 9-yard boot on the Bears' 46, and from there the Cardinals went to a touchdown.

The big play of the advance was Christman's 30-yard pass over the middle to Kutner on the 16. Trippi, a negligible factor in the first half, stormed 13 yards through tackle behind a powerful block by Ramsey, to the Bears 3. Harder went over the middle for the touchdown, untouched.

A sensational punt by Lujack that went out on the Cards' 5 precipitated the touchdown that enabled the Bears to regain a 21-10 lead. McAfee returned a Cardinal punt beyond midfield, and Lujack sent Don Kindt scampering 42 yards to the Cardinals' 5, on a behind-the-line pass. Gulyanics bumped it over in three smashes.

Trippi Goes Over

Coach Jimmy Conzelman turned the Cards' desperate situation over to Mallouf in the fourth quarter, withdrawing Christman. Mallouf connected with 15-yard passes to Kutner and Dewell, and then the Cards got a break when the referee ruled pass-intereference by Lujack on the Cardinals' 10.

Vic Schwall ate up 6 of the remaining yards on an off-tackle smash, and Trippi got the touch-

Baltimore, Dec. 12.—Buffalo battered Baltimore today, 28-17, and thousands of angry, partisan fans attempted to batter the officials in a wild climax to the All-America Conference's Eastern Division title game.

The Bills scored three touchdowns in the last 10 minutes to shuffle off to Buffalo with victory over the same Colt team which thrashed them last Sunday to force this afternoon's playoff.

A second after the game-ending gun sounded many of the 27,327 irate Colt fans swooped down on the field and threatened to mob the officials who had to be escorted to their dressing rooms by a cordon of players and police.

Sideline Judge Tommy Whelan of Washington, former Catholic U. halfback star, disallowed a Colt recovery of a fumble early in the fourth period to precipitate what for a moment looked like the makings of a riot. While fans went after all of the officials, Whelan was the only one to be cuffed. He was punched on the back of the neck on his way to the dressing quarters.

Had the Colt recovery been permitted, it would have thwarted Buffalo's first touchdown drive in the payoff period. Whelan ruled a George Ratterman-to-Chet Mutryn pass incomplete, much to the astonishment of the throng who thought Mutryn caught the pass and then fumbled it.

Play Browns Next Week

Ratterman, the ex-Notre Dame sharpshooter, and the Bills went on from there to wipe out a 10-point margin and qualify for the conference championship game against the Cleveland Browns next Sunday.

Ratterman, completely bottled up last week and held in check for three quarters today, unlimbered his pitching arm in the last 10

One Fan Arrested

Baltimore, Dec. 12.—Police tonight said Charles Ledvinka, jr., was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct as the result of the disorderly scene following today's Colt-Buffalo game here.

Mich. State Voted Into Big Nine

Chicago, Dec. 12 (AP).—Michigan State College today was granted membership in the Western Conference, making the powerful athletic league the "Big Ten" again.

The action by the faculty representatives was announced by Chairman Kenneth Little of Wisconsin and Commissioner K. L. (Tug) Wilson after two days of deliberations in which a membership bid by the University of Pittsburgh also was discussed.

Spartan Setup Okay

Michigan State's formal entrance is dependent upon certification by a three-member committee, expected next May. The committee will determine whether Big Nine athletic standards are "completely in force" at the East Lansing, Mich., school.

Michigan State has sought membership since the University of Chicago withdrew from the Big Nine in May of 1946. It is regarded as certain that the Spartan school has its rules and regulations in order.

Michigan State probably will not compete as a conference member until the 1949-50 basketball season, at the earliest.

Since the conference football coaches will draft 1950, and perhaps 1951 and 1952 schedules tomorrow, Michigan State's football debut probably will be delayed for several seasons.

16,000 Students Enrolled

However, the Spartans already have Michigan and Minnesota as future opponents and are said to be negotiating with Indiana and Purdue, with a probable lineup of four Big Nine opponents by 1951.

Little is chairman of the three-member "examining" committee, which also includes Paul Blommers of Iowa and Commissioner Wilson.

Touchdowners Honor Quantico

The Quantico Marines, all-navy football champions, will be honor guests today at the final weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club prior to the annual dinner at the Hotel Statler next month.

Sharing the spotlight with the Devildogs will be Eddie Tawney, triple threat fullback of the Southwest Merchants who suffered a broken back in competition last October 26.

Tawney will be named the Metropolitan Amateur Football League's outstanding player of the year.

Gen. Clifton B. Cates, commandant of the Marine Corps and Maj. Hal Harwood, head coach of the Quantico champions, will be the main speakers.

Baugh's 66-Yard Pass Play Decides Duel With Conerly

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Polo Grounds, New York, Dec. 12.—Old Sammy Baugh proved he's still a pretty fair country passer here today as the Washington Redskins downed the New York Giants, 28-21, in the 1948 finale for both teams.

While a surprisingly large gathering of 23,158 paying customers watched a game played half in daylight and half under the arcs, slingin' Sam pitched three touchdown passes for himself, bringing his 12-year production to exactly 150.

The big one came 1 minute and 15 seconds before the end of hostilities, deciding the issue and giving Washington a 7-5 record in games won and lost this season. The other two were involved in a spectacular Redskin rally, after the Tribe had dropped two touchdowns behind in the first 1½ periods.

Baugh Comes Through

Against Baugh, the old master, the Giants depended mostly on their rookie aerial ace from Mississippi, Charley Conerly, and he came through nicely. He pitched New York into a 14-0 lead, set up the touchdown that tied it at 21-21 and was stopped in his effort to tie it again when time ran out.

In all Baugh completed 25 of his 42 passes, good for 350 yards as he brought his total touchdown passes for the season to 22. Conerly, a draft choice of the Redskins who was traded to New York, completed 23 of 41 tosses for 225 yards.

At the end it was a 66-yard pass play to lanky Hugh Taylor, Baugh's second payoff pitch to the stringy Oklahoma end, that won the game. Three straight Redskin threats to break a 21-all tie in the fourth period had fizzled when Slingin' Sam faded and hurled from back of his own 34.

Taylor was having trouble getting away from Carl Fennema on the Giant 25 but he reached up in time, pulled in the pitch, and slithered goalward after faking Fennema off his feet.

In all, Taylor latched onto eight of Baugh's passes for 194 yards.

Washington got its first tied score at 14-14 after 5:47 of the third period on the end of a 60-yard march, with Fullback Quirk plowing over for the last yard. Quirk's own smashes and Baugh's tosses to McKee and Saens set up the goal.

Skins Take Lead

And the Redskins, who had shown very little in the first half, kept right on going to take a 21-14 lead. It was Taylor who tallied then, too, on another scintillating catch. He was spinning crazily trying to evade the Giant's Ken Keuper when he took Baugh's offering for a 24-yard touchdown.

Officials had had a lot to do with the Giants tying points, making it 21-all and setting the stage for Baugh and Taylor to decide it. Thirty-five of the yards that New York covered as it moved from its own 18 were paced off by the men in stripes. Conerly completed only one pass in the drive, for six yards.

But the Giants managed the last 11 yards themselves, using five plays with Ray Coats hitting center for the last yard.

Minisi Scores on Pass

On the first play of the game Baugh let go with a 27-yard pass to Taylor and it looked as though the 'Skins were going places. They did—exactly 41 yards to the Giant 32 before one Francis X. Regan stepped in the way of a Baugh toss.

Eight plays later, with Conerly pitching beautifully, the Giants made it 7-0. Poole and Swiacki had grabbed Conerly passes as the Giants moved from their 49. When only 14 yards were left, it was Minisi who outdistanced Tommy

Todd Retires After Big Season

After one of his best seasons in 7½ years of professional football, 34-year-old Dick Todd, Redskin veteran from Texas A. & M., last night announced he was retiring from active football.

The "li'l ol' boy" who joined Washington in 1939 and missed 2½ years of action while he was in the Navy, closed out his playing career by catching four passes for the 'Skins in their 28-21 margin over the New York Giants. One was a 27-yard scoring toss from Sammy Baugh.

Todd thus brought his year's mark to seven touchdowns and 37 passes caught for 541 yards.

Nats Huddle With Evans on Vernon Trade

Chicago, Dec. 12.—General Manager Billy Evans of the Detroit Tigers and Vice President Calvin Griffith of the Nats were closeted tonight in trade talk revolving about Washington First Baseman Mickey Vernon.

The Nats have made no secret of their willingness to trade Vernon providing the return is ample, and the Tigers are bidding for him.

Thus far the Detroit club has offered George Vico, husky first sacker who batted .267 last season, his first year as a regular in the majors. The Nats are holding out for at least one pitcher in the deal.

Nats Want Houtteman

Griffith has indicated that the trade would be made. Manager Joe Kuhel concurs, if the Tigers would release Pitcher Art Houtteman along with Vico. Despite his mere two wins against 16 defeats last season, the right handed Houtteman is one of the most esteemed young pitchers in the league and was known as a hard-luck performer in 1948.

The trade may be made, though, if the Tigers proffer Ted Gray, rookie left-hander, who won six and lost two last season. However, the Nats prefer Houtteman despite the discrepancy in their records.

Will Talk to Yanks

Vernon batted only .242 for Washington last season, a tremendous comedown in the two years since he was the American League batting champion with a .352 average.

Griffith has talks scheduled with General Manager George Weiss of the Yankees tomorrow. The Yankees are hot after Walter Masterson or Early Wynn, and the Nats would consider a deal for Hank Bauer, husky rookie outfielder of the Yanks who is a right-handed hitter and one of the fastest men in the league despite his size.

Early tonight, Griffith declared "we do not expect to make any trade announcements before Tuesday."

Thompson Tosses Four Scores, Eagles Romp

Lions Drubbed By Champs, 45-21

By Russ Green

Philadelphia, Dec. 12 (UP) — Tommy Thompson's dazzling aerial accuracy—a four touchdown, 16-completion job in 21 attempts—gave the Philadelphia Eagles all the lift they needed today to defeat the Detroit Lions, 45-21.

Thompson accounted for 258 yards through the airways without an interception and brightened the Eagles tune-up for their league title meeting with the Chicago Cardinals one week from today.

Thompson found Jack Ferrante for three touchdown passes, and got his fourth when Pete Pihos made a flip-flop circus catch in the end zone. The Ferrante touchdowns covered successively 66, 15 and 23 yards, and the flip to Pihos was a 10-yard toss.

Eagles-Lions Statistics

2	Number of punts	4
38	Punting average from scrimmage	32
1	Fumbles	0
5	Number of penalties	7
45	Yards penalized	54

The season's smallest crowd of 16,125 saw the game.

Steve Van Buren, who sat out last week's game with Boston, gained 96 yards in 16 attempts for a season total of 945 yards in 11 games. The exhibition, in the big former Louisiana State star's effortless manner, left him 63 yards off his 1008 record race last season and 102 yards off the all-time mark of Clarke Hinkle.

For the statistics, Cliff Patton kicked his eighth field goal in 12 attempts this season, a 23-yard boot which started the day's scoring.

The ball game actually didn't become a rout until the Eagles wrapped it up with three touchdowns in the final period. Patton's field goal was the only first period scoring. In the second period, Thompson to Pihos and then Thompson to Ferrante, with Jack running the last 40 yards of a 66-yard play, made it 17-0.

Then the Lions, sparked by Bill Dudley, who was to receive a mild concussion in the third period, came back. Clyde LeForce tossed a 4-yarder to Dudley for a touchdown before the first half ended. In the third period, the Lions marched 80 yards, capped by a 10-yard pass by LeForce to Dudley for the score which made it 17-14.

Jack Ferrante Catches Three

A 49-yard pass, Thompson to Ferrante, and a 16-yard sprint by Van Buren made it 24-14 before the third period ended. But in the first minute of the fourth, LeForce passed 38 yards to John Greene to make it 24-21.

It happened then. Thompson passed 15 to Ferrante for a score with Jack rolling the last 4 yards. Then came a 23-yard toss to Ferrante and the final score was a 42-yard romp by Jim Parker.

Gob, Columbo Wrestle Tonight

The clamor of the populace for their tried and true performance brings Steve Gob and Rocco Columbo together again in a team match against Tarzan Frank Hewitt and Jim Wallis in the Uline Arena wrestling show tonight.

Popular demand has also forced the rematching of Arnold Skaaland and Angelo Savoldi. Dave Weinstein is paired against Red Kirkpatrick and Al Alexander tackles Maury Rothenberg in the other scheduled bouts.

Harbert Second, 4 Strokes Back

Miami, Fla., Dec. 12 (AP).—Frank Stranahan of Toledo today became the first amateur golfer to win a PGA-sponsored tournament this year when he bagged the $10,000 Miami Open with a 72-hole score of 270.

Stranahan finished 10 under par and four strokes ahead of Melvin (Chick) Harbert, Detroit professional who won first money of $2000 with a 72-hole total of 274.

Harbert, who yesterday set a Miami Springs course record of 8-under-par 62, wilted in the final round and came in with 72.

Tony Penna, Cincinnati, and Steve Warga, jr., Miami, tied for third with 276.

Palmer Posts 279

Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C., was alone at 279 and pocketed $520. Pete Cooper of Ponte Vedra, Fla., Florida State champion, and Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, had 280's and received $415.

Bunched at 281 were Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va.; Skip Alexander, Southern Pines, N. C.; E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Chicago, and Herman Barron, White Plains, N. Y., who pocketed $287.50 each.

Fred Haas, jr., New Orleans, La., and Bob Toski, Northampton, Mass., carded 282's and received $195 each.

Defending Champion Jimmy Demaret, Ojai, Calif., who tied the tournament record of 267 in winning last year, had a 71 today for 283 and tied with George Bolesta, Tampa, Fla.; Otey Crisman, Miami Beach; Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md.; Horton Smith, Detroit, and Clyde Usina, jr., West Palm Beach, Fla., who received $101.66 each.

Harbert's $2000 prize money brought his winnings for the year to $10,566.46.

Fourth Title This Year

The muscular, 26-year-old Stranahan tied for first place with a 66 on opening day and pulled away form the field of 144 with each succeeding round. He posted 66 for the second round and added 68 yesterday for a two-stroke margin over Harbert at the end of 54 holes of play.

Stranahan, only last week named "amateur golfer of the year," was given a testimonial dinner by the professionals Tuesday night, then went out and beat them all.

He won the British, Canadian and Mexicon Amateur championships this year and took the Fort Worth, Tex., and Kapsas City, Mo., Open Tournaments in 1946. Stranahan will make the winter golf tour of which the Miami event was the first. The next will be played in Los Angeles in January.

CLUTCH PLAYING—Although two other leather-hungry gridders tried to rise to the occasion, Ray Nash (with ball) of Southwest Merchants intercepted a pass intended for Bob Beck (obsecured by Nash.) The pass was thrown by Back George Greenville in the Metro League benefit game played yesterday at Griffith Stadium for Ed Tawney. The other two guys, Brookland Back Eddie Brandt (center) and Lyle Sherman (right) of Southwest, fall short in their lunges for the ball. Brookland won, 6-0

Brookland Wins, 6-0

Brookland-Woodridge Merchants went 81 yards in the last two minutes of the game against Southwest Merchants to score the only touchdown in the second half of a football double-header to win, 6-0, yesterday at Griffith Stadium.

In the first game, Car Credit, unlimited champion of the Metropolitan Amateur Football League, routed the Irish War Veterans, 39-0.

It was Car Credit's thirty-fifth victory in a row. A crowd of 600 attended the games, which were played for the benefit of Eddie Tawney, who was injured while playing for Southwest last season.

Brookland got its six game-winning points on its own recovered fumble. Teddy Watson, trying to crack over the middle on the Southwest 3-yard line after Brookland had worked the ball down from its 19, fumbled, but his alert teammate, Eggie Labille, scooped up the ball in the end zone for the touchdown.

Four Fights Share Billing At Turner's

An interesting switch from the usual Monday night sequence takes place in this evening's boxing show at Turner's Arena.

Instead of building up to a main event with a handful of short preliminaries, Gabe Menendez has lined up four eight-round bouts, any one of which could become a main event in its own right.

Two of them gain stature from the personal feeling between the opponents while the other two are involved prestige battles between top-notch locals and a pair of New Yorkers.

Jimmy Cooper, in need of some prestige since his lacklustre appearance against Filberto Osario, can once again become one of Menendez' winter favorites if he whips Gotham's Tim Healy. Two losses in a row would set the little thresher back in small letters for a good many future bouts.

Herbie "Biff" Jones, featherweight, lefthanded and from the Southeast, tries the Turner's canvas for the first time this season, tangling with Freddie Smith of New York.

Smith is one of Sugar Ray Robinson's proteges and can spoil a shot at champion Sandy Saddler for Jones if he beats the southpaw.

Red Gaddis will try to even the score with Burt Wicks in a local featherweight feud. The bout is complicated by an uncommon development. The fighters don't like each other. In the fourth eight-rounder, Holfy Mims will meet Garland Edwards, who took a close decision from Mims earlier. Edwards is undefeated at Turner's.

Bills Rally, Beat Colts For Title

minutes and pegged the Bills to their first championship.

All four Buffalo touchdowns were scored on passes. Ratterman pitched the first three for the Bills. Quarterback Y. A. Tittle of the Colts pegged the opposition their fourth when Center Buckets Hirsch intercepted a Tittle pass and ran 20 yards for a score.

However, it was not the fault of Tittle and his fullback, Bus Mertes, that the resurgent Colts didn't wind up their second season in the Conference with the Eastern championship.

Mertes, 205-pound former Iowa fullback, scored both Colt touchdowns which Tittle's passes had set up. Rex Grossman, the artful place-kicker, provided the remainder of the points, booting a field goal and converting successfully after each of the two touchdowns.

Trailing, 17-7, with less than 10 minutes to play, Ratterman went to work. He and Halfback Billy Gompers collaborated on a 66-yard touchdown pass play which climaxed an 80-yard Buffalo excursion.

It was during this drive that Whelan ruled a Bill pass incomplete to precipitate the disoroderly scene at the end of the game.

After completing two straight passes, Ratterman rifled a 12-yarder to Fullback Mutryn. Mutryn latched onto the ball momentarily then dropped it and Guard Dub Garrett of the Colts scooped it up and headed for the goal line, 38 yards away. Whelan, however, decreed that Mutryn had not controlled the ball and the fumble recovery was disallowed.

This naturally evoked a storm of boos from the throng and later the near-riotous scene after the contest had been played.

With the Bills behind, 17-14, Ratterman again started chucking with four minutes left. This time the sortie originated on the Buffalo 5-yard line. Five Ratterman passes, with ends Bill O'Connor and Al Baldwin on the receiving end, moved the ball 41 yards to the Baltimore 44. Then Ratterman sent Halfback Lou Tomasetti through the middle for 9 yards and then again through center for 10 more to move the ball to the Baltimore 25.

At this stage, Ratterman took over again and whipped a 5-yard pass to O'Connor in the flat and O'Connor breezed the remaining 25 for a touchdown. Tackle Graham Armstrong very neatly converted—he booted four for four—and the Bills were in front, 21-17.

They weren't to be restricted to such narrow margin for long, however, as the Colts increased their lead on the third play after the following kickoff.

Tittle, after missing on two long passes intended for End Lamar Davis, tried a screen pass to Windy Williams and the play boomeranged. Center Buckets Hirsch intercepted on the Colt 20 and trudged over for the final tally.

Both Colt touchdowns came in the third period which they entered trailing by 7-3. The first culminated a 79-yard push with Mertes barreling over from the 8. Tittle got his Colts down that far by completing six passes, two to End Williams. When the drive reached the Baltimore 18, it also almost ended there.

Lu Gambino, Maryland's disfranchised halfback, was sent in for three plays. The first time he got the ball, he fumbled, but the alert Dick Barwegan recovered for the Colts, saving the Baltimoreans for the time being, anyway.

Baltimore's second touchdown of the period came on a nifty series of running and passing plays. Mertes, Stormy Pfohl and Billy Hillenbrand ground out most of the yardage with Tittle-to-Davis and Tittle-to-Hillenbrand passes taking care of the rest of the surge. Mertes climaxed this drive by going over from the one.

Rex Grossman, who today ran his string of conversions to 45 in a row without a miss, kicked the Colts into a 3-0 in the first period. Tittle and Co., moved the ball from their 20 to the Bills' 10. Two passes were incomplete and a Mertes run gained nothing and Grossman came in and split the uprights.

It stayed that way until the first four seconds of the second quarter when the Bills scored on a Ratterman-to-O'Connor pass. The drive started at midfield where Buffalo recovered Billy Hillenbrand's fumble.

Tomasetti contributed a 30-yard sprint to the advance and on third down, with the ball on the Colt six, Ratterman shot a bullet pass to O'Connor standing unattended in the end zone.

Washington Plays His Last Game

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (AP)—The Los Angeles Rams said goodby to the 1948 National Football League season today — and to Teammate Kenny Washington—with a 31 to 14 triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers before 27,967 fans.

Reserve Quarterback Jim Hardy threw three touchdown passes, and the No. 1 man, Bob Waterfield, connected with one and booted a 47-yard field goal.

Fullback George Papach scored both touchdowns for the Steelers, the first on a 1-yard line smash ending an 86-yard sustained drive in 19 plays in the third quarter, the other on a short pass from Ray Evans which the former Purdue player stretched in a fine run for 28 yards and the tally.

Washington, 30-year-old Negro star, said farewell to 16 years of high school, college and professional football.

The Los Angeles star was never able to get loose with any spectacular runs, but alternating with Fullback Dick Hoerner, Kenny carried for 54 yards to the Pittsburgh 29-yard line and a scoring pass which broke any chance the Steelers had of remaining in the ball game.

An interference penalty, plus additional yardage for unsportsmanlike conduct by the Steelers' Tony Compagne, gave the Rams the ball on the enemy 26. Hardy hit End Red Hickey in the end zone for the first score of the game in the second quarter.

Halfback Fred Gehrke set up the second Ram score with a brilliant 44-yard punt return to the Pittsburgh 8. Hardy smacked one into Frank Hubbell's arms for six points and the Rams led, 14-0 at half time.

Ray Evans, field general of the Steelers, engineered his mates on the long, arduous grind down the field on the kickoff opening the third period for the first Steeler tally.

Los Angeles came right back with Washington and Hoerner leading the charge to the Steeler 29. Waterfield passed the remaining distance to Rookie End Tom Fears, and early in the fourth kicked his 47-yard three-pointer.

It took 14 plays for the Rams to go 70 yards for their final score, Hardy passing from the 16 to Danta Magnani, who fought his way 10 yards to cross the line.

Kenney Receives Car, Television Set

Los Angeles, Dec. 12 (AP).—Kenneth Stanley Washington of the Los Angeles Rams, hung up his football suit today after 16 years in the sport.

At half-time, the 30-year-old Los Angeles Negro was presented with a sedan (a 1948 Ford), a television-radio set, and a $500 savings account for his 7-year-old son, Kenny, Jr.

Sugar Radio Wins First-Half Crown

Sugar Radio yesterday won the first-half championship of the Washington and Suburban Soccer League, finishing an eight-game schedule undefeated with a 6-1 gambol over Glasva.

Martin's Bakery defeated Maryland Sports Club, 2-0, and took second place. Three other games resulted in Marlboro defeating Charles County, 3-0; Rockville defeating OSIA, 4-2, and Pan-American drubbing Indian Head, 8-0.

Baugh's Pass in Last Minutes Beats Out Giants, 28-21

Mont and snared Conerly's offering, while on a dead run to the right, in the end zone.

Again Washington moved. Right down to the Giant 17 from their own 29 the Redskins romped on Baugh's heaves to Bagarus and Saenz. Holding and back-in-motion penalties at that point, however, ended the drive and the Giants took over after Baugh's fourth-down slant to Todd in the end zone was broken up by Tunnell.

Dick Poillon's towering kick out of bounds set the Giant scoring machine in motion again as the second quarter started. This time it rumbled 76 yards, largely on Conerly's bullet-like pitches. At the end was a simple little 5-yard lob to Swiacki, trotting along in the end zone with defender Hartley nowhere about.

Washington had possession of the ball four more times before it finally cooked up its first touchdown following an exchange of fumbles. The 'Skins' Quirk did it first after a 20-yard jaunt down the middle, Pipkin recovering. The Giants' Scott did it next, Hartley recovering on the opposition's 27.

It was a typical Redskin production that clicked on the first play from there. Baugh jiggled patiently until Todd broke clear of a jam-up to the left. He fired and Todd gathered in the ball as big Tex Coulter swarmed over him. The pair slid across the goal right at the corner and it took officials a few seconds to decide whether it was a score or not.

Washington was behind only 14-7 at halftime after Poillon converted.

down with a leg-churning drive through left guard.

Still leading, 21-17, with 11 minutes to play, Lujack attempted to pass the Bears out of their own territory, only to see the alert Banonis of the Cardinals return one of his pitches 22 yards to the Bears' 19. From 13 yards out, Angsman got the winning touchdown against the Bears line that had dominated the game in the first half.

With the Bears now desperate, Coach Halas sent the veteran Sid Luckman into the game, with eight minutes to play. Luckman completed three passes in a row to Keane and Boone and gained a first down on the Cardinals' 15. Disdaining a field goal that would tie the score, Luckman attempted another pass and it was intercepted in the end zone by Cochran of the Cardinals.

The Cardinals never lost the ball again, retaining possession in the last four minutes and banging all the way from their own 20 to the Bears' 10 before the final gun. Angsman and Trippi reeled off the first five downs in the time-eating counterthrust.

Mme. Chiang Sits in Pew Of Roosevelt

Charleton P. Smith

LIKENESS—Standing by the stained glass window that carries her likeness and symbolizes freedom from want, is Mme. Chiang Kai-shek, first lady of China. She attended services Sunday at Foundry Methodist Church here, where "her" window is one of four representing the "four freedoms"

Mme. Chiang Kai-shek yesterday attended services at Foundry Methodist Church, 16th and P sts. nw., and sat in the pew used by the late President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on Christmas Day, 1941.

Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, pastor of the church, told the congregation that though it was not customary to refer to national or world leaders at Foundry services, he would make an exception in the case of the First Lady of China.

Describing Mme. Chiang as "one of the most distinguished Methodists in the world," Dr. Harris greeted her "with pride in the patient sacrifices of her nation and with the deepest sympathy in the present struggle which is rending that already torn and tortured land." Mme. Chiang is visiting the United States in an attempt to get aid for China.

The flag of China had a place of honor in the chancel as a symboy of what Dr. Harris called "the enduring bond between her country and ours."

"The same sinister system which threatens China and is reaching out to control Asia is plotting the final overthrow of every nation governed of the people, by the people and for the people," Dr. Harris said.

"We are remembering in this hour of crisis that during the dark days of the war when China was offered advantageous terms if she forsake the western democracies, "to her everlasting credit she steadfastly refused," the clergyman continued.

"In China, in Europe, and in America we must front coercive regimentation with militant democracy purged of its betrayals and denials and which actually practices the sacredness of the individual, regardless of border or breed or birth," Dr. Harris said.

Real estate covenants will be discussed by Clifford H. Newell, former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, before the Glover Park Citizens Association tonight at 8:15 in the Benjamin Stoddard School, 39th and Calvert sts. nw.

Also scheduled to address the Glover Park group is Thomas Scott, attorney, the association's vice president, who will speak on the sales tax.

The sales tax also will come up for discussion at the Cathedral Heights-Cleveland Park Citizens Association meeting at 8 p. m. Tuesday in St. Alban's Guild Hall, Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves. nw.

To Honor Policemen

Gold membership certificates will be presented by the Lincoln Civic Association to two policemen who apprehended a sex criminal in the neighborhood. The group will meet Wednesday at 8 p. m. in Francis Junior High School, 24th and N sts. nw.

2 Washington Area Men Win Rhodes Scholarship Awards

W. S. Frank Lieut. Strain

Two greater Washington men are among 32 top American collegians selected to study at Oxford University as 1949 Rhodes Scholars.

They are Walter S. Frank, 24, of 4306 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, Md., a Harvard College senior, and First Lieut. Milton Albert Strain, 23, of 1403 N. Vermont st., Arlington, Va., who was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1946.

The new Rhodes scholars were chosen by committees in eight sections of the country from a field of 700 men recommended by their respective colleges and universities. Selections are made on the basis of scholarship, character and physical vigor, as prescribed in the will of Cecil Rhodes, scholarship donor.

Harvard led the list, with 4 out of the 32 winners, while the Military Academy was second with three men. Yale had two winners.

The scholarships are valued at about $2000 a year and run for a two-year period of study at Oxford, with a possible third year depending on the student's academic success.

A veteran of four years in the Army, which included service with the Thirteenth Armored Division in France and Germany, Frank entered Harvard as a sophomore in 1946 following his discharge as a sergeant major. A son of the late William and Mrs. Jennie Frank, he has made his home with a brother, Joseph N. Frank, at the Mount Rainier address, since he returned from Army service.

He is majoring in history and literature at Harvard, and plans to study philosophy at Oxford.

Lieutenant Strain, who was graduated second in his 1946 class at West Point, is in the Corps of Engineers and has recently returned from duty with the Air Force in Guam. His new assignment is with the Air Force at McDill Air Force Base, Fla.

He is the son of Col. James F. Strain, executive officer of the Army's National Board for Promotion of Rifle Practice, and Mrs. Strain, who live at the Arlington address.

Lieutenant Strain plans to study politics, philosophy and economics at Oxford.

J. W. Marriott Elected to High Church Office

J. Willard Marriott, president of Hot Shoppes, Inc., of Washington, yesterday was named president of the Washington Stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

He succeeds Edgar B. Brossard, a member of the United States Tariff Commission. Named counselors to Marriott were Samuel R. Carpenter, secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, and Frank Kimball, Washington attorney.

Marriott, who is also president of the National Restaurant Association, was formerly a counselor to Brossard. Carpenter and Kimball were bishops of the Chevy Chase and Capitol wards of the stake.

The Washington Stake includes 10 wards in the Washington Metropolitan area, Northern Virginia and Maryland. Retiring with Brossard is Ernest L. Wilkinson, also a Washington attorney.

The reorganization was accomplished under the direction of J. Reuben Clark, jr., a counselor to the first president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah. Clark was Undersecretary of State during the Hoover Administration and is a former Ambassador to Mexico.

Assisting in the reorganization were Mark E. Peterson and Matthew Cowley, members of the Council of the Twelve Apostles of the church in Salt Lake City.

Henderson Submits Resignation to ADA

New York, Dec. 12 (U.P.) — Leon Henderson today submitted his resignation as national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, effective January 15.

Henderson asked the board, which ended its quarterly meeting here today, to accept his resignation because he will be out of the country on private business during the coming months. Henderson, former OPA administrator, is chief economist of the Research Institute of America.

Per Diem Employes Of GPO to Receive Wage Offer Today

A wage offer will be made today to the 3000 per diem employes in the Government Printing Office. It's reported it will be around 25 cents an hour for the printers and other skilled workers, who have put in bids for raises up to 50 cents an hour.

The present wage agreement expires next Sunday. Public Printer John J. Deviny hopes the pay controversy can be settled this week and the new wage scales can be made effective a week from today.

After the agreement is reached, it's a good bet the Public Printer will call all GPO employes together to tell them directly that no outside source was an influence in the wage dispute. A story is circulating among GPO workers that A. E. Giegengack, former Public Printer, called the shots for Deviny during the negotiations.

RFC: Donald Smith is the new personnel director of the Reconstruction Finance Corp. He succeeds Frank Eliot, who moved up to special assistant to the RFC chairman. Smith has been the agency's placement officer.

INTERIOR: Secretary Krug has firmly advised his department's officials and employes that they are not to make comments, personal or official, on the President's employe loyalty program. Assistant Secretary "Jebbie" Davidson has been critical of some aspects of the program.

ARMY: It's making arrangements to fly Bob Hope and his entertainers to Berlin via the airlift on Christmas Day to give a show for the Americans there.

INDIANS: As reported here several weeks ago, former Representative Will Rogers (D., Calif.) has strong support to be appointed Commissioner of the Indian Bureau. But during a visit here last week many of his friends urged him to reject the post if it's offered. They want him to run for the Senate in 1950.

It hasn't been announced, but the top Indian post has been offered to Dillon Myer, a State Department official who formerly was head of both Public Housing Authority and War Relocation Authority.

POSTOFFICE: The National Rural Letter Carriers Association estimates it costs a rural carrier 3 cents for every mile he travels on his job. A survey indicates it costs 10 cents a mile to own and maintain a car. The carriers get a 7-cent equipment allowance.

ITEMS: Ray Ballinger and Frank M. Hally are contenders for the presidency of the Federal Club which meets tonight at the Willard. Both candidates are General Accounting officials . . . The Internal Revenue Athletic Association gave $489.65 to the Children's Hospital building fund . . . Businees Week magazine suggests editorially that big business loan its competent men to Government for two-year periods . . . The United Community Service urges Federal officials to have Christmas parties by December 20 so it will be able to get toys from the parties to the needy children by Christmas Eve. Please get the toys to the UCS at 3400 Connecticut ave. by December 22.

PAY RAISE hearings will be kicked off at 10 a. m. today by Budget Director James Webb, who will speak for the President before the Senate Civil Service Committee.

It's a good bet that the President, through Webb, will urge that the Flanders-O'Conor-Baldwin bill be liberalized to pay Cabinet members $25,000 instead of $20,000 and that minor changes be made in the proposed salary increases for 200-odd other executives.

Two years ago, it's recalled, the President urged Congress to raise Cabinet salaries from $15,000 to $25,000; to pay Undersecretaries $18,000, and to lift Assistant Secretaries and commission members to $15,000 and $17,500. He can be expected to reaffirm that position which the Congress isn't likely to ignore this time.

Also, Webb is likely to propose salary boosts for bureau chiefs, boosts for special assistants, general counsel, etc., but he will suggest that they be provided for in another bill that would overhaul the outmoded Classification Act.

ABSENTEEISM: A joint survey by the Public Health Service and the Bureau of Labor Statistics shows that private industry workers have an average absentee record of 9.6 days a year. Women lose 12.7 days, men 9 days. About 66 per cent of the absences were due to illnesses and accidents not related to employment. In Government, an average of 7 days' leave is taken annually by workers. However, no accurate comparison can be made between Government and private employes, since Uncle Sam is more liberal with vacations.

Gen. Grant Will Speak

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commision, will speak on redevelopment of the Southeast section of Washington at a meeting of the Southeast Business Men's Association at 8 p. m. today in the offices of John F. Donahoe and Sons, 314 Pennsylvania ave. se.

Pair Sought In $10,000 Robbery of Chain Store

Manager, Found Tied in Car, Tells How 2 Men Forced Him to Open Safe

Police last night sought two armed bandits who kidnaped the manager of a chain grocery store, forced him to open the store's safe, and escaped with $8000 in cash and $2000 in checks Saturday night.

Local drugstores were being checked for a description of any recent purchasers of three-inch adhesive tape, which was used to tape the manager's eyes. His wrists and ankles had been bound with four-strand picture frame wiring.

The store manager, Albert L. Murphy, 43, of 4209 Russell ave., Mount Rainier, Md., gave police this version of the holdup and theft from the Giant Food Store at 1438 Rhode Island ave. ne.

About 10:20 p. m. Saturday as he left his car to enter his apartment house, he was stopped by two men armed with long-barreled pistols. They warned him to cooperate or he would get hurt and forced him back into the front seat of his car.

"I face a 50-year sentence for escaping from prison anyhow, so it doesn't matter if I kill someone," one of the bandits said.

One Bandit Rode in Rear

The shorter of the two, described as white, 5 feet, 5 inches tall, weighing about 160 pounds and wearing a greyish overcoat and gray hat, got behind the wheel. The other, discribed as white, about 5 feet, 11 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds and wearing a gray overcoat and gray hat, climbed into the back seat.

The two drove in Murphy's car to the chain grocery store, where they forced Murphy to enter by key and open the safe, concealed in the floor of the office. They produced a shopping bag in which they placed the money bags, containing the $10,000 in cash and checks, which Murphy turned over to them.

Then the two men forced him back into his car. While the short one drove, the taller one fastened Murphy's wrists behind his back with the wire.

They stopped the car within a half block of his home, bound his ankles with wire and wrapped the adhesive tape across his eyes, then left after warning him not to make a sound for 10 minutes. He told police he did not know whether they left on foot or by auto.

Murphy managed to open the car door and to sidle out to the street, where a passerby saw his plight and helped untie him, police said. They said he has worked for the chain grocery company for 14 years, and has been a store manager for 10 years.

Other robberies reported yesterday to police included that of Edgar E Peterson, 33, of 2003 11th st. nw., who said he was robbed of $16 by a flashily dressed Negro at the corner of 11th and U sts. nw., about 3:50 a. m. The man first asked him for a match, then pressed a hard object in his side, taking the money from his hip pocket, Peterson told police.

Robert Arnold, 46, of 705 4th st. nw., received head injuries and a possible fractured jaw when he was assaulted and an attempt was made to rob him in an alley near the 400 block of L st. nw. about 2 a. m. Police arrested an East Beckley, W. Va., man for questioning in the case.

Safe With $700 Taken In Restaurant Breakin

A small safe, containing $700 in cash, was removed sometime early yesterday from the Ship's Cafe, 703 8th st. se., owner Martin Laffal reported to police.

The place was entered by jimmying the front door. The safe weighing about 75 pounds, was rolled out, police said. The thieves also took 10 bottles of whisky, valued at $50.

Another housebreaking was reported by James Mahares, owner of the Cosmopolitan Restaurant, 301 4th st. sw., who told police $234 in cash was taken from the restaurant after entrance was gained by smashing the front door glass with a brick wrapped in a paper bag.

Police Boys Club No. 4 Is Dedicated . . . .

FOOTBALL PLAYERS FROM POLICE BOYS CLUB NO. 4 MARCH IN THE PARADE, PART OF THE DEDICATION CEREMONY YESTERDAY

Clark Praises Force as Outstanding in U. S.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark yesterday praised the Metropolitan Police Department as "the outstanding police department of the United States" and declared he uses the Police Boys Clubs here as an example "all over America" in urging similar youth programs.

Principal speaker at the dedication of the handsome new $200,000 building of Police Boys Club No. 4 at 816 6th st. sw., Clark followed 8-year-old Edline (Sonny) Rhodes, a midget class member of the club.

Boy Almost Steals Show

Sonny not only gave the Attorney General a theme for part of his talk, but he almost stole the show as he told civic officials and more than 500 persons assembled in the street before the dedication stand:

"It's swell to have susch a nice clubhouse. Before there were too many boys and we got in each other's way. Now, we have a big gym with plenty of showers and lots of other things, too. So many boys and girls play in the streets and get hurt.

"I was second in boxing in my class in all the clubs in Washington last year," boasted Sonny, who lives at 475 I st. sw., and attends the Amidon School. "This year I'll be first in my class because this is a swell place to train in."

Clark, who said Sonny made the "real speech of the evening, speaking right from the heart," added he hoped everyone listening on the radio would carry Sonny's message to his neighbors.

"It's fine to have a great gym and all the appointments that are in this fine building," continued Clark, "but it takes men, women and boys like Sonny who put their hearts and souls into them to build the men and women of tomorrow."

After Clark cut the ribbon to open the new clubhouse, more than 2000 persons visited the building, which contains 21 rooms and more than 8000 square feet of space. In the 5200-square foot gymnasium-auditorium, which has folding bleachers seating 750, the visitors watched a tumbling exhibition, listened to the Metropolitan Police Band, and had refreshments served by the Women's Auxiliary of the Police Boys Clubs.

The new club building, which has two floors and a basement, includes game rooms for three age groups, a handicraft shop, photographic laboratory, special exercise room and other facilities. The interior is of concrete block construction and is painted light green and grey.

Library A Feature

A feature is the library, which was completely furnished by the Women's Auxiliary at a cost of about $3000. It has been named the Arnold Library in honor of Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, Auxiliary president since 1943.

Yesterday's ceremonies were preceded by a parade from 6th st. and Washington dr. nw., headed by Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett, who was a leader in the drive for funds for the new building. Marching were several Police Boys Club football squads in uniform, the Metropolitan Police Band, Police Boys Club Band and Police Boys Club Drum and Bugle Corps.

Robert Simmons, president of the Police Boys Clubs and master of ceremonies, said he hoped there would be a building as fine as the new one in each of the 14 precincts. He declared Maj. Barrett had done more than anyone to instill enthusiasm in the Police Department for the Boys Club program.

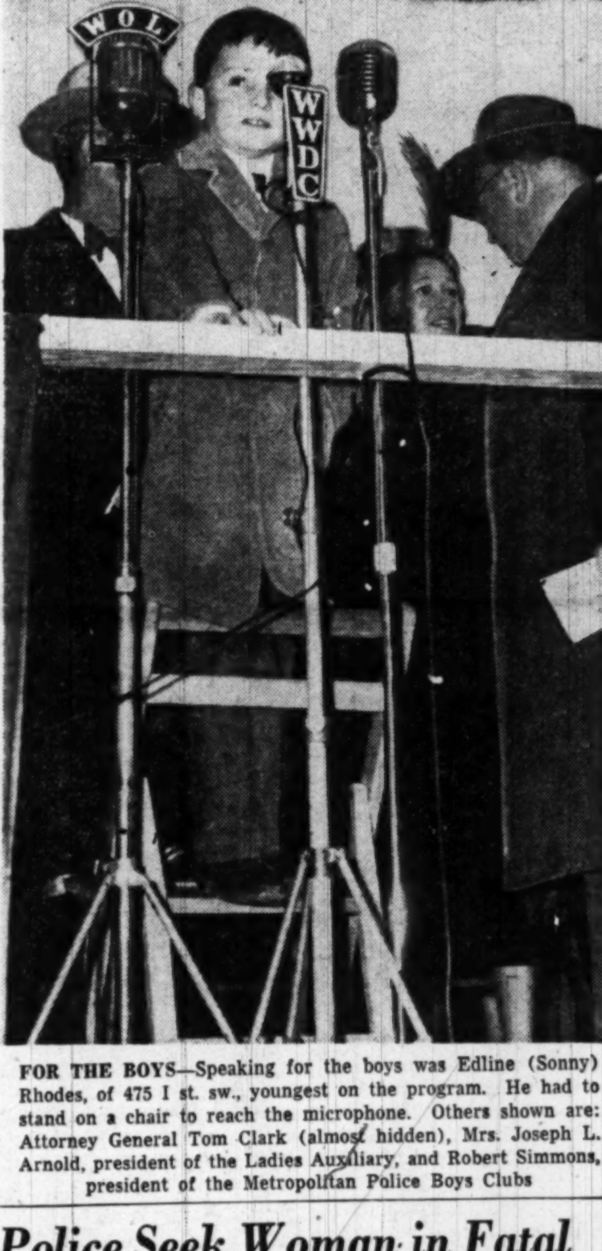
Barrett Thanks Donors

Major Barrett thanked the 67,000 contributor-members for the $225,000 collected in the drive last year, and recalled that 20 years ago, when he was a young policeman, "we didn't know what a boys' club was."

Other speakers were Mrs. Arnold, who told of the women's part in the project; Ernest W. Brown, former police superintendent, who opened the first club 14 years ago; Hyman Laskin, 17, and Alton Davis, 14, of the senior and junior club classes.

Guests introduced included Mrs. Louise Frazier, 79, known as "the Grandmother of Southwest," past Boys Club presidents Clifford Bangs, Morris Cafritz, Raymond Garrity and John Remon, and Leon Chatelain, jr., architect of the building and president of the Board of Trade.

The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Bernard Shaffer, pastor of St. Dominic's Church, while the Rev. Harry V. Porter, pastor of Westminster Presbyterian Church, gave the benediction. The dedication was opened by the singing of the National Anthem by Gene Archer accompanied by the Boys Club Band.



FOR THE BOYS—Speaking for the boys was Edline (Sonny) Rhodes, of 475 I st. sw., youngest on the program. He had to stand on a chair to reach the microphone. Others shown are: Attorney General Tom Clark (almost hidden), Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold, president of the Ladies Auxiliary, and Robert Simmons, president of the Metropolitan Police Boys Clubs

Choral Groups Feature Bach; Istomin's Chopin Bad Choice

Excerpts From Oratorio Sung by Church Choir

By Paul Hume

Choral music for the Christmas season floated on plenty of Washington air yesterday.

In National Presbyterian Church, Theodore Schaefer directed his choir in excerpts of parts 1 and 2 of Bach's Christmas Oratorio. Assisted by a harpsichord played by Charlotte Villanyi, and accompanying the choir himself, Schaefer brought forth surpassingly beautiful results. His choir, with surprisingly few men, has fine balance and enviable precision in mechanical matters. Their enunciation is also unaffectedly clear.

Katharine Hansel, soprano; Mary Alyce Bennett, mezzo; George Barritt, tenor, and John Walser, baritone, proved an admirable solo quartett. The conception of recitatives and arias alike was extremely romantic, with added appoggiaturas and extensive ritards.

With its tender chorales and great choruses, the Christmas Oratorio is a marvelous work for this time of year and a welcome relief from the cycle of Messiah performances. Too long for complete rendition at one time, it would be a privilege to hear Schaefer's choir give further parts of it in the equally appropriate post-Christmas weeks.

Bach was also the major portion of the Christmas concert of Catholic University's glee clubs.

The choruses sang in the university gymnasium, appearing for the first time under the direction of the Rev. Russell Woollen, newly appointed conductor of choral music at the university. Father Woollen succeeds Dr. Leo A. Behrendt, founder of the glee club and for 26 years their director.

Monsignor Jordan, vice rector of Catholic University, paid tribute to both directors, and presented Dr. Behrendt with a plaque commemorating his years of faithful service.

The music of the evening included the cantata, "A Child Is Born to Us," by Bach, and seasonal carols. Singing together and as separate clubs, the men and women of the chorus are to be commended for their industry. The ensemble sound is excellent, with a men's chorus of striking quality and balance. The women's side is still a bit light in tone, needing more voices in the middle and on top.

To sing well the great music programmed last night takes practice and months of singing together and listening to each other. Under Father Woollen's outstanding musicianship, the glee clubs have an unusual opportunity.

Young Pianist, However, Shows Fine Technique

By Richard Keith

Eugene Istomin, 23-year-old pianist, appeared as soloist yesterday afternoon with the National Symphony Orchestra at Constitution Hall.

His performance of the Chopin F Minor Concerto, a difficult and none too satisfactory work even when played by an experienced Chopin exponent, fell short of being an inspired interpretation.

This does not mean that Mr. Istomin did not display many fine traits of both technique and musicianship. He plays very accurately and although his tone is hardly suited to a lyric line, if often takes on, in rapid passages, a feathery quality which is as unusual as it is enchanting. One felt, nevertheless, that he would have been happier playing less romantic music.

Following the concerto, Dr. Hans Kindler led the orchestra in a performance of a work called "McKonkey's Ferry" by the unpredictable American composer George Antheil.

There is very little of the erratic Antheil in this musical expression of his feelings about Washington crossing the Delaware. Although the composer denies any attempt at description, the abundant use of wood block irresistibly suggests horses, which are difficult to fit in with a boat trip. "McKonkey's Ferry" has a fine chance of becoming popular because its tunes are easily grasped; its harmonies are quite conservative, and it has many startling moments.

The concert opened with a Harty arrangement of a Handel Passacaglia and closed with the Fifth Symphony of Beethoven.

Falls Church Annexation Study Slated

Formation of a committee to study Falls Church annexation plans will be undertaken tonight by representatives of citizens associations in the affected area.

The meeting, sponsored by the Tremont Gardens Citizens Association will be held at the home of H. H. Hewitt, president of the Tremont group, 125 Fairmont st., Tremont Gardens, at 8 o'clock.

Principal function of the proposed committee will be to accumulate "complete information" on advantages and disadvantages of annexation by Falls Church. Findings of the committee will be available to all participating citizens associations and to other organizations and individuals in the annexation zone.

Other citizens association which have been invited to join in formation of the committee include Jefferson Village, Brilyn Park, Tyler Park, Fenwick Park, Devonshire Gardens, Greenway Downs, Sleepy Hollow, Hillwood, Beechtree Farms and Lee Boulevard Heights.

Police Seek Woman in Fatal Stabbing of Alexandria Man

An Alexandria laborer was found stabbed to death in his rooming house about 2 a. m. yesterday, after he returned home from a drinking party.

Alexandria police said they were seeking a woman who was seen plunging a kitchen knife into the man's neck near the right ear.

The dead man, Roosevelt McNeal, 35, roomed at 911 N. Alfred st. Police said he and the woman had quarreled over a drink of liquor at a party both had attended at another Alexandria home. The man who told police he witnessed the slaying was held for investigation. His identity was not revealed.

Description Given

A lookout sent for the woman described her as a Negro, 34, dark brown complexion, about 5 feet, 1 inch tall, weighing about 150 pounds.

According to police, McNeal apparently left the party for home shortly after his argument with the woman. Sometime later, the woman and the witness they are holding went to McNeal's home and found him asleep.

The witness said, according to police, the woman obtained a kitchen knife and sank the blade in McNeal's neck. She then left. Police found McNeal dead.

In other assault cases in Washington over the weekend, a girl was shot, a man was slashed and another woman was cut and beaten.

Bystander Critically Shot

Apparently an innocent bystander, police said, Ruby Williams, 17, of 2007 Rosedale st. ne., was wounded critically in the chest as two men fought in a basement room in the 1000 block of 9th st. about 10:20 p. m. Saturday.

Ninth Precinct police held James Sidney Thomas, jr., 24, of 649 Orleans pl. ne., on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. Police said Thomas was fighting with Joseph Smallwood, 1009 7th st. ne. The wounded girl was taken to Casualty Hospital.

Clayton Horn was slashed across the abdomen in an altercation in his room at 904 4th st. sw. Saturday night by Earl Johnson, 23, of 352 McLean ave. sw., police reported. Horn was taken to Gallinger Hospital. Johnson was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

Hearing Today For 7 Arrested In Gaming Raid

Five men and two women, arrested in a gambling raid by the Thirteenth Police Precinct's recently formed vice squad, are scheduled for arraignment today before United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence.

Sergt. Philip L. Abel said between $4000 and $5000 was found in a trunk when the seven were seized, with numerous lottery slips, at 3:15 p. m. Saturday at 2315 Champlain st. nw. Abel said about $400 more in cash was found on Winston Sims, 48, of that address.

The others are Ben Hillman, 49, and Calvin Hulin, 32, also of the Champlain st. address; William T. Sullivan, 39, of 2412 17th st. nw., and Josephine Anderson, 24, and John T. Henderson, 24, both of 1637 Rosedale st. ne. All were charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips. Sims and Hillman were freed in $1500 bond and the others under $500 each.

Taxi Owner Killed as Car Swerves Off Road in Md.

2 Injured in Crash At Oxon Hill; Police Uncertain as to Who Was Driving

A taxicab driver was killed at Oxon Hill, Md., yesterday after his cab skidded on a rain-slick highway and crashed into a tree.

Sam Gouldman, 50, of 7392 Allentown rd., Oaklawn, Md., owner of several Diamond cabs, apparently died instantly of a fractured skull and crushed chest when his cab skidded in the rain a few minutes after noon in the 6100 block of Bock rd., Oxon Hill. Police reported the cab shot off the side of the road as it was headed toward Washington, struck and uprooted an 8-inch tree and turned on its side.

Gouldman's wife, Monnie, 46, suffered multiple abrasions and shock. Walter Payne, jr., 24, of 1307 12th st. nw., suffered back injuries. Payne's father was unscathed. Dr. James I. Boyd, Prince Georges County medical examiner, pronounced Gouldman dead on the scene. The District Heights Rescue Squad took the injured to Casualty Hospital.

Uncertain of Driver

Police Thomas R. Blandford and George R. Roland said they could not learn who was driving the cab when it crashed.

A hole 2 feet in diameter was torn in a wall of the home of M. S. Clark, gasoline station operator, on Route 1 at Engleside, Va., six miles south of Alexandria, when a tractor-trailer truck got out of control about 10 p. m. Saturday. Virginia State Police charged P. B. Tyson, Siler City, N. C., with reckless driving. They said Tyson apparently fell asleep.

Mother Suffers Shock

Clark's mother, Mrs. Viola Clark, alone in the house, suffered shock, police said, and was placed under the care of her physician. Tyson was admitted to Alexandria Hospital with head cuts.

Slumping at the wheel of his car as if asleep or ill, according to police, Thomas H. Henderson, 55, of 24 R st. ne., an Army Map Service employe, suffered possible fracture of both ankles, concussion and cuts of the head and leg when his car struck a tree near Georgia and Missouri aves. nw. at 10:45 a. m. yesterday. Henderson was taken to Freedmen's Hospital.

Sesqui Group To Utilize Housing File

The Inaugural Housing Bureau's master file of available tourist accommodations will be used to help house visitors to the District's Sesquicentennial celebration in 1950, a Board of Trade official said yesterday.

Thornton W. Owen, 2nd vice-president of the Board of Trade and chairman of its sesquicentennial committee, made the statement on the Board's new weekly radio series, "Your Town," over WTOP yesterday.

Another Board of Trade official, Harry L. Merrick, chairman of its planning activities committee, outlined major objectives of the Board for the coming year.

Among these, Merrick said on the broadcast, are: Improvement in the District's fiscal situation (the Board is supporting a proposed 2 per cent sales tax); a campaign against decentralization of city life as "a threat to the central business area," continued tourist and convention promotion, which now brings "about $60 million" of business yearly to the District; a congressional relations program.

The board will hold a dinner to welcome new members of Congress on January 4, he said, and stressed that it is the community's only official welcoming group.

Women Cautioned On Purse Snatchers

The 11 shopping days to Christmas will be days when purse snatchers and pickpockets will be the most active, Lieut. Edgar E. Scott, head of the robbery squad cautioned last night.

Lieutenant Scott outlined three situations which have led to a sharp increase in such robberies this month.

He said the shoulder-strap type of purse is made to order for the "dips," who can simply remove the wearer's billfold. The shoulder strap lessens the woman's contact with the bag and often she isn't aware she has been robbed until she tries to make a purchase.

Situation 2, involves women who place pocketbooks on store counters while examining merchandise, then become so engrossed that they forget about their purses.

The third situation centers around the feminine habit of carrying a handbag loosely. A woman who simply drapes an arm over her pocketbooks falls prey to purse snatchers.

Scott, who has served 18 years on the police force, suggests a basic rule to Washington women: Keep a firm grip on your purse and keep it in front of you.

Thief Leaves Some

Photographer's Mate 2/c John W. Watts, 22, attached to the Anacostia Air Station, has his own candidate for the mearest—and most unusual—thief of the week.

Watts recently borrowed $500 from a relative to help pay the hospital bills for his month-old, prematurely-born son, who is still at Bethesda Naval Hospital. He kept the money in a bureau drawer in the bedroom of his apartment at 623 A st. ne.

Sometime over the weekend, a thief entered the apartment and took two of the $100 bills. The rest of the money was not disturbed.

Toy Collection Center

A collection center for needy children, to be known as the Doll House, will be launched today at 7 a. m. at 8560 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, Md., as a Christmas project of the Silver Spring Memorial Post, VFW. It will be open daily from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. until Christmas eve for contributions of new, inexpensive toys which will be delivered Christmas morning.

Yule Music Program

The Montgomery Hills Parent-Teachers Association will meet at the junior high school at 8 p. m. Tuesday for a program of Christmas music.

The program will include vocal selections by Captain Kal De Vermond, a former member of the Chicago Civic Opera company, accompanied by Mrs. De Vermond; violin selections by Chester Petranek, supervisor of instrumental music in Montgomery County schools, accompanied by Mrs. John Thompson, and community singing led by Miss Ruth Nixon.

Loot Recovered Quickly

Steve Drabish of Somerset, Pa., walked into the First Precinct station house shortly before 4 a. m. yesterday to report the theft from his auto of clothes valued at $190.

"Is this your property?" police asked him, and pointed to a pile of clothes nearby. Drabish, with much surprise, said it was. Police then explained:

A passerby reported he saw a man take some clothes from Drabish's car, while it was parked at 10th and H sts. nw. Pvts. J. E. Donahue and J. Bradley began a search of the neighborhood. Two blocks away, at 9th and I sts. nw., they noticed a pile of clothes on the sidewalk with Jake S. Henry, 40, of 320 3d st. nw., standing next to them. Henry has been charged with grand larceny.

C. J. Lambrose Reburial Rites Wednesday

Mr. Lambrose

Sergt. Christ J. Lambrose, Washington serviceman who was killed in action October 1, 1944, in Holland, will be reburied at 2 p. m. Wednesday in Arlington National Cemetery. The Rev. Thomas Daniels, of St. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, will officiate.

Sergeant Lambrose, 24, was killed while serving with the 376th Field Artillery Parachute Battalion, Eighty-second Airborne Division. Previously he had fought in Africa, Sicily, and on the Anzio beachhead, where he was in action 65 days.

Born in Rockford, Ill., he attended public schools in Flint, Mich., and came to the District in 1939 with his family. Prior to entering the service in November, 1942, he was employed here as a sales driver by Canada Dry Ginger Ale, Inc.

Sergeant Lambrose is survived by his father, John Lambrose, of 4701 9th st. nw.; two sisters, Katherine and Esther Lambrose, and an aunt, Mrs. Ethel Chaconas.

Eugene Ford, Of Loew's Capitol, Dies

Mr. Ford

Eugene F. Ford, 53, managing director and stage producer for Loew's Capital Theater, noted for his yearly "Going Native" productions, died early yesterday at Doctors Hospital. He had been suffering from a heart ailment for two months.

The versatile "Gene" Ford, hoofer, song writer, stage manager, director and producer, first came to Washington in 1933 to put on the original "Going Native" revue at the Capitol.

Then working for New York's Capitol Theater, Mr. Ford was brought here by Carter T. Barron, Eastern manager of Loew's, Inc. He worte lyrics and music himself, skillfully blending the production from a cast of amateurs and semi-professionals.

Born in Portland, Me., Mr. Ford was educated there and at the Boston Latin School He later attended Erasmus High School in Brooklyn, N. Y., and Brooklyn College.

After his initiation into show business in 1909 as jack-of-all-trades for a Brooklyn silent movie house, Mr. Ford studied piano at the Louis Mollenhauer College of Music in Brooklyn.

He played piano for theaters in Portland and Brooklyn, and spent some time as pianist for the Copley Plaza Concert Orchestra in Boston.

In 1917, he went to the Globe Theater in New York as a dancer, under Producer C. B. Dillingham, rising to the post of stage manager in 1923. While there he helped stage such musical hits as "Chin-Chin," "Jack o'Lantern," "Good Morning, Dearie," "Tip Top," "Hitchy-Koo," and "Sunny."

In 1924, Mr. Ford went to St. Louis as producer of musical numbers for the St. Louis Municipal Opera Co. From 1926 to 1929, he was stage director for Producer Ned Wayburn in New York, directing vaudeville acts, revues, and Junior League shows. In 1928, he composed "Rain," an outstanding hit song of the period.

He spent four years from 1930 to 1934 at the Capitol Theater in New York, as associate stage producer; managing the appearances of Clark Gable, Robert Montgomery, and Una Merkel, among other Hollywood celebrites.

17 Boy Scout Teams Qualify In First Aid

Scouting may be for youngsters but more than 100 Arlington Boy Scouts have proven that in an emergency they can handle a man's job—life saving.

At the Fort Myer gymnasium Saturday six-man first-aid teams, representing 17 Boy Scout troops in Arlington County, qualified as first-aid corpsmen under the critical eyes of judges from the American Red Cross, the D. C. Park Police and the Health and Safety Committee of Arlington.

During this second annual first-aid contest, the teams, comprised of youngsters whose ages ranged from 12 to 17, were given simulated first-aid problems. Their "victims" suffered injuries from punctured chests, fractured thighs, broken collarbones and shock from "live" wires. The teams judged on speed, efficiency and the application of proper first-aid techniques given to each problem.

Through a maze of splints, bandages, salves and compresses, the young team-members moved swiftly to care for each "patient." All teams entered in the contest passed the tests required for first class scouts and in the final judging teams from the Cherrydale Scout Troop 141 tied with last year's winners, Clarendon Troop 104 for first place.

The wining teams were given a first aid kit and qualifying teams were presented flag emblems by the Arlington Civitan Club.

Members of the winning team from Troop 104 were: William Matthews, 14; Leroy Niskanen, 14; Forrest Stieg, 14; Heston Heald, 14; Thomas Thayer, 13 and Bert Malnick, 15.

Team members from Troop 141 were: Duane Crowther, 14; John Christensen, 13; Ray Ivie, 14; Gordon Thomas, 13; Evan Ivie, 17 and Laddie Higginson, 16.

Samuel Robert Young

Funeral services for Samuel Robert Young, 51, executive assistant to the Postmaster General will be held at 11 a. m. Tuesday in the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

The Rev. H. Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church at 16th and O sts. nw., will officiate, and burial will follow in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

Mr. Young died Saturday at Garfield Hospital of coronary thrombosis. He had been a member of the Postoffice Department for 25 years, and was credited with gathering evidence which led to the conviction of 29 persons in the "Jacob Baker Estate" mail fraud case in 1935. He was appointed assistant chief postoffice inspector in 1942, serving three years.

He leaves his wife of 1530 16th st. nw., his mother, Mrs. M. M. Young of Jackson, Miss.; and three sisters.

Besides his father, an employe of the Federal Security Agency, and mother, he is survived by two brothers, Ronald Lee, 10, and Kenneth T., 12.

Charles Crocker

His grandfather, Charles Crocker, helped build the Pacific link of the first transcontinental railroad and helped found the Southern Pacific company.

Crocker's scientific explorations in the yacht Zaca enriched several museums with specimens. He wrote several plays. An opera, "Fay-Yen-Fah" produced in Monte Carlo in 1926 won him the Medal of the French Legion of Honor.

Social Work Meeting Set Here Tuesday

Scope of a national survey of the field of social work education will be discussed at the first meeting of a National Advisory Committee of laymen and educators, which opens here Tuesday.

The meeting is sponsored by the National Council on Social Work Education. Those who attend will discuss four major problems in social work which are to be explored in a survey financed by the Carnegie Corp.

Purpose of the survey is to aid institutions of social work and welfare organizations, and to work out education programs to meet the demand for qualified social workers now needed in the field.

Among Washington residents who are members of the committee are: Social Security Commissioner Arthur J. Altmeyer, Mrs. Eugene Meyer, wife of the chairman of the board of The Washington Post, and the Rev. Raymond A. McGowan, director of the National Catholic Welfare Conference's Social Action Department. Dr. James L. Morrill, president of the University of Minnesota, is chairman of the group.

Dr. Ernest V. Hollis, chief of college administration for the United States Office of Education, has been selected to direct the study. Miss Alice L. Taylor, a social work educator, has been named assistant director.

Mrs. F. M. Polkinhorn

Funeral services for Mrs. Florence Muier Polkinhorn, 73, first principal of Chevy Chase High School, will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw., with burial in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Polkinhorn died Saturday after a long illness at her home, 1639 Harvard st. nw. She was the wife of Dr. Henry A. Polkinhorn, Washington physician.

Born in Ticonderoga, N. Y., she came to Washington in 1889. Her father, the late Dr. J. J. Muir, was for 34 years pastor of Temple Baptist Church and also served as chaplain of the United States Senate for seven years.

After her graduation from normal school, Mrs. Polkinhorn taught in District schools before becoming principal of Chevy Chase High School. She later worked for the Treasury Department and left there in 1923.

Mrs. Polkinhorn was a member of the Cultus Club, the Washington Club, and an organizer of the Freedom Unit of the American Red Cross here.

In addition to her husband, survivors are a daughter, Mrs. James K. Coleman, Charleston, S. C.; a stepson, John Henry Polkinhorn; a brother, Charles S. Muir, and a sister, Mrs. Elmer F. Yount, all of Washington, and one grandchild.

Boris S. Glagolin

Hollywood, Dec. 12 (AP).—Boris S. Glagolin, 70, veteran actor, who for 20 years was leading man of the Petrograd Literary Art Theater in his native Russia, died last night.

He came to the United States in 1927 as director of the Jewish Art Theater in New York. He came to Hollywood in 1937.

Parents Send Clark Plea on Playgrounds

A group of Northeast Washington parents has asked Attorney General Tom Clark to sustain the position of the National Park Service in the dispute over segregated recreation facilities here.

In a letter to Clark, sent last week, the Consolidated Parent Group, whose president is Gardner L. Bishop, said that "The position of the National Park Service constitutes sound public policy, dedicated to the best interests of the residents of the Nation's Capital."

Harry B. Merican, counsel for the group, wrote Clark that the Consolidated Parent Group "is an organization of residents of the District of Columbia who have combined for the purpose of opposing any discrimination against their children in the District of Columbia schools and recreation facilities because such discrimination deprives their children of their constitutional rights and hampers their development into good American citizens."

"Every day," the petition states, "we watch our children playing amicably in the streets with white children in the neighborhood. Yet, if the white youngsters go into the Rosedale playground—a far safer and more appropriate place for any children to romp—our sons and daughters must stay outside.

"In the whole Northeast section," the petition continues, "there is not a single playground open to colored children which has any such accommodations (as at Rosedale). In summer, Negro children have to swim in the Anacostia River, because no swimming pools are available. Some of them have drowned."

Bishop, head of the group, was spokesman for the parents of Browne Junior High School students who staged a two-month strike last year.

Presidential Family Sees Gridiron Club Skits

By Marie McNair

President and Mrs. Truman and thier daughter, Margaret were front row members of a giggling audience at the Gridiron Club Drones' annual party at the Statler Hotel yesterday.

Arriving at 6 o'clock, after most of the guests had sipped cocktails for an hour, the presidential party with the retiring president of the club, the new president and their wives took their places in the gilt chairs set up in the presidential ballroom. Mrs. Truman in a black frock and mustard-colored velvet hat trimmed with curly feather tips, had slipped a Persian lamb coat over her shoulders. Margaret wore black, too—a blond fur jacket and a tiny gold lame hat.

Traditionally the Gridiron Club dinner is "for men only." So the Drones—those members of the club who are no longer active—put on a follow up performance of the skits and songs, with ladies temporarily welcomed to the fold.

The retiring president of the club, Phelps Adams, and Mrs. Adams were at the door to welcome the guests and to introduce the new president of the journalists' club—Richard Wilson of the Des Moines Register and Tribune, and Mrs. Wilson. Mrs. Adams in a smart black faille frock wore a cluster of white butterfly orchids pinned to her glove at the wrist and a turban trimmed with glycerined ostrich sprays. Mrs. Wilson had chosen a brown costume, a brown flared-brim hat and had fastened a purple orchid to her shoulder.

Stassen a Guest

Before the presidential family arrived notables from all parts of the country had streamed in. There was former Gov. Harold Stassen, who made a try for the Presidency, with Mrs. Stassen, a tiny figure next to her husband, and wearing a gold satin frock with feathers on her brown hat.

The Egyptian Ambassador Mohamed Kamil Abul Rahim, newly arrived in Washington, was attending his first Gridiron Drones party, with Mme. Rahim, and I saw Justice Harold Burton and Mrs. Burton looking as though she might have stepped out of the pages of a Godey's Ladies Book, in a striped brown and black taffeta suit, a high brown hat with pale stiff feathers and a veil which fastened under her chin.

"They deserve a lot of credit" Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder said, referring to the weeks of work put in by Gridiron members on their entertainment program, much of which had to be rewritten after elections. And he added "it's a wonderful show." Mrs. Snyder, with him, was in black with cut-out motifs on her frock and black feathers adorning her hat.

Reports on Husband

Mrs. Warren Austin, wife of the former Senator, now head of the U. S. delegation to United Nations, told me her husband is progressing excellently at the hospital and expects to be released in a week.

I saw Speaker Joe Martin on the sidelines; Mrs. Arthur Vandenberg, without the Senator, all in black and gray, arriving with Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan and Capt. and Mrs. William Murphy. Senator Homer Ferguson without his Mrs., talked earnestly with Justice Robert Jackson, who was accompanied by Mrs. Jackson.

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Julius Krug were there and Senator and Mrs. Tom Connally, and one of the best-looking couples in the room was Stewart Symington, Secretary of the Air Force, and Mrs. Symington, whose black frock was topped by a salmon-colored velvet hat.

Thomas Dewart, owner and publisher of the New York Sun, and Edwin S. Friendly, vice president and general manager of the same paper, with Mrs. Friendly, were the center of a newspaper group, and Robert Lincoln O'Brien, for many years in "the business" held his own court from a seat near the bar. Still others there were former Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, the Arthur Gardiners, Clifford Folger, Mrs. George Mesta in swirling black taffeta and a small beige beaver hat trimmed in black ribbons, good looking Mrs. Clifton Cates, wife of the Commandant of the Marine Corps, smartly turned out in hunter's green from head to toe, with Col. and Mrs. L. B. Cresswell and Col. and Mrs. Harold E. Rosencrans.

Mrs. Stone Attends

It was nice to see Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, widow of the Chief Justice, who rarely goes to parties now. Mrs. Charles Ross, wife of the Presidential Secretary, was being greeted at every turn and then I saw the James Vardamans, Mr. and Mrs. Lisle Smith in a group which included Mr. and Mrs. Smith Bowman, all up from Virginia for the occasion; Miss Bertha Joseph in a wine velvet hat brought from Paris by her brother; Mrs. Arthur MacArthur, and Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Justice, Mr. and Mrs. Roy St. Lewis, and arriving as a foursome, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carusi and Mr. and Mrs. Lauriston Hardin.

Before the program got under way Mr. Adams made the introductory speech referring to his successor as the man who has given him the distinction of being the only president in Washington who has retired this year. Mrs. Walker Buel was in the audience to see her husband serve as capable master of ceremonies and earlier in the evening I saw a gigantic oil man wrapped in a newspaper being smuggled through the cocktail room to the stage door for the "lunatic engineer," who turned out to be one of the hits of the show.

Baby Irene Slocum Is Christened

With members of the families and a small group of close friends attending, Irene Marguerite Slocum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Slocum of Tuxedo Park, N. Y., was christened yesterday at the home of her great-grand mother, Mrs. Herbert J. Slocum. Dr. Stark of Epiphany Church officiated at the ceremony.

The baby's godmothers are Mrs. Slocum, her great-grandmother, and Mrs. F. Montague A. Stafford of Montreal. Godfather is the baby's uncle, Allen T. Schumacher of New York.

Church Association Meets for Benefit Tea

Women's Association of Georgetown Presbyterian Church gave a silver tea last week at the home of Miss Virginia Brown, 2903 P st. nw., for the benefit of its reserve fund.

Mrs. Theodore Wedel reviewed the book, "China, Twilight or Dawn?" Mrs. John Bailey Kelly poured, and those assisting included Miss Sallie Jones, Mrs. M. R. Martin, Mrs. David Auld and Mrs. Robert Likins.

Mrs. C. C. Clark Changes Christmas Plans

Due to the illness of her daughter, Mrs. Henry H. George of Norfolk, Va., Mrs. Charles C. Clark will not go to San Francisco as planned, to spend Christmas with her son Gen. Mark Clark and his family at the Presidio.

Mrs. Joseph Wade Penton, jr., was married Saturday at St. Mark's and the Incarnation Lutheran Church, the Rev. Henry Mankin, jr., officiating. The bride is the former Miss Margaret Edyth King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Taylor King. Given in marriage by her father, Mrs. Penton wore white slipper satin with an heirloom veil and carried white roses and camellias. The newlyweds will spend their honeymoon in Texas and return to make their home in Washington

Hood

Mrs. Paul Chakalos, the former Miss Mary Majouronis who has recently come to this country from Greece, became a bride on December 2. The Rev. Thomas Daniels and Archimandritis Germanos Psaliokis performed the ceremony at the Greek Orthodox Church of St. Constantine and Helen. The bridegroom is the son of Theodore Chakalos of Silver Spring, Md. The bride wore white satin with an orange blossom crown holding her veil and she carried orchids and white roses

Hood

Mrs. Richard C. Caldwell wore a royal blue suit with matching hat and an orchid corsage for her wedding on December 5. Chaplain Gordon G. Halley performed the ceremony at Memorial Chapel of Walter Reed General Hospital and a reception followed at the Wardman Park Hotel. The bride is the former Miss Ellan Marie Hoggard, daughter of Mrs. Ellen Hoggard of Palmyra, N. C. Lieutenant Caldwell is the son of Mrs. Cecil Crowder of New Castle, Va.

Spencers Hosts After Concert

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Spencer entertained at a reception following the National Symphony Orchestra at Constitution Hall yesterday afternoon. Guest of honor was Eugene Istomin, pianist, guest artist at the concert.

Among those who attended the reception were Col. and Mrs. David S. Barry, Senator and Mrs. J. William Fulbright, Admiral and Mrs. Emory S. Land, Mr. and Mrs. A. Lloyd Symington, Mr. and Mrs. L. Corrin Strong, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Finkenstaedt, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Dominick, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Glover, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Philip G. Strong.

Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony, and Mrs. Kindler were there and others were Mr. and Mrs. DeForest Van Slyck, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Leonid Ourusoff, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, Dean and Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Burling, jr., Frank R. Jelleff, Mr. and Mrs. Milton King, Walter Prendergast, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Klagsbrun, Mr. and Mrs. David Karrick and Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Oliphant.

Mrs. E. D. Foster To Be Guest Speaker

Mrs. Edwin D. Foster, vice president of the Woman's Army Navy League and wife of Rear Admiral Foster, paymaster of the Navy, will be guest speaker for the luncheon meeting of the Coast Guard Welfare Organization, Washington Unit, on Tuesday at the Army - Navy Country Club.

She will discuss the Soldiers' Sailors' and Marines' Club, one of the welfare group's major projects this year. Arrangements for the luncheon are being made by Mrs. William Smith and Mrs. James C. Wendland.

Alice B. Wheelock Is Bride

A marriage of wide interest to Washington's service society took place Saturday at the Cadet Chapel at the United States Military Academy, when Alice Beukema Wheelock became the bride of Major Joseph Correll Kearfott Miller, jr. Maj. H. J. Kregel, post chaplain, performed the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Herman Beukema of West Point and Major Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. K. Miller of Kent, Ohio.

Colonel Beukema gave his daughter in marriage and Miss Aldrienne Miller was maid of honor for her sister-in-law. The bride's brother, Capt. Henry S. Beukema, was best man and the ushers included Lieut. Col. A. A. Greene, Lieut. Col. W. R. Shanahan, Lieut. Col. B. J. Smith and Maj. J. H. Camp.

Mrs. Miller is a graduate of Rosemary Hall and Vassar College. Her husband received his bachelor's and master's degrees from Ohio State University. During the war he served with the 28th Field Artillery Battalion, Eighth Infantry Division.

Major Miller and his bride will be at home after Christmas in Fairlington, Va., while he is stationed in the office of the Under Secretary of the Army.

Mrs. Harriet Shupe Hostess at Cocktail Party

Mrs. Harriet Shupe entertained at a cocktail party Saturday for Edward Stone of New York, the weekend guest of her son, Lieut. Comdr. Ralph Pierce McDonnell.

Among the guests were Col. Gilbert Hunting, Col. and Mrs. David I. Dodenhoff Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chamblin, jr., Mr. and Mrs. James W. Douthot, Mrs. Harris Kidney, Dr. and Mrs. William Boyd Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. John A. Croghan.

Reception Held After Christening

Wearing her maternal great-grandmother's christening dress, Patricia Frances Dulin, born June 18, 1948, was christened yesterday in St. Paul's Church, Rock Creek Parish, by the Rev. Dr. Franklin Johns Bohanan, rector emeritus of St. Paul's, and now at Washington Cathedral.

A sixth-generation area resident, Patricia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Dulin, and the granddaughter of Mrs. Frank M. Stuart of this city, the late Capt. Frank M. Stuart and the late Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Dulin.

Godparents included two aunts, Mrs. E. Milton Dulin of Baltimore, Md. Mrs. John D. Dulin of this city, and an uncle, James O. Haynes, jr., of Kensington, Md.

Restoring Color To Garments.

My 2-year-old daughter splashed a strong bleach solution (chlorine) on a pair of red corduroy trousers. They are cotton and have never been laundered. It left some yellow spots on them. Can anything be done to restore the color of these spots?

L. G. M.

You could dip the garment in dye to cover the spots. Or, if the spots are not too numerous, you may be able to apply red dye to just the spots with a paint brush. Since there is no sure way of setting the dye when applied in spots, it will wash out each time the garment is washed, but it should not be too difficult to renew it each time. Here's another thought: since the bleach was full strength, the spots will probably wear through very soon, so perhaps you would be ahead to patch the spots now with matching material.

In passing I would urge you to place the bleach out of the reach of your 2-year-old. It would hurt her seriously if she were to spill it on herself.

Please tell me the procedure to follow in packing a satin wedding dress and veil away in order that it may be used in later years. The veil has a cap which is embroidered with seed pearls. Should the cap be removed from the veil?

C. L. B.

Be sure that the dress is absolutely clean and then fold it with much tissue paper so that as near as possible there is tissue paper between each fold of the dress. The dark blue tissue, made especially for wrapping white fabrics to be stored, is sold at a paper supply house on Pennsylvania ave. which can be reached by calling NAtional 2945. When the gown and veil are well wrapped, place them in a very large box, the gown on the bottom, the veil on top. Sprinkle fresh pyrethrum powder or other silverfish preventative powder over it (silverfish are fond of rayons and starchy sizing). If the pearl cap can be removed without taking the entire veil apart, I would suggest doing it. If not, stuff the cap with tissue and place at the edge of the box where its weight will not mash the veil. Store the box in a dry, storage space where it will not be subjected to extremes of temperature.

I would like some information on decoupage work. Do any hobby shops give instructions in it?

C. W. T.

Decoupage, or the cutting of pictures and placing them on another background to make a design, does not seem to be practiced today. I have been unable to find a hobby shop which gives instructions in it.

I had baby bottles stored for two years. During that time they acquired a grayish film which resists washing with hot water and soap. How can I restore them to their original condition?

The grayish film is probably a mineral deposit caused by boiling the bottles in hard water. To get rid of it, add a cup of vinegar to the water in which they are boiled.

I stored two light blue wool suits in garment bags with para crystals over the summer. These were not cleaned before storing and upon taking them out I find tiny, rust-colored spots all over the garments. Can you tell me what these spots may be and how I may remove them?

L. S. N.

I would suggest you take the suit to a reliable dry cleaner for identification of the spots and their removal.

Where can I buy materials and get instructions for making Xmas cards in Washington, D. C., or vicinity?

E. W.

An art supply store on 13th st. nw. sells kits for making Christmas cards at home. This store can be contacted by calling National 6386 I do not know of any classes in Christmas card making that you could join at this time.

Questions and contributions to the "Ask Anne" column should be in written form. We sincerely regret that time does not permit handling these on the telephone. Address letters to Anne, Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

A wise move, Petunia! Your skin stays younger longer, if you use a bit of aromatic vinegar to rinse off all the soap after each washing.

Marjorie Webster Students to Play Santa to Central Mission Tots

Seventy boys and girls from the Children's Emergency Home of Central Union Mission will be guests at a party sponsored by the students of Marjorie Webster Junior College at 6 o'clock today. The children will be taken out to the college by bus and given a light supper, after which the students will present an original skit concluding with Santa Claus coming from the chimney, bringing a bag of clothing and toys for each boy and girl.

The Marjorie Webster girls will help the children dress up in their wonderful new clothes and play with the toys until ice cream and cake is served. Then Christmas carols will be sung until 70 tired, but happy, boys and girls are ready to go home to bed and dreams of the most wonderful Christmas party they have ever had.

A Love of Beauty

Take time to go see a lovely sunset or beautiful rainbow when your child calls for you to come admire it. It will encourage appreciation and love of the beautiful' in the child and should not be passed over with a "I have not time just now." If you are working under such a strain as that, it will do you as much good as the child to see something altogether lovely.

When Scrubbing Floors

Always wipe up the floor with a rag wrung out of clear water after scrubbing with a brush and suds. It is almost as important as the loosening the dirt. Do not let little puddles of water stand after mopping up the floor; they will soften the wood, causing the floor to splinter easily and if left on linoleum, will cause it to rise up in lumps on the floor.

Mrs. Joseph N. Todd To Entertain for Patriotic Women

Mrs. Joseph N. Todd of 1417 Longfellow st. nw. will be hostess to members of the District Council of Patriotic Women of America, Inc., at a Christmas party Wednesday.

Mrs. Todd will be assisted by Mrs. Cornelius Jacoby, Miss Margaret Louise O'Brien, Mrs. Charles R. Strode, Mrs. Enos Newman, Miss Imogene Philibert and Mrs. John Morrison Kerr. Miss Alice Hutchins Drake will be guest speaker.

Household Hints

Tea and coffee pots are better left open when not in use.

Slip a thimble into the finger of the glove when mending it, as a "darner."

An electric iron by itself is harmless, but in connection with a woman, a door bell and a forgotten switch, it is apt to be the touch that burns down one's home.

Burned Enamel

White enameled kitchen pans and kettles seem pretty hopeless when food has burned in them. However, put a quantity of soap powder and boiling water in them and let stand for three or four days. All blackness will wash off with a soft cloth and no injury to the enamel.

Doings of the Day . . .

ALICIA MARKOVA started dancing because of a health handicap—and became a world-famous ballerina

Dancing Is Best Exercise, Says Famous Ballerina

By Ida Jean Kain

WHEN Ballerina Alicia Markova dances, her exquisite beauty of movement, her perfect legs, everything about her makes it hard to believe that she began ballet because of a handicap. Markova's story holds the promise that defects cannot only be overcome—they can sometimes be the beginning of a whole new life.

"I started ballet because of a farsighted physician," she explains. "When I was 9 years old I was knock-kneed, and my legs were so weak and thin that my mother took me to a specialist. Instead of putting me in iron braces, he suggested we give ballet a trial. So I was sent to the local dancing academy every Saturday. I had no notion of making dancing my career—I was there for my health and to overcome a handicap. That's how it all began."

Markova's legs are beautiful proof of the corrective value of ballet training. How long did it take? In just a few weeks there was a noticeable improvement. And in a few months, she had accomplished her original purpose—to straighten and strengthen her legs. Then, as you know, she went on to become a world-famous ballerina.

"There's no need to get over-developed, muscular legs," she declares, "not if you are trained correctly over a long-enough period of time. Of course, it should never be done too quickly."

She says that warming up in wool tights keeps the muscles fluid, and that's a leg-slimming tip well worth taking, girls. All professional dancers and skaters—at least the ones with perfect legs—always work out in wool tights. It makes for long, smooth muscles, instead of contracted, bulgy calf muscles.

I talked with Markova backstage when she and her partner, Anton Dolin, appeared in Washington, recently with the National Symphony Orchestra. She is a gentle, gracious person, wonderfully relaxed. Nervousness, a dumpy figure, the fear of growing old—there shouldn't be such things, she says. Her formula for overcoming these ills is practical enough—normal exercise, buoyant posture, good food and not too much of it, and mental growth.

Our ballerina enthusiastically recommended exercise of the whole body—like dancing. "You don't dance with the legs only . . . you dance with all of you."

She is only 5 feet 2½ inches, but she looks almost tall because of her posture.

"I lift when I walk," she explains. "I take the weight in the body instead of leaving it in the feet. That way there can be no middle spread or bunions."

Markova firmly believes any form of good ballet training can help a girl look better, breathe better, and wear her clothes beautifully.

Her posture tip: Keep the chest up—don't throw the bust forward. Hold shoulders straight and down. And use your back-bone—keep it straight.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 18, Drawing $50 Weekly Take-Home Pay, Gives One-Fifth To Grandparents Who Reared Her; But Aunt Thinks She Should Give More

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am one of four daughters, all of us long since grown. Our parents have always been almost poor, always more or less in debt; and my two older sisters and I contributed over 90 per cent of our earnings to them until we were past 30 years of age, when they no longer needed much help.

When I married at 32, I had less than $500 saved, although I was practiced in thrifty expenditure for clothing and other things.

My youngest sister married at 16 and within a year produced a baby girl whom she didn't want. My parents legally adopted the child and have reared her as their own. Later my sister obtained a divorce and married again, but never at any time has she helped our parents financially and now they are in debt again for approximately one thousand dollars.

Says Girl Lives Only For Clothes

THE GRANDCHILD, Jane, is now 18; she is graduated from high school and has an excellent office job which nets her about $50 a week "take-home" pay. She still lives at home and pays my mother $10 a week; and all things considered, I think she should pay more.

Jane was one of the best-dressed girls in high school and today she seems to live for clothes. If she doesn't feel a responsibility to help my parents meet their expenses, should she be asked to do so? Or am I wrong in thinking she owes them a larger weekly contribution? Please answer before December 15, if possible.

C. K.

Aunt's Viewpoint Is Self-Revealing

DEAR C. K.: If your parents were passing the hat to you or other married offspring for financial help in meeting their latest indebtedness, or if they had privately sought your advice and advocacy in trying to wrest more than $10 a week from Jane, there would be appropriate warrant for concerning yourself about her habits of expenditure.

Yet if your parents were looking to you for such help, I assume you would have said so, in order to strengthen your complaint against Jane; and the fact that you haven't suggests that your concern in the matter is wholly self-generated; and I think it connotes personal grievance rather than simon-pure filial solicitude.

Severity of temperament is a customary by-product of a hard-driven early life. One must have had some memorable incidents of pleasure and satisfaction in early years, in order to feel a benevolent sympathy with the frivolities of youth as one gets older; and it seems you were exploited by your childish parents—when their burdens were heaviest—to a degree that denied you such experience.

Envious Attitude Is Implicit Here

CONSEQUENTLY you have no patience with their more lenient treatment of Jane, who came to them after the bulk of their family was off their hands; and indeed you resent the contrast between your hard lines at home as a girl—when your parents intercepted 90 per cent of your earnings as their due—and Jane's comparatively pampered luxurious lot in the same household, which, although still operating hand-to-mouth, concedes her the privilege of disbursing four-fifths of her pay check as she chooses.

Thinking back on what your parents required of you, and thinking also that Jane's mother, even as she, never sacrificed in their service, you see injustice—to somebody—in the present arrangement. But if we could bring your impatient emotions fully to light, I think we would find that the person wronged, per your conviction, is you; and that your militant desire to have your parents cut more heavily into Jane's salary is sparked by indignant envy and not by dispassionate logic, as you fancy.

Thus it seems to me that your feelings aren't a good guide to right action; and my advice is not to intrude in your parents' financial affairs unless and until they invite your suggestions.

Festive Touches for Holiday Baking

Something novel in the way of confections is a good idea at holiday time. The Woman's Home Companion suggests dipping tiny fruitcake cubes in candy-dipping chocolate, and trimming with silver shot.

For a less gastrically challenging desert, the magazine suggests putting marshmallows on top of the apples you bake, three minutes before you take them out of the oven.

Any left over walnuts? Dip the halves in slightly beaten egg white, then in a cinnamon and sugar mix such as you use for cinnamon toast. Bake in a shallow pan in a slow oven for 15 minutes. Good to serve with after dinner coffee, says The Woman's Home Companion.

Sticky Tape Invaluable for Wrapping

Keep a spool of transparent sticky tape handy at Christmas time. It's an invaluable help in making your packages neat, because it holds the paper securely. Add the fancy trimmings over the tape.

Save broken Christmas tree ornaments with a length of tape; if the tops are snapped off, attach the ornament to the tree with tape. Tree ornaments are so light that the paper tape supports them perfectly.

Seal the cut ends of pine branches used for holiday decorations with transparent tape. It prevents the pine sap, which will stain anything it comes in contact with, from dripping all over.

Gay Chintz and Padding Improves Windsor Chair

That wooden Windsor chair in the guest room will look much more homelike if you make a padded seat and back rest and cover it with a gaily printed chintz or cretonne. Several thicknesses of cotton batting the exact shape of the seat, covered with several thicknesses of cheesecloth, and quilted a bit to keep its shape, may serve as a foundation. Cover with cretonne and make tapes of the same material to tie to the chair.

When saving small bits of butter from individual butter plates, run cold water over the butter while still on the plates to remove any crumbs that may have clung to it. Then store for cooking in a small container.

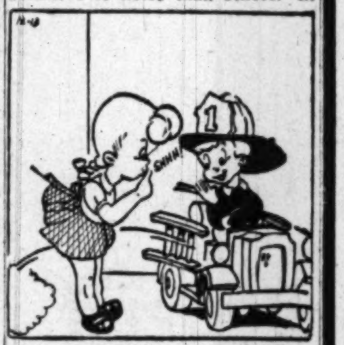
Life Goes on While Baby Sleeps

Babies are pretty sturdy creatures. There's no need to maintain a morgue-like quiet around the house when they're napping or during the early hours of their night's sleep. The "shushing" of older children and the tiptoeing around the house carried on in some families is quite unnecessary.

Infants used to such silence are too easily disturbed by the noises that can't be avoided. If they start out in a home where a reasonable amount of activity goes on during sleeping time, they soon become used to daily sounds and are not disturbed by them. Naturally, shouting or other especially noisy pastimes should be toned down, but "life as usual" is preferable to rigidly maintained silence.

Older brothers and sisters will be willing to cooperate within reason. If they are expected to be absolutely quiet, however, it is quite likely that some resentments toward the little "king-pin" will develop.

There are individual differences, of course. Some babies are more sensitive to noise than others. In such cases a bit more care may have to be used. Usually, though, the baby can "take it" when it comes to the day-by-day sounds around the home.



C., 1948, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The School Child

Wake the child in plenty of time for him to do all the necessary preparation without rushing.

The wise mother will see that the child takes his bath at night. Then if the morning ablutions are a bit sketchy, it will not matter so much.

Mother will also put out the clothes for the next day on a special chair. Then she is not interrupted in her breakfast preparations by that familiar cry, "What shall I wear?"

When the child is dressed he should come down to a nourishing, well-balanced breakfast and have time to eat it enjoyably. It is a job in itself to get a child off to school without confusion, but it can be done if there is a system.

A Daily Task

The bathroom mirror each morning after the men have departed will be found to have decorations of shaving soap, toothpaste, etc. If you will just wipe it off each day with the towel destined for the clothes hamper you will find these small particles will polish the glass as they are being wiped off.

The Cluttered Home

Do not have so many things around your home that it is impossible for you to keep them dusted and in proper condition. It is time to weed out and give away things if they have gotten beyond you. You will be happier with less to take care of and you can make some one less fortunate than you happy also.

Reception for Prof. Salas at University

The president of the American University, Dr. Paul Douglass, and the Ambassador of Chile, Felix Nieto del Rio, joined in a Christmas reception yesterday to honor Dr. Eugenio Pereira Salas, professor of American history at the University of Chile, and Senora Pereira Salas, who is a specialist in the music of the Americas. The reception, held at the president's home on the American University campus, was a testimony to the affection in which Professor and Senora Pereira Salas are held by the community of Washington and the faculty and students of American University. Dr. Pereira Salas has been serving at the university under a travel grant program of the Department of State.

In the receiving line were the Ambassador and Senora Nieto del Rio, Professor and Senora Pereira Salas, Professor Harold E. Davis, director of Latin-American area studies at the American University; Dr. Jorge Basadre, director of cultural affairs of the Pan American Union; Mrs. Olga Bricenio, cultural attache, Venezuelan Embassy; Professor Ruberta Olds and Miss Anita Ayala of the faculty of the university, Colonel E. R. Closson and Miss Jean Hudson, president of the Pan American Club.

Among the guests were the Spanish language teachers of the schools of Metropolitan Washington.

Professor Davis, in presenting Professor Pereira Salas, said that the opportunity for university people to join faculties of universities in other countries enables scholarly writing about the ways of other peoples. He pointed out that the Institute Chileno-Norteamericano de Cultura in Santiago, founded in 1938, has a board of directors consisting of both Chilean and United States citizens who share the responsibility for its direction and that as chairman of the institute's fellowship and scholarship selection committee, Professor Pereira Salas screens candidates for study and training in the United States.

Professor Pereira Salas' volume on "A History of the Relations Between Chile and the United States" is now in press and will be published before he leaves the United States to resume his duties in Sanitiago.

Pomander Balls Can Be Different

Pomander balls are usually made of oranges or apples, thoroughly studded with cloves, but there's another way.

The Woman's Home Companion suggests using those metal strainer-like tea balls—any size—to hold your favorite sachet powder or spice. Paint designs on them with enamel, pricking any paint that settles in the holees with a toothpick. When dry, line with cotton fabric and then fill with the scented powder.

Scuffed Shoes

Do not tear off the jagged piece of leather when you have scuffed your shoes. Fasten it down with a little glue or colorless nail polish and after it is thoroughly dried, polish the shoes right over it. It will never be noticed.

FRESH vegetables, crisp and crunchy, make ideal appetizers when you give a party. Carrot sticks, celery stalks, radishes, cucumbers and raw cauliflower make this tempting tray. Besides having food value, they are non-fattening, too

Party Snacks Calorie Counters Can Enjoy

By Ann Williams-Heller

Author of "Cooked to Your Taste" and "It's a Sin to Be Fat."

Yes—read it again—you can have both. You can go to a party without being a spoil-sport and refusing what your hostess has prepared for her guests and expects to be complimented on. You can do honor to the snack tray and yet keep to your own private dieting rules.

In your everyday life it is just a matter of will power and sensible eating habits to refrain from between-meal snacks, however tempting they may be. But many social gatherings nowadays are built around cocktails, tea and after-supper coffee. No matter what the social solvent of the occasion may be, it is invariably accompanied by a Gargantuan tray of snacks—sweet or pickled, round, square or three-dimensionally sculptural, in all the colors of the United Nations, and all the tastes nature and artifice can contribute.

● NEAT TRICK...

Yes, sir. It's a neat trick if it can be done, and there IS a place where it can be done,—Cody's Servicenter, the most unusual place in town. They repair just about everything! Luggage, handbags, zippers, nylons, umbrellas, cigarette lighters and jewelry. They reweave burns and moth holes. They feature alterations and custom dry cleaning. Cody's Servicenter, 712 12th Street, N.W. STerling 7098. Mail orders accepted.

What you can do and still be a charming guest is to select your snacks wisely and put a curb on quantity. Steer clear of mayonnaise, heavy creams and fatty foods such as eel, caviar, bacon or pate de foie gras. Don't touch sweet snacks and petit fours; they are definitely taboo. Don't ever start to sample nuts. You know what happens!

But there are always raw carrot sticks, celery stalks and plain olives somewhere on the snack tray; you can eat those in modeate quantity. You most certainly will also find some radishes and plain crackers. Cold cuts, such as lean ham, tongue and roast beef, are your choice over rich pates, anchovies and caviar.

Here's another trick: most snack platters are garnished with bouquets of parsley or water cress. Eat one of the bouquet sprigs and experience its hidden qualities. While refreshing in taste, parsley or water cress takes away the craving for food, at least for a little while.

As to sweets, have fresh fruit or a fruit cocktail instead of candies, glazed fruit or small pastries.

BUT if you are the hostess, the whole party snack picture can be changed. Then you can select the foods and you can make your snacks as calorie-light as you may wish them to be. By applying new ideas you can make your appetizers look just as colorful and be just as tasty as all the old standbys of other peoples' parties. They will be different; yet isn't it the dream of every hostess to serve her guests with something they haven't eaten before?

Serving snacks the calorie-wise way will bring you many thank-you's from your guests.

Here are a few general suggestions:

1. Use more low-calorie vegetables, especially mushrooms, for the making of your snacks. They have more individual color and taste than meat.

2. Use lemon juice and just a few drops of olive oil or tart fruit juice (such as grapefruit, currant and cranberry) to season your tidbits and canapes instead of the traditional rich mayonnaise and heavy cream.

3. Herbs are just as savory and more delicate in taste than hot spices. So are celery salt and garlic salt. All of them will have a new and sophisticated taste appeal and they will do their share to please your guests' palates.

4. Serve relishes in small helpings and in a manner that they are easy to handle with the fingers; use toothpicks as handles, whenever advisable. Serve in little paper cups whenever you can skip bread. Or—and this looks very nice without calling for too much work—serve in small lettuce leaves formed into cups.

5. Whenever bread is needed, use thin slices or low-calorie crackers.

6. Have one bowl with mayonnaise and another with spiced sour cream somewhere on the table, so that your guests may help themselves in case they care for it.

Following are a few practical suggestions for your party snack tray; you will soon find many other ways for more variety and taste yourself.

Almost all vegetables can go into the making of snacks and canapes. And, remember, lettuce cups and small crackers can be used.

It would be impossible to list all the combinations of raw and cooked vegetables as they can be made. Here are a few raw vegetables combinations: beets, spinach, cucumber, red cabbage, apples, celery, carrots, radishes, escarole, young peas, tomatoes, water cress, cole slaw, celery, radishes.

Leafy greens are cut fine; tomatoes, radishes and cucumbers are sliced and then quartered, if necessary for size. Radishes can also be shredded. All other vegetables are best chopped—medium or fine.

Grated vegetables, if you prefer grating to chopping, should immediately be sprinkled with lemon juice to prevent discoloration. Carrots improve in taste if mixed with chopped parsley. Chopped or grated beets are delicious if mixed with a little grated horseradish.

The following combinations of cooked and raw vegetables are tasteful and easy to put together: asparagus tips, cucumber, radishes, celery knobs, tomatoes, apples, peas, green pepper, water cress.

Smooth and Thin

When selectiong lemons, look for the smooth-skinned ones as they usually are indicative that the lemon is thin-skinned and will yield more juice. The rougher skins are thicker and with fewer pores, and much less juices is in this type of lemon.

Tuck Denounces Cross-Burning; Probe Ordered

Burning of a cross near Suffolk, Va., Saturday night brought condemnation yesterday from Governor Tuck, attending the Southern Governors' Conference in Savannah, Ga.

Tuck wired his State police to investigate for any law violation, adding, "The activities of the Klan are offensive to the sensibilities of the law-abiding citizens of Virginia. We will not allow any of our people of any race to be subjected to terrorism or intimidation i nany form by the Klan or any other organization whose main strength and forte is based on terror."

Simultaneously, Nansemond County Commonwealth's Attorney Paul L. Everett launched a probe into the cross-burning at Nurneyville, 6 miles south of Suffolk. Unless the 100 persons reported as participating wore masks, the gathering probably could not be considered illegal, Everett said. Witnesses reported the cross-burners wore white robes.

Oil Commission Urges Tidelands Title to States

Wichita, Kans., Dec. 12 (AP).—The Interstate Oil Compact Commission today urged Congress to give the title to tidelands oil clearly to the States—and named an inland governor, Frank Carlson of Kansas, its 1949 chairman.

Carlson, during the two-day meeting, was one of several spokesmen for State control, rather than Federal, of oil and gas resources of the Nation.

A Republican and former member of Congress, he succeeds Democrat Governor Beauford H. Jester of Texas as head of the 21-State cooperative agency promoting oil and gas conservation.

Maryland Man's Christmas Plans Ruined by Flames

Jesse Stevens, laborer on John E. Muncaster's 400-acre farm near Gaithersburg, Md., saw his Christmas go up in smoke yesterday.

Fire destroyed the one-story frame dwelling he had built just three weeks ago on Muncaster's farm, carrying with it all his effects and a $100 bill he had been saving for Christmas.

The Gaithersburg - Washington Grove Volunteer Fire Department extinguished the blaze about 1:30 p. m., 45 minutes after it was noticed, too late to save anything. Cause of the fire was undetermined. During the firefighting, shotgun shells inside the shed-like dwelling exploded like Stevens' hopes, but struck no one.

Stevens, about 45, has been taken in by the Muncasters temporarily. Clothing has been furnished him by a widowed neighbor whose husband died recently.

George VI Enters 13th Year of Rule In Poor Health

London, Dec. 12 (AP).—King George VI entered the thirteenth year of his reign in poor health today, fulfilling royal functions from his bed.

He acceded to the throne just a dozen years ago with the abdication of his brother, King Edward VIII.

Edward gave up the crown and left England in order to marry American-born Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. They became the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

The King's troop fired a salute of 41 guns in Hyde Park at noon to mark the anniversary.

King George will be 53 years old Tuesday. Wednesday his first grandchild—the prince born November 14 to Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip—will be christened at the Palace.

Itemized Bill for $94 Presented With Fines

Charleston, Ill., Dec. 12 (U.P.).—Police Magistrate William H. Dyke fined Granville Bensley, 27, with an itemized bill that told its own story today. It read:

Intoxication, $11.40.

Disorderly conduct, $15.40.

Setting fire to jail and endangering the lives of others, $15.40.

Damage to jail, $50.

Cost of transferring Bensley to another jail, $2.40.

Total, $94.60.

Negro Group Votes to Boycott Mobile Papers

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 12 (AP).—A group of Negroes voted today to observe a "reading holiday" as a protest against alleged discrimination by the Mobile daily newspapers.

The group, numbering approximately 125, voted overwhelmingly to support the boycott against the Mobile Press (afternoon), the Mobile Register (morning) and the Press-Register (Sunday).

At a similar meeting last Sunday a report of a discussion with R. B. Chandler, publisher of the newspapers, was read and discussed. The report said Chandler refused a request that "Miss" and "Mrs." be used in connection with news stories and paid obituary notices about Negro women.

The same reports indicated that the publisher considered a threat to boycott the newspaper had been implied, and that the newspapers would not acquiesce in any request in face of a threat.

Truman Writes Praising New Pius Institute

Vatican City, Dec. 12 (AP).—A letter from President Truman expressing "profound interest" in the Pius XII Institute established recently in Florence for American girl students of the arts was made public at the Vatican today.

The new institute occupies part of the Schifanoia Villa, which Myron Taylor, the President's representative at the Vatican, donated to the Pope.

In the letter, addressed to Mother Eunice, the institute's director, President Truman said the villa itself stirred admiration for the excellence of its architecture—the work of "masters of the Renaissance equaled by few and surpassed by none."

Loudoun School Board to Meet On Overcrowding

Leesburg, Va., Dec. 12 (Spl.).—The Loudoun County School Board will meet Tuesday with O. L. Emerick, superintendent of schools, to consider overcrowded school conditions facing the county next year.

For the first time, Loudoun County will have a 12-grade school system, made possible a couple of years ago by the establishment of an eighth grade.

Emerick is expected to ask for nine additional teachers and more classrooms.

He is on record as favoring construction of inexpensive temporary classrooms at an estimated cost of $50,000 to handle the overflow. As an alternative, he has proposed classrooms in auditoriums and transporting some eighth grade pupils to available rooms in grade schools. The temporary classrooms would be built at the county's five high schools.

Sheer Bliss Wins U. S. Field Trials

Crab Orchard Lake, Ill., Dec. 12 (AP).—Stoney Broke Sheer Bliss won the National English Springer Spaniel Field Trials, it was announced today.

The three-day event was ended last night after two days of trials following the death of Dr. Charles G. Sabin of Portland, Oreg., president of the Field Trial Association Dr. Sabin was kllled in a nautomobile accident last night.

Own Bullet Kills Youthful Hunter

William Roger Doon, 17, of Rt. 1, Springfield, Va., died in Alexandria Hospital yesterday of a bullet wound suffered while hunting Friday.

Shooting rabbits with a companion, Glenn Ball, 17, also of Rt. 1, Springfield, Doon accidentally discharged his own rifle and the bullet pierced his head over his left eye, police said. The boys were standing in an open field, police reported, discussing where they would go to college when the accident occurred.

Prio Back in Cuba

Havana, Dec. 12 (AP).—President Carlos Prio Socaras returned to Cuba tonight from a five-day visit in Washington, D. C., and New York City.

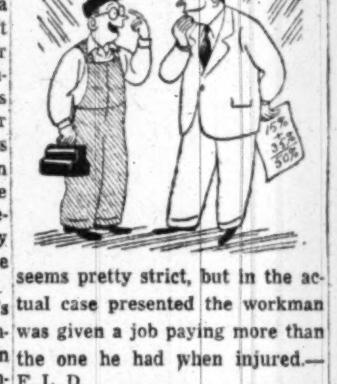
What's the Verdict?

INJURED EYE



Q. Escaping ammonia from a pump injured a workman's left eye so as to cut its vision 85 per cent. A Workmen's Compensation award was made on the basis of the severity of the injury. Later the workman found that glasses gave him 50 per cent normal vision in the injured eye; he told the company about it when he returned to work and the company now wants the amount of the award cut. Should it be cut?

A. The purpose of Workmen's Compensation statutes is to compensate for loss or disability in earning power, rather than to compensate for injury. Therefore, by achieving 50 per cent vision with glasses, the workman disqualifies himself for an award made on the basis of 85 per cent injury. This seems pretty strict, but in the actual case presented the workman was given a job paying more than the one he had when injured.—F. L. D.

Now Is the Time to Get A Sack of Sand

After Snow Removal Boss William A. Xanten finished his stint on my radio program, I asked:

"Is there anything a motorist can do to minimize the risk of being stuck in snow or ice?"

"Sure," said Xanten. "Carry a small sack of sand in your car. It's inexpensive, and effective. You'll be surprised at how much traction you can get on ice with a little sand under your wheels."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The Idaho Book Club annually holds a Christmas party, to which members bring toys. The toys are contributed to needy children.

Do you suppose that Children's Hospital would like our toys this year?

Dorothy Mahar
Arlington Farms, G 121.

Dear Dorothy:

You betcha! The hospital has no facilities for picking up such contributions, but if you bring the toys in they'll be mighty glad to get them.

Bill.

FOR MUSIC LOVERS

Thanks to Phyllis B. Georg of 1414 Massachusetts ave. nw., I've just learned about the Public Library's music division.

The library has quite a collection of records, I find, and any music lover who reserves time in advance can hear them—if the record players are working.

There are supposed to be three such players, but two of the three are currently on the inactive list. They need repairs, but no funds are available, because the whole program is run on $300 per year.

So Mrs. Georg thinks that perhaps musically inclined District Liners can work out a solution that will get the record players fixed, and thereby help more people enjoy good music.

SILVER THREADS AMONG THE GOLDS

The burning question of whether silverware should be dried by the handful or one piece at a time is still burning, but I choose to consider that I have won a moral victory.

Priscilla Kenney of Arlington, Va., says that I can tell the lady at our house that each piece of silver should be wiped individually.

Mrs. Raymond C. Paulson of Triangle, Va., explains that when silverware is stacked in a heap and then dried by mass production methods it becomes scratched. (And Mrs. Paulson is obviously a woman of good judgment—she married a Cincinnati boy).

However, Marvin A. Marx of 3824 2d st. se. says: "Production line methods are the American way. I wash 'em, wipe 'em all at once, and wish 'em well."

Paul X. Babbington of Silver Spring, Md., has a method for getting out of the washing and wiping chores. He reports:

"I had the same silverware problem until I bought my wife one of those new $49.50 Cameron dishwashers (free plug). Now I can read the paper and relax while the Cameron works."

J. C. Runyon of 503 N. West st., Falls Church, Va., dictated the following to his secretary:

"Dear Bill:

"Only the sympathy aroused by your plaintive appeal prompts me to divulge the secret of how to be boss in your own house.

"I simply told my wife to get the heck out of the kitchen, and I wash and wipe 'em in my own sweet way—by the handful."

Secretary Lillie M. Panarello of Alexandria, Va., typed out the letter as instructed, but at the bottom added this:

"The opinions expressed are those of Mr. Runyon, and are not shared by his secretary, who believes that silver should be wiped one piece at a time, to avoid marring and scratching."

Atta girl, Lillie. That's tellin him. He may be a capable executive, but he's got a lot to learn about first-class dishwashing.

PERSONAL NOTES

John W. Powell, 3738 Benton st. nw.: I also tried to figure out that Mama and Papa Hush puzzle, and got no place. But from now on I'm playing it smart. I'm not going to print any guesses from the readers, because when they turn out to have been wrong, I get indignant letters which read: "You big bum—you gave us a bum steer."

Stanley Stevens, 5133 N. 25th pl., Arlington, Va.: To a dullard on things mechanical, your sketch of a proposed speedometer for buses looks very good. I'm sending it along to Capital Transit.

New York—Richard Aldrich flies to London for a one-day visit this week, to attend the premiere starring his wife, Gertrude Lawrence . . . Senator John W. Bricker's long-hoped-for wish to become a trustee of Ohio State University was fulfilled last week . . . The recorded transatlantic phone call between Carleton Smith in New York and Sibelius in Finland will be broadcast by the Voice of America. The recording will go to the Library of Congress . . . At her opening program in Times Hall next month, Michael Strange will recite the Declaration of Independence with a harmonious background of Beethoven music, and then recite the Communist Manifesto in the dissonant music of Shostakhovitch.

On the eve of the opening of his new store in Los Angeles, Jerry Ohrbach conferred with the chief of police about handling the crowds. "Have you invited any movie stars?" asked the chief of police. Ohrbach told him "No." . . . "Then there won't be any crowd problem for the police to handle," he assured Ohrbach. "Here in Los Angeles we've learned that the crowds come out only for the movie stars" . . . Five minutes after the new store opened, the doors had to be closed, the police were called and radio broadcasts were made asking people to keep away from the area—because of the crowd, including movie stars who went there as customers.

A movie actor who wanted to direct a picture finally was given his opportunity—a low-budgeted movie in which he also played one of the featured roles. At the end of the first week he assembled his cast and told them that he had seen the rushes, and that their performances were all bad. "mine is the only good performance," he stated. "The rest of you are awful. And do you know why?" . . . "Yes, we know why," the star of the movie told him. "It's because you didn't have a director, and we did."

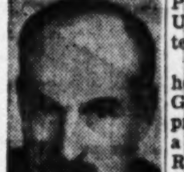
The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Navy Tells How to Snipe at AAF

By Drew Pearson

The Navy has just put out for restricted use one of the most amazing reference books ever printed at public expense—a confidential handbook to guide Navy officers in making public speeches and, incidentally, poking gibes at the Army Air Force.



Pearson

In fact, the book's underlying theme is nothing but the Navy's case against the Air Force.

Despite the fact that Congress passed the Unification Bill for the express purpose of cutting out Army and Navy bickering, the Navy's confidential handbook admonishes:

"Always remember that you represent the Navy and that, whatever the apparent purpose of your talk may be, your primary purpose is to inform the public to the benefit of the Navy."

A high-sounding policy is laid down by the Navy for preparing public speeches. This covers three points: "(1) Naval personnel (shall) refrain from any reference to Russia . . . by name as a potential enemy or threat to this country . . . (2) We should continue to have confidence in the United Nations as an instrument to assure world peace, and there should be no expression of doubt in this respect . . . (3) No member of the naval service (shall) utter any comment reflecting adversely upon, or belittling the role of, any other branch of the service, and in general, discussion of matters which might be controversial between the services (shall) be avoided in public."

Yet the suggested speech material, taken from actual Navy speeches, violates in almost every sentence the Navy's own policy. On page after page, the guidebook makes a mockery of unification. It cries for broader naval aviation—although the Navy's role in the air has been fixed twice by the joint Chiefs of Staff. It snipes at the Air Force while professing brotherly love.

Despite this the Navy is now buying more airplanes than the Air Force, and, by 1951, the Navy Air Force will be flying 14,000 planes, while the Air Force will be operating only 10,600.

Note—Apparently the admirals take their cue from a confidential directive issued by Secretary of Defense Forrestal, in which he said: "It is to the mutual interest of all of us to minimize public evidences of friction among the services." In other words he seemed not so concerned about stopping all bickering, but in not letting it leak to the public.

Tongue-Tied Wayne Coy

President Truman understood perfectly the other day when 10-year-old Wayne Coy, jr., became tongue-tied. Wayne, jr., and his 17-year-old brother Stephen accompanied their father, who is chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, when he went to the White House.

Wayne, jr., had assured his father before they reached the White House that he would add the President's autograph to his collection.

"I'm just going to ask him for it," announced the 10-year-old. But when he stood before the President of the United States, he could hardly say "How do you do, Mr. President," as he had so carefully planned.

Time is precious inside the White House, and as his father started to leave, Wayne, jr., still hadn't been able to speak up about the coveted autograph. So Wayne, sr., became his ambassador.

"Mr. President," he said, "Wayne here said he was going to ask you for your autograph and I know he wants it. He's just too scared to open his mouth right now."

"I know how he feels," remarked the President, as he sat down to write out his autograph. "You know, Wayne, the first time I visited here to see the President, I wasn't able to say anything either. Of course, it was for a different reason. I got in here and didn't get a chance to talk, because the President talked all the time himself."

Note—Truman's first White House visit was as Senator from Missouri in 1935, and the man he didn't get a chance to talk to was Franklin Roosevelt.

Pumpkin Helps Rankin

The "discovery" of top-secret microfilms in a hollowed-out pumpkin was certainly a tonic for the sagging spirits of John Rankin, fire-eatin' Congressman from Tupelo, Mississippi.

Genuinely wearied from a strenuous campaign, Rankin was also depressed by the indictment of Parnell Thomas, chairman of the Un-American Actitivies Committee.

This committee may now be headed by lanky John Wood of Georgia, and Wood, during his previous chairmanship, had been a willing puppet in the hands of Rankin. But the indictment of Thomas had put the committee in such bad odor that its prospects of survival in the 81st Congress had slid close to zero. This would have left to Rankin only the more prosaic task of heading the Veterans Committee. And no headlines come from working for veterans.

Then suddenly Committee investigator Bob Stripling pulled the top from a "punkin." Headlines and radio screamed the story! Rankin leaped into the line of newsmen's cameras and was snapped viewing a strip of microfilm hauled from Chambers' "punkin." Newspapers over the nation carried the picture.

Those who see Rankin daily will tell you that overnight, lines disappeared from his face, satisfaction oozed from his countenance, his stooping shoulders became erect, his voice had a new vigor, and his step became that of an 18-year-old soldier marching in his first parade with with his best girl a spectator.

The Price We Pay

The days are insufficient and
. . . The hours are too few . . .
To carry out in finished form
. . . The things we want to do
. . . We never seem to have the time . . . To generate success
. . . Without a sharp curtailment of . . . Domestic happiness . . . We gather wealth and glory while . . . Our world comes to an end . . . Or else we hang around the house . . .
But have no cash to spend . . .
Of course some people have the knack . . . Of being in between . . . And when it comes to either side . . . The grass is just as green . . . But usually our fame depends . . . Upon how far we roam . . . Or whether we are satisfied . . .
With poverty at home.
